PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

With 1987 behind us, it is my hope that each one of you had a good Holiday Season, and on behalf of the AGS Executive Committee and myself wish everyone a prosperous and genealogically successful New Year.

My last comments expressed concern about the need for more involvement of members in the administrative activities of the Society, a concern which is shared by the Branches' and Provincial Executive Committees. The sad fact is that the picture is not getting any brighter, apart from searching for more than one person to run for any of the executive positions, no one person or group of persons has come forward to ask about the filling of the positions in the publications area. In addition, our treasurer, who has served the Society in several executive positions including two terms as President, will relinquish her duties as of the 1988 annual meeting in Lethbridge.

The argument can be made that not all good genealogists are good administrators, however, in a society of close to seven hundred persons, one would say that better than one half are able to handle some, if not any, of the duties.

The questions have to be asked, what are the members losing, what is genealogy in Alberta and Canada losing and what hard fought for projects will either suffer or be discontinued?

Our members, you and I, will lose the contact with knowledgeable people in Alberta. Who has not learned at least a little bit by attending one of our seminars or conferences?

Genealogy in Alberta and Canada will be losing because it will be harder to give help and receive research help.

What hard fought for projects will suffer? This quarterly is one, our successes in setting up indices of cemeteries and other genealogically important data will certainly suffer.

The answers to our problems are not easily found at times, but without people there will be no one to even consider them. It is not the Executive Committee which alone can shoulder all activities, we need your help.

If you feel you are able to pitch in, in some activity, let your representative know about your qualifications, be it typing or indexing or whatever it is you can do, the Society will find some niche for you either now or maybe six months from now.

On a happier note, let me officially welcome our newest Branch to our circle of genealogical friends. Ft. McMurray is our eighth branch and is looking forward to working together with us. Let us stretch out our helping hand in their beginnings and let us also look forward to meeting some time in their fair city during one of our conferences.

Jo. Nuthack
President

P.S. Hope to see many of you at Conference '88 in Lethbridge.

LETTER FROM A MEMBER

Lenore Law (A.G.S 1328) of Nepean, Ontario tells us of her library finds. She heartily recommends The Best Edmonton Stories by Tony Cashman, published by Hurtigs as most enjoyable, and thinks that the chapter about the 1912 census may be of interest to genealogists.

Lenore also recommends Edmonton Trader by J. G. MacGregor as being full of fascinating background information.

These books are likely in most bookstores, and libraries.

Thank you for the tips, Lenore.

RED CROSS MISSING TRACES MISSING PERSONS

Have you read The World's Largest Missing Persons Bureau in the February 1988 issue of Reader's Digest (Canadian edition)? Have you ever wondered how to contact such an agency if you had a pressing need? (Remember those wonderful calls made after the Edmonton tornado disaster, 31 July 1988?)

First, read the article (page 60), and then make a mental note that this kind of a search may be instigated simply by phoning the Canadian Red Cross Society. The number is in the telephone directory -- in Edmonton it is 403-423-2680.

DEAR GENIE

"Dear Genie" welcomes letters from readers, outlining their genealogical problems. Selected letters will be printed, with Genie's advice. For personal replies, please include a S.A.S.E. (stamped, self-addressed envelope). Letters must be signed. Confidentiality will be maintained, if requested. Please address letters to: "Dear Genie", c/o Alberta Genealogical Society, P.O. Box 12015, Edmonton, AB T5J 3L2.

Hialeah, Florida

Dear Genie:

I would like to obtain the birth record of Joseph Corsair, born January 3, 1858 in Montreal. The name could be spelled Corser. If you do not have this information, please let me know where I may obtain the certificate. Thank you for your time and help.

Gina Lytle

Dear Gina:

In the Province of Quebec, you must write to the Judicial District concerned for records of births, marriages and deaths after 1885. For Montreal, this would be the Ministere de la Justice, Archives Civiles, 1 rue Notre Dame Est, Montreal, Quebec, H2Y 1B6, Canada.

However, since you are looking for a birth taking place in 1858, you would have to try the Parish Records. Do you have any idea which parish in Montreal he would have been born in? Even in those days, there would have been many churches.

You could write to a Genealogical Society in Montreal for their advice on how to proceed. There is the "Societe Genealogique Canadienne-Francaise, C.P. 335 Station Place des Armes, Montreal, Quebec, H2Y 3H1" or there is the "Quebec Family History Society, P.O. Box 1026, Pointe Claire Stn., Pointe Claire, Quebec, H9S 4H9, Canada".

Good luck in your searching.

