PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The Challenge of Leading AGS for the coming year was given to me at the annual general meeting, April 24th 1993, when I was elected president. My thanks to all for your support.

I would like to thank Larry Clark for his leadership over the last two years.

A new year, a new challenge, for a new executive. I present a few of my ideas for action in the near future.

1. By January of 1994, the staff resource position should be in place.
2. Through "Relatively Speaking" magazine every branch will inform our membership of the activities in their branch and vital information from executive meetings will be reported.
3. We will restructure the executive committee to better utilize our people resources.
4. With the down turn in government grants the finance committee will explore all avenues to insure revenue for AGS and its branches.
5. The membership at large must tell the executive who, and what, they want to see at our annual conferences.

Every organization works best when all its members participate. I welcome all communication from our members so please contact anyone on the executive if you have any comments.

Respectfully,

Tom Trace,
President, AGS

EDITOR'S MESSAGE

Judith Gourlay Bradley

I am sorry for the lateness of this issue. Thank you to the put together committee for your patience. Due to a problem with my computer program, I have been unable to send this issue off to Edmonton as early as I should. I am sure you will find the contents well worth the wait!

Once again, RS contains many articles, and I am know there is something of great interest just for you! Be sure to look over the long query section (pg 47). You just may have the key to someone's puzzle.

My appreciation to the very many members who continue to contribute to our publication. Of special interest this issue are the Earl B. Sutherland Diary, a near 100 year old diary written during the Spanish American War, (pg 60) and Look, There's A Graveyard!, a story many of us will identify with (pg 57). (I know when we are planning our family holiday, if I dare to mention a city or town I'd like to stop at, someone is sure to ask, "Is there a graveyard there?")

FONS (pg 54) sounds like an interesting service for many. If you have subscribed to this, or if you do in the future, please pass on your thoughts and experiences with this database. The Master Data Bank Update (pg 53) may be of use to many of you, and glance through What's New In The Library (pg 65). We have a well stocked library, and it is there for your use, so take advantage of it.

Wishing you all a wonderful summer season. May you have time to share with your family, both near and far, but more importantly, may you have time for YOU.

ENJOY!

BRANCH BITS

...bits of information from the membership to you

This space in Relatively Speaking is set aside for each branch to submit information of interest to our general membership. It is hoped that all branches will contribute on a regular basis to this column. Members at Large may also contribute. The space may be used to advertise workshops or speakers you have planned, services or publications that are available through your branch to members of AGS, or research tips you would like to pass along. Please forward your contribution for this column marked "BRANCH BITS" to Relatively Speaking. Thank you to Edmonton and Lethbridge Branches for their contributions to this issue.

PROTESTATION RETURNS Family Tree Magazine, January 1992 contained an interesting article by Susan Pearl. Each man who signed this document was "declaring their belief in three things; firstly, the Church of England, secondly, allegiance to the king and thirdly, support for the rights and privileges of parliament." Susan Pearl advises that the printed returns are listed in a Society of Genealogists' leaflet entitled The Protestation Returns of 1641-2: A Checklist of Printed and Other Sources (Leaflet No.8) available on request for 20p plus postage from The Society of Genealogists, 14 Charterhouse Buildings, Goswell Road, London EC1M 7BA.

COPYSCREEN provides clearer copies of photographs. Available from Behensen Graphic Supplies Ltd 1016 Richards St., Vancouver, BC.

The town clerk can provide information from town cemetery records for an individual known to be buried there.

Funeral directors, given basic information (name, death date), are very helpful in providing information.

The local paper often will photocopy an obituary. It provides further family information.

The local history book for an area may have the family story. Check with your library to obtain the desired history book by inter-library loan.

Thank you to Ruth HANNA-FATH for these tips.

DID YOU KNOW that an ordinary 75 watt black light bulb in any light will cast light directly on the material and will bring out dim copy?

MASTER DATA BANK UPDATE*by Peter Goutbeck

It appears not everyone is as yet informed about the AGS Master Data Bank Index on microfiche, printed in 1992. This 133 000 name microfiche is available at all AGS Branches as they appear on the back cover of this publication. Also this microfiche is available at the Provincial Archives in Edmonton, and the Glenbow Museum in Calgary as well as the Family Histories Society in Calgary.

While most of the names on this microfiche are from cemetery burials, it does contain names from eleven other sources such as newspaper obituaries, birth, death, and marriage records. A few local history books that have been indexed are also included in the microfiche.