"Genie"

Grams, Essex, England

Dear Genie:

I have discovered that some relatives of mine emigrated to Canada around 1917-1919. Apparently two sisters Annie and Lucy Aitken married two Canadians Wilfred and Harold Summerfield and moved to Edmonton, Alberta. Annie had a child, a daughter Anne, by a previous marriage. Harold Summerfield is thought to have become a mayor or equivalent in Alberta. I wondered if you would be able to shed any light on this for me. I would be grateful for any information you might be able to give me.

(Mrs.) M. Aldridge

Dear Mrs. Aldridge:

I checked all our Ancestor Indexes where members list their interests and found no Summerfields. But I did better in the Edmonton telephone books! There are three listed, one in Edmonton and two in Stony Plain, a small town nearby. I will send these addresses under separate cover. Good luck!

COMPUTER CORNER

By Peter Goutbeck - A.G.S. #1006
Edmonton Branch

If you are thinking that tomorrow is the time to get a computer and one of those genealogy programs, to organize all your newly found family, well just stop long enough to consider this. First thing you are going to have to do when you get the computer and or program home, is to install the program. "So" you say "the manual should tell me all about that". Well that's right. The only thing is that the manual may use words and terminology not completely familiar to you and me.

I thought maybe I was the only person having this problem until I heard from others unable to get the programs up and running. In fact several acquaintances seem to have given up on trying to get the programs installed.

Installation of a program: When you buy any computer program, the first thing you have to do is to tell it about your particular computer. You have to tell it such things as how many disk drives you have and which slots of the computer they are in. Computers are now available with various disk sizes such as the hard drive and the 3.5 inch disk. While these do have advantages they will require more knowledge on the part of the person to install the software. In the case of a hard drive you will have to tell it what size and where it resides. Then if your computer has the newer 3.5 inch disks you will also have to explain this.

Different programs use different terminology for the 'install' program. Some do this through a utility on the first menu that is displayed to the screen. Still other programs do it through a configuration program. Another problem area in installation is the question the program asks about the make of printer. Most of the genealogy programs available have been developed in the USA, and thus do not list all the printers available to us here in Canada. One exception to this seems to be that any daisy wheel printer will work. All you have to do is just plug it in. But while daisy wheel printers are letter perfect they are slower and not everyone wants to work that slowly in this computer age.

I know you can always make a phone call to the program developer and get the answers to your questions. Or as many of us have done, ask one of your children to help you with this installing. Many of our members are willing to answer questions about the computers and programs with which they are familiar. Listed below are some computer makes and models and programs with the phone numbers of reference people who have volunteered their services.

IBM Compatible with Personal Ancestral File -- Muriel Jones, phone 435-2691

IBM Compatible with hard drive and Family Roots -- Peter Goutbeck, phone 998-0198

Apple //e and Family Roots -- Georgette Brodeur, phone 489-8864

Are there others who would volunteer their services as reference people? Please phone Peter -- 998-0198.

NOTICE

Relatively Speaking is looking for someone interested in doing our column on computers, "Computer Corner".

Our thanks go out to Peter Goutbeck for a job well done. Thank you, Peter!

Anyone interested in submitting articles or information of use and interest to members with computer interests, please write to Chairman of the Publications Committee, at the A.G.S. address.

SEARCH FOR DONORS

By Jack Layton - A.G.S. #1192

The story of the Frohnmayer sisters, Katie and Kirsten, of Eugene, Oregon, received nation-wide publicity in November 1987, when the family travelled to Musquodoboit, Nova Scotia, in search of relatives who might be able to provide bone marrow transplants for them. The sisters, suffer from a rare disease, Fanconi Anemia, which will be fatal unless compatible bone marrow and willing donors can be found.

Probably all genealogists were moved by their quest; and Nova Scotia genealogists are active in tracing all the relatives of Robert and Elizabeth Logan Guild (pronounced Gould) Braden, who left Musquodoboit in 1868 to settle in Minnesota. Their ancestors had settled in the Musquodoboit Valley in the late 1700's.

The Nova Scotia Genealogical Society is co-operating in the search for relatives, under the direction of Dr. Allan Marble, principally in the Truro-Musquodoboit area of Nova Scotia. Like the Bradens, however, many other inhabitants of the region left to pursue their livelihoods across the rest of North America. Among these were two Bates sisters who came to Alberta, one settling in Ponoka and the other in the Parkland area near Nanton. Their families now live throughout Alberta. Another was Agnes Guild, who, along with her husband, Albert McCurdy, " ... moved west". This family has not been traced.

The families being traced are, principally, Braden, Logan, Guild, Blair, Archibald, McInnis, Parker, Leck, MacDonald, Dickie, MacDougall, Taylor, Fisher, Johnson, Mills, Fulton, and Farley.

RESOURCE CORNER

This is a new column we thought we'd try that will deal with one specific area or topic of research. Sometimes we get quite a lot of information, research tips, names of new publications, addresses, etc. on one area, so we will try to gather these and print them in this column. If anyone has information they would like to see in this column, please forward it to "Relatively Speaking", P.O. Box 12015, Edmonton, Alberta, T5J 3L2.

RESEARCHING IN ENGLAND & WALES

By John Stewart - A.G.S. #981

Census Returns

Census returns for England and Wales for the years 1841, 1851, 1861, 1871 and 1881 have been released to the public to date. They are available on microfilm in the Census Room, Land Registry Building, Portugal St., London.

In addition to these, the General Register Office, Office of Population Censuses and Surveys (OPCS) will, for a fee, make a search in the census returns for 1891 and 1901 to establish the age and place of birth of named persons. You must be able to supply them with the exact address, and you must also be a direct descendant or a person acting on their behalf, to obtain this service. Application for this useful service should be made to the Director and Registrar General, OPCS, St. Catherine's House, 10 Kingsway, London, WC2B 6JP.

Vital Statistics

For the period after July 1, 1837, records of births, marriages and deaths in England and Wales are preserved at the General Register Office, OPCS. Indexes to these registers may be consulted at St. Catherine's House.

Until the Registration and Marriage Acts of 1836 became operational on July 1, 1837, there was no provision for the central registration of births, marriages and deaths in England and Wales. To find the equivalent information for the pre-1837 period, it is therefore necessary to consult the Parish Registers kept by the clergy of the Church of England. Parish Registers are still held locally, either in the custody of the incumbent and church wardens, or deposited in a local record office. Once a year Bishop's Transcripts were made from the registers and submitted to the diocesan registrar. The transcripts are now deposited by the diocesan registrar in the appropriate diocesan record office.

Another source of information for those whose ancestors were not Anglican, are the Non-Parochial or Non-Conformist Registers. They do not contain marriage entries after 1753 except for Jewish, Quaker and some Roman Catholic registers. The non-parochial registers relate almost exclusively to England and Wales and are almost all from Protestant Non-Conformist Churches. Several registers of Huguenot and other Foreign Protestant Churches in England as well as registers of the Society of Friends (Quakers) are included. The few Roman Catholic registers included come mainly from the north of England. Most non-parochial registers cover the period 1775-1837, although a few continue beyond that date to as late as 1857 and several go back as far as the mid-1600's.

Wills

Wills proved in England since January 12, 1858 are at the Principal Registry of the Family Division, Somerset House, Strand, London, WC2.

Before that date the proving of wills was the responsibility of the ecclesiastical and some manorial courts. The Public Record Office holds only the records of the Prerogative Court of Canterbury (PCC) the busiest of the courts in England and Wales. The records of other courts, such as the Prerogative Court of York are preserved locally.

various "INDEXES"

Shoemakers' Index

A shoemakers' index is being compiled. As there are literally millions of shoemakers, it is unlikely the index can ever be complete. Any information you can send will be added to it. If you list it on a 3X5 index card, this speeds the process. Information required: Shoemaker's name; Date & place of birth & death; Relationships to other shoemakers, if any; Details of apprenticeship, if any; Date, address & title (eg. bootmaker, shoemaker, cordwainer, etc); Compiler's name, address & date. Information should be sent to: J. M. Swann, Keeper of the Boot & Shoe Collection, Central Museum, Guildhall Rd., Northampton, Eng. NN1 1DP. (from Cornwall Family History Society, No. 45).

Glassmakers Index

Mr. B. J. Hardyman of 26 St. Anne's Drive, Coalpit Heath, Bristol, BS17 2TH, England, has details of Glassmakers which he will search if you send a self-addressed envelope along with an International Reply Coupon. He would also like to receive further information of Glassmakers in any area of Britain. (from The Essex Family Historian, No. 45).

Staffordshire (Eng.) Marriage & Burial Index

The Birmingham & Midland Society for Genealogy and Heraldry has now completed a Marriage Index for the County up to 1837 from the parish registers & Bishop Transcripts. Some 48 volunteers are now helping to compile a Burial Index for 1813-1837. Already there are 150,000 slips in this index with some 30,000 for the pre-1813 period. The Burial

Index also contains many memorial inscriptions & other references to Staffordshire people. There is an index of death notices 1795-1840 in The Staffordshire Advertiser. Requests for a search of either index should include a minimum donation of $2 for 3 names. Enquiries for the Marriage Index should be made to: Mrs. Jean Dunn, 11 Common Walk, Huntington, Cannock, Staffordshire, WS12 4NB England. For the Burial Index, write to: F. C. Markwell, B.A., F.S.G., 48 Howard Road, King's Heath, Birmingham, B14 7PQ, England. Please enclose 2 I.R.C.'s or $1 for reply postage. (from "Newsleaf" Ontario Genealogical Society, Vol.17 No.3).

German Research-19th Century Emigration Indexes

These are unique indexes for family researchers, designed especially for people who don't know the exact place of origin of their 19th century immigrant ancestor of German descent. is most helpful in supplying information connected with family history. Their library has details of obituaries of their members as they appear in the Pharmaceutical Journal. From their register, they have supplied addresses where members have practiced. The address of the society is: 1-Lambeth High Street, London SE1 7JN U.K. (from Alberta Family Histories Society "Heritage" Vol.8 No.1).

COPYRIGHT: QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Information regarding Copyrights, from Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada

Contributed by Enid Fitzsimonds (A.G.S.#113)

1. What is a copyright?

Copyright -- the right to copy -- means that an owner is the only person who may copy his work or permit someone else to do so. Copying includes publishing, producing, reproducing and performing.

2. To what does copyright apply?

Copyright applies to all original literary, dramatic, musical and artistic works including, among others, books, writings, musical works, sculpture, paintings, photographs, motion film pictures, dictionaries and encyclopedias. Copyright also applies to mechanical contrivances such as records, cassettes and tapes.

3. Who owns the copyright?

The author owns the copyright on his work unless he was hired or employed by some other person to create the work in which case the employer is the owner.

4. How do I obtain copyright?

Copyright in Canada is automatically acquired upon creation of an original work providing that, at the time the work was made, the author was:

- a. a Canadian citizen and/or a British subject, or
- b. resident within Her Majesty's dominions, or
- c. a citizen or subject of a country belonging to the Universal Copyright Convention or which grants by treaty, convention, agreement or law to citizens of Canada the benefits of its copyright statute on substantially the same basis as its own citizens.

5. Does that mean that I don't have to do anything to be protected?

Nothing needs to be done to get basic protection, but you may apply for voluntary registration.

6. Is registration of copyright advisable?

Yes. Upon registration a certificate is issued providing evidence that the person registered is the copyright owner. This certificate can be used in court to establish ownership.

7. What is necessary to register my copyright?

If you wish to register it, you should file an application conforming either forms 9 or 10 (available from the Copyright and Industrial Design Branch. The registration process usually takes takes 6 to 8 weeks.

8. How much does it cost to register my copyright?

$35.00 -- This fee covers examination of the application. Registration is effective when the application is accepted, whether at the time of filing or after amendment. A certificate is then issued at no extra cost. The fee must be sent with the application. Cheques should be made out to the Receiver General of Canada. (Fees are subject to change without notice.) PLEASE NOTE: Fees are not refunded if the application is withdrawn or refused.

9. Once I have registered, are there any further fees to keep the copyright in force?

No, the single registration fee is all that is required.

10. Who may sign an application?

Persons authorized to sign an application are:

- a. the applicant or his agent, in the case of an individual.
- b. the partner, in the case of a firm.
- c. a director, secretary or other principal officer in the case of a corporation..

11. How long does a copyright last?

Generally speaking, copyright in Canada exists for the life of the author, and fifty years following his death. There are important exceptions, as follows:

Author unknown -- Copyright exists for 50 years from the date of the first publication of the work.
Crown copyright -- Copyright in a work published by or under the direction of Her Majesty the Queen or any government department exists for 50 years from the date of first publication of the work.
Mechanical contrivances: e.g. records, tapes and other contrivances by means of which sounds may be mechanically reproduced). -- The term of copyright is for 50 years from the date of making the original plate from which the contrivance was directly or indirectly derived.
Photographs -- Copyright exists for 50 years from the date of making the original negative from which the photograph was directly or indirectly derived.
Posthumous works -- For works not published at the time of the author's death, copyright exists for 50 years from the date of their publication, delivery or performance.
Work of joint authorship -- Copyright exists during the life of the author who dies last and 50 years following his death.

12. Is an application checked on receipt to see if the title has already been used?

No. The Copyright Act does not give a monopoly to the title of the work. Many works may appear with the same title but if each work has been created independently, each will have its own copyright protection.

13. Is it necessary to send copies of my work with the application form?

No. Copies are not required. However, the National Library Act requires that two copies of every book published in Canada and one copy of a sound recording manufactured in Canada that has some Canadian content be sent to the National Library of Canada, 395 Wellington Street, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada K1A 0N4.

14. Should I indicate on my works that I hold copyright?

It is not necessary under the provisions of the Canadian Copyright Act. However, to retain copyright protection under the provisions of the Universal Copyright Convention in countries that require registration, e.g. in the United States, from the time of first publication, all copies of your work must be marked with a small c in a circle, the name of the copyright owner, and the year of the first publication, e.g. © CamKell Ltd., 1980.

15. Is the copyright of a Canadian author valid in foreign countries?

Yes, on condition that the country in which protection is sought belongs to either the Berne Copyright Convention or the Universal Copyright Convention. These conventions include most of the countries of the world.

16. Is the copyright of a foreign author valid in Canada?

Yes, as long as the author was, at the time the work was created, resident or a subject of a country belonging to either the Berne or Universal Copyright Conventions, and in the case of the published work, if it was published in a Commonwealth country or in a country with which Canada has an agreement.

17. Who owns my copyright when I die?

Copyright will form a part of your estate to be passed on to your heirs.

18. Can copyright be registered if an application has not been filed before an author's death?

Yes, an author's work is part of his estate and can be registered by his heirs or legal representatives.

19. If I create a work while hired by or in the employ of some other person, to whom does the copyright belong?

If you were hired by the other person to create the work for him, then, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, he is automatically the owner of the copyright.

20. What is the significance of a nom de plume and can I indicate it in an application?

A nom de plume is a pen name, the name assumed by a writer, cartoonist, etc., who does not choose to use his own name on a published work. While a nom de plume may be shown in the application, the full legal name and address of the author are required for purposes of determining the duration of the copyright.

21. If I register the copyright for a book of poems, songs or photographs, do I have to pay $35.00 for each poem, song or photograph?

No. If registration of copyright is desired for a book of poems, songs or photographs, assembled and published together under one title, on registration and one fee of $35.00 is sufficient. The words "a book of. . ." should be inserted, within brackets, following the title of this work.

22. Do I have to register the copyright for each edition in the case of a periodical work?

No. In the case of an encyclopedia, newspaper, review, magazine, etc., or work published in a series of books, or parts, one registration for the whole work is sufficient.

23. Can photographs be protected by copyright?

Yes, photographs are proper subject matter for copyright protection. They are classified as artistic works.

24. Can games be protected by copyright?

Games are not protected by copyright, but the various components, such as game boards, game rules and instructions may be. As an example, written rules or instructions can be protected, but the idea of the game or how it works is not included, only the specific language used to explain the rules. Game boards may also be registered provided that no more than 50 copies are reproduced. For quantities in excess of 50, registration is necessary under the Industrial design Act for protection in Canada.

25. What protection does the Copyright Act extend to records or tapes?

The owner of the copyright in a record or tape has the sole right to reproduce it or to authorize anyone else to reproduce it for a period of 50 years from the date the original plate was made.

26. Are computer programs subject to copyright protection?

It is unclear under the current Act, which came into effect in 1924, whether or not computer programs or software are protected. However, written instructions for the use of a program are subject to copyright protection as 'literary' works.

27. Are there any works that are not registrable under the Copyright Act?

Yes, themes, ideas, mere titles, names, catch phrases and other short word combinations of no real substance cannot be protected by copyright.

28. Is the Copyright Office authorized to correct, rectify or cancel an entry in the Copyright Register?

The Copyright Office may correct its own errors by issuing a correction certificate. However, changes in titles, etc., errors made by the applicant or expungements can only be carried out or rectified under the authority of the Federal Court of Canada. The procedure to be followed in these later cases is outlined in the Federal Court Rules, copies of which are available at any library.

29. Can rights to copyright be sold or assigned?

Yes, they may be assigned or sold in whole or in part. However, to be valid, any assignment must be in writing and be signed by the owner.

30. If I acquire ownership of copyright by assignment must I register my assignment with the Copyright Office?

No, but if you do not register the assignment and the original owner assigns copyright of the same work to another person who registers his assignment in the Copyright Office, your assignment will be invalid.

31. What is the difference between an assignment and a license?

An assignment is a sale of rights or of a particular right in a work to a second party and involves a transfer of ownership. A license does not involve a transfer of ownership. It can be likened to a temporary grant, usually for a fee or royalty, to a second party allowing him to use a work in a specified manner.

32. What is the definition of a published work?

A work is published when copies of it have been issued to the public. Public performances of a dramatic or musical work, the delivery of a lecture in public, the exhibition in public of an artistic work or construction of an architectural work do not constitute publication.

33. If I register the copyright of an unpublished work, should I re-register it once it is published?

No. Proof of ownership has been established by the first registration. Nothing further is gained by a second registration.

34. Does the Copyright Office assist authors in publishing their works?

No. Publication is the sole responsibility of the copyright owner.

35. Will the Copyright Office prevent others from infringing on my copyright?

No. The responsibility for policing your copyright rests with you.

36. What is plagiarism?

In the context of copyright, plagiarism is stealing work of another person and claiming it as one's own work.

37. What is "fair dealing"?

It is a quotation from or reproduction of minor excerpts of, a work in which copyright exists for bona fide purposes of private study, research criticism, review or newspaper summary. The line between fair dealing and infringement is difficult to define. There are no guidelines as to the number of words or passages that can be used without permission from the author. Only the courts can rule whether fair dealing or infringement is involved.

38. Can I search the copyright records to determine whether the copyright in a work has been registered or assigned?

Yes, the records of the Copyright Office are open to the public, free of charge. Assistance is provided for those who are not familiar with the various documents that must be searched. The Copyright Office is located in Place du Portage, Tower 1, 50 Victoria Street, Hull, Quebec.

39. Can libraries make copies of books for student use?

No one is allowed to use a work in which copyright exists without first obtaining permission from the copyright owner.

40. Do I have to pay royalties for a private performance of a work, such as a record, in my home?

No. A private performance for family members in your own home would not constitute infringement.

41. Are royalties payable for a public performance of records or tapes, say at a dance?

Yes. This is one of the rights the copyright holder has. If you use a work that belongs to someone else in this manner, you must pay for the use of it.

42. How do I pay, in this case?

You are required to pay to the associations called performing rights societies.

43. What is a performing rights society?

A performing rights society is entitled under the Copyright Act to collect royalties or fees on behalf of its members for the public performance of their musical works. These fees are distributed to its members who are composers, authors and publishers.

44. What are the names of the performing rights societies in Canada?

There are two performing rights Organizations in Canada: the Performing Rights Organization of Canada Limited (PROCAN), and the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada (CAPAC). Their head offices are located in Toronto, Ontario.

45. What is the difference between copyright and industrial design?

All literary, dramatic and musical works are subject matter of copyright protection, regardless of the quantity in which they are produced. However, artistic works that are used as models to be applied to articles of manufacture and are intended to be reproduced in numbers greater than 50 are protected only by the Industrial Design Act., e.g. dolls, statuettes, toys, pendants.

46. Where can I obtain copies of the Copyright Act and Rules?

Copies of the Act and Rules can be purchased from a bookstore selling federal government publications, or from Canadian Government Publishing Centre, Supply and Services Canada, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0S9.

47. What is the mailing address of the Canadian Copyright Office?

Copyright and Industrial Design Branch, 50 Victoria Street, Place du Portage. Tower 1, Hull. Quebec K1A 0C9.

FARM LIFE IN SMOLNIK, POLAND

With thanks from the book "Sompolno To Strathcona"
Compiled by Ron Neuman - A.G.S. #1724
Neuman-Arndt History Committee

The village (Colony) of Smolnik was located about six miles southwest of Sompolno, Poland. The town of Sompolno is situated about one hundred and five miles west of Warsaw, Poland. In 1900 Sompolno was a town of about two or three thousand people. German farmers and laborers had begun moving into this area in the 1790's. During the 1890's the Russian-German border was only a few miles west of Smolnik.

In the 1890's Smolnik was populated by five German families: Eichorst, Voelke, Sanders, Wilhelm Arndt and Wilhelm Neumann. Wilhelm Arndt was the brother of my mother, Wilhelmina. There were also about nine Polish families living in the village at that time.

Twenty-five or thirty other such villages surrounded Sompolno. These villages had a large German population in addition to the native Polish population. The villages were located as near to each other as three quarters of a mile and there was a village on every one or two sections of open land.

The soil in the Smolnik area was fairly sandy and not very suitable for farming. There were many meadows underlain with peat, sometimes to a depth of thirty feet. The peat was very essential to the people of the area as it was their major source of fuel. A special machine that turned like a drill was used to mine the peat. Father used a spade to cut the peat into pieces the size of a large brick (about two inches by twelve inches by twenty-four inches). These bricks were stacked in "Stooks" (twenty or so bricks per stook) and allowed to stand for two or more weeks in the sun until the peat was completely dry. The peat bricks were then stacked in piles that were five or six feet high, six feet wide and twenty feet long. The peat was used for fuel for our home use (fireplace, stove and kiln). Father also hauled the peat to Sompolno during the winter to sell at the market, generally making three trips per week.

The land in the Smolnik area was split into many small parcels, and most of the farmers were able to own a variety of land ranging from sandy soil to meadows to good farmland. My father owned land that was scattered in as many as fifteen different parcels, including several meadows. His total ownership was about thirty morgen or about sixty acres. The land owners paid taxes to the government for the land, and the government in turn paid the church and school costs.

My parents generally had a number of animals of various types on the farm - twelve to fifteen cattle (cows and calves), three horses (a stallion and two mares) and two colts which were raised each year and then sold, two or three pigs (they were fed to a weight of five or six hundred pounds and then slaughtered), two or three dozen chickens, several geese and ducks, some cats, and generally one or two dogs. The dogs were usually kept chained in the yard for watchdog purposes to frighten away potential thieves. The animals were not branded.

Thievery was a major problem in this area of Poland as many poor people stole to be able to survive. The majority of the barns and granaries were located on the opposite side of the road from the houses, therefore the farmers were fairly susceptible to theft. As a result the men of the village took turns standing guard duty every night. The guard was armed with a club as his only weapon. My father never had too much of a problem with thieves because all of his buildings were in one fenced yard.

The main grain crop that was grown on the land was rye. This was due to the sandy soil. My father also grew a couple of acres of wheat (for our own use for bread), barley (for coffee and for soup), and flax (to make linen). Some of the rye was for our own use for flour and the remainder was sold at the open farmers' market in Sompolno. It was sold to Jewish merchants who shipped it to Kolo and Kunjin.

The land was cultivated using a hand "walking" plough with one iron plough share. The plough was pulled by two horses. The grain was seeded in the fall of the year by the "hand broadcast" method. Some of the harvest was always put aside as seed grain for the next year.

Sauerkraut

A most interesting time of the year for me was the time that my parents made sauerkraut. My father had a one hundred gallon wood (oak) barrel for this purpose. It was about four feet high. The cabbage was cut with a "kraut cutter" which was about eighteen inches wide. Pickling salt was used to promote fermentation. The entire operation required a number of people so the neighbors would take turns helping each other. Because of the volume of sauerkraut that was made, two men were kept busy compressing the cabbage in the wood barrel. They did this by walking barefoot on the cabbage. I can remember my mother supervising them as they washed their feet in a wash tub. She made them put on clean clothes before she would allow them to enter the barrel. My father's brother, Martin, and a Polish farmer named Kuzadlovsky were usually the two men in the sauerkraut barrel. My father's job seemed to be that of supervisor. This apparently included the task of carrying the vodka bottle and a glass and regularly pouring drinks of vodka for all the workers.

A batch of sauerkraut of this magnitude was generally made in one evening. The sauerkraut barrel was kept in the house all winter and the sauerkraut was used regularly. In Poland my mother prepared sauerkraut a number of ways. She cooked it as a vegetable or she used it to make a soup with potatoes and bacon. On most occasions she cooked the sauerkraut with pork. This was a meal that was generally served on Sundays. Quite often the only meat that was cooked with the sauerkraut was the skin from the pig.

Superstition

The people were very superstitious. Many stories would be told regarding ghosts and witches. Belief in witchcraft was also common. There was one superstition that related to people dying. They believed that if someone close to you, such as an uncle or an aunt, was dying there would be the sound of a knock on your door. When you answered the door, there would be nobody at the door. This was the person's way of letting you know that they were dying. Some of the people believed this very strongly.

Another superstition involved the baptism of children. If the pastor made a mistake at the baptism of a child, this child was believed to be doomed for life. The child would grow up to be a person who crawled through the keyholes to bother people at night. The person who crawled through the keyholes "rode" on the bodies of people who were sleeping in the house and this resulted in the person having nightmares. The doomed person would always leave the house before sunrise.

As a general rule, "when in doubt, don't throw it out".

THE LANGUAGE OF GENEALOGY - REVISITED

By Robert E. Baines - A.G.S. #229
Lethbridge Branch

Relatively Speaking (Vol. 15, No. 2, May 1987) recently published a list which included an acronym, single words, or several words combined followed by an entry of explanation or definition. For the genealogists doing research in England or where its common-law was or is the rule of law, some of these items have some further elements to be considered. I've listed three of these in descending interest rather than alphabetical order so that there is a greater possibility of a reader at least reading more than the first line.

Common-law marriage. Once upon a time in England, there was a fair maiden who was very beautiful and her handsome Prince Charming who had gone through a form of marriage ceremony that was not performed by a Parson or Minister of the Church of England. Was their union legal and recognized by the state? A true common-law marriage, a word that has now come to be used as an euphemism for illicit cohabitation, was an actual legal and lawful marriage. Such a marriage had to have had a marriage ceremony but as to whether it was a valid marriage often meant turning to the courts for a decision. In Ontario in the early 19th century for a common-law marriage to be performed, both parties to the marriage contract must have resided more than 18 miles from a Parson or Minister of the Church of England.

A common-law marriage to be terminated prior to the death of one of the spouses required a judicial judgment of divorce or a decree of annulment. Just packing one's bag and departing was not enough!

Until the proclamation of The Marriage Act on July 1, 1833, except during the Cromwell commonwealth (1653 -1660), and an exception for Quakers and Jews, the sole and exclusive body concerned with the marriage ceremony and the recording of such marriage was the Established Church of England.

Most common-law marriages involved members of the Church of England who, while beyond the borders of England, had a marriage ceremony and contract performed by a person, (other than an authorized clergyman of the Church of England) who, by local law, was authorized to perform marriages in the jurisdiction where the marriage was performed.

Common-law marriages recognized by the English court system include: 1. a marriage performed by a Roman Catholic Priest of an English couple who were members of the Church of England, in a British Colony where there was no Established Church; 2. the marriage of English settlers in New South Wales, performed by a Presbyterian minister using the wording of the marriage ceremony of the Church of England and; 3. a marriage performed in the composite form of Jewish and Chinese custom in Singapore between a Jew and a Non-Christian Chinese, both British subjects.

In England for there to be a recognized common-law marriage there must have been the following elements. Firstly, a contract of marriage; Secondly, the partners must be legally capable of making a marriage contract, i.e. of age, no existing spouse and not of the prohibited degrees of consanguinity; Thirdly, no Established Church clergyman authorized to perform marriages is readily available to perform the marriage ceremony.

At common-law, upon certain conditions being met, there is a presumption of marriage for the purpose of legitimizing offspring and for the devolution of estates. This more closely fits the definition set out in the recent publication.

The Courts in at least fourteen states of the United States have deemed the legal status of marriage through what is usually a set number of years of cohabitation and have called these unions common-law marriages. Most of these cases were deciding Workers' Compensation spousal and surviving children's rights.

Included for illustration is a recording of a common-law marriage performed on the 20th of October 1828 at Brock in the Province of Ontario.

Since the proclamation of the Marriage Act in 1833 it is impossible to contract a common-law marriage in England. Similar legislation in Canada makes common-law marriages not possible at the present time.

Codicil. Where can an addition be a subtraction? In a codicil of course! A Codicil is an addition to a will which may restrain, or revoke, alter, qualify, subtract from, add to, modify or explain provisions of a will.

Chattel. "The Law of Property had the reputation of being one of the most difficult branches of English Law and its reputation is not undeserved."¹ Chattels are classified as choses in possession and choses in action. Choses in possession are basically goods that one can enjoy by taking possession of them. Choses in action are INTANGIBLE movables such as debts, patents, copyright, commercial paper, documents of title such as bills of lading and warehouse receipts, goodwill, funds on deposit, and trust funds.

Growing crops annually produced by the labour of cultivation called emblements, are considered goods and as such may be sold prior to the crop being severed from the soil.

Thus a completely new Society was formed and held its first meeting with 105 in attendance. Mrs. Curry is to be the Journal Editor and welcomes overseas contributions.

NEWS RELEASE

NEW FACILITY RECOMMENDED FOR NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF CANADA

In Ottawa on December 8, 1987, a report was tabled in the House of Commons by the Standing Committee on Communications and Culture, recommending the construction of a new facility to accommodate the National Archives of Canada.

"The unacceptable environmental conditions in which archival holdings and government records are kept accelerate the process of deterioration of Canada's archival heritage and, in some cases, have threatened their survival," said Committee Chairman Jim Edwards.

The committee report presents three major findings:

1. The available storage space does not meet acceptable and recognized standards for the preservation of our national heritage.
2. The Archives are short of space to store valuable archival holdings and government records. As a result, it cannot accept manuscripts, collections and other valuable archival documents.
3. The archival laboratories, offices and storage space are spread throughout 14 different buildings in the National Capital Region; which increases operating costs and reduces public access to archival collections.

The report documents incidents of serious damage to valuable collections caused by water leaks and flooding. Also National Archives employees working in the West Memorial Building had to vacate it 12 times this summer because of excessive heat and humidity. This building is used to store valuable collections of manuscripts, films, etc. Fluctuations in heat and humidity cause considerable damage to archival documents.

The Committee therefore recommends that priority be given to the construction of a new facility which would meet the needs of the National Archives of Canada until the year 2010. (The Chairman is Jim Edwards, M.P., Edmonton South, P.C.)