Many more names have been added to the Master Data Bank since the publishing of this microfiche. Anybody wishing to contribute a list of names, be it from a cemetery or some other type of record, is asked to write to the Master Data Bank of the AGS.

The following are recent publications of the Master Data Bank:

Item	Cost includes postage
133 000 name index on microfiche	$25.00
Every name index to Gibbons History Book	12.50
How to find a Cemetery Publication	3.25
Czar and Sardis Lutheran Cemeteries	5.75
Master Data Bank Index Vol - 4, 1990	22.50

FONS
FAMILY ORIGIN NAME SURVEY

FOR THE FIRST TIME - COMPUTERIZED ACCESS TO THE RICH RECORDS OF THE MIDDLE AGES

FONS is a non-profit organization aimed at making accessible to family historians the vast mediaeval record archives of the British Isles. To this end we have embarked on a programme which would ultimately produce a computerized database containing all surviving record material from the period before 1600 (with the exception of parish register baptisms and marriages 1538-1600, which should eventually be covered by the International Genealogical Index).

Information from the database will be made available to individuals or groups registering with us at a small basic fee for each entry. Registration and life membership costs £5, and is permanent. Each registered user may then choose to receive a specified, limited, number of entries from the database as material comes in, at their own discretion. When this limit has been reached, each user can choose to continue membership to a new limit of their own choosing. Funds raised in this way will be devoted to the enlargement of the database.

We have already assembled a large amount of mediaeval material, which is constantly being added into the database. The material is diverse, including direct transcripts from manuscripts, printed material (including copies of originals now lost) and record calendars.

This service is particularly suitable to One-Name Studies and for family historians interested in relatively unusual surnames. Where an entry gives only an abstract or a calendar entry, we can advise as to how to obtain copies, transcripts and translations of the original document.

THIS SERVICE ALLOWS THE SURNAME-COLLECTOR, ONE-NAME STUDY ORGANIZATION OR FAMILY HISTORIAN THE UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY TO PLUG IN TO AN ONGOING MAJOR RESEARCH PROGRAMME, INTO RECORDS WHICH ARE NORMALLY QUITE INACCESSIBLE (IN THAT THEY ARE MOSTLY WRITTEN IN ABBREVIATED LATIN OR NORMAN-FRENCH IN VERY DIFFICULT HANDS) AT A NOMINAL COST.

Non-Register Archives 1600-1858

We also have exclusive access to the archives of a major genealogical research organization, including will abstracts, will lists and other name lists (poll books, land tax assessments, muster rolls etc) from the period 1600 to 1858. This database is being enlarged continuously, and computerized. To help raise the finance for the main FONS project, a similar service is being made available from this "later records" database: again, registration and lifetime membership costs just £5, and entries for your surname of interest are provided at a small cost per item.

FONS cont

When FONS first advertised this service, just over a year ago, we anticipated that the greatest demand would be for the pre-1600 sources: in fact, the miscellaneous material covered from 1600 to 1858 has proved very useful to many researchers, and we have found our indexes, unexpectedly, being used as a main research tool.

THE BARRETT REGISTER

"The Barrett Register" is a collection of Barrett ancestral lines submitted by persons from Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, The United States, England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, and Canada, who have Barrett ancestors. Some submissions show one Barrett ancestor but others indicate successful research back ten or twelve generations. The Register was started in 1980 and presently there are 732 ancestral lines included in the collection. Each ancestral line, printed on a special form in order to provide continuity in the collection, gives pertinent details of each ancestor, information about their spouses as well as a listing of their siblings.

When an ancestral line is received it is indexed by geographical place names. The place names are recorded in an index along with the name and address of the contributor. The new line is then cross-referenced with all other lines in the file which have ancestors living in the same geographical places. The contributor is then advised as to the names and addresses of others registered with ancestors in the same locations. Copies of similar ancestral lines are sent to both parties so that they can compare their records and make contact with each other for further research.

Many times a new registrant will receive several generations of information by simply registering their own Barrett ancestors. One outstanding case was when a lady from Australia asked for information about her ancestors only to receive four generations of information as well as the name of a distant cousin in England and a distant cousin in the State of Washington, USA, that she had never know of before.

To augment "The Barrett Register" a collection of Barrett records is maintained which are an aid in answering queries. Over 1100 names and addresses of correspondents, listed alphabetically and numerically are included in the index for the Barrett register. The register lists 2477 place names where Barrett ancestors have been found and a total of 3409 references for the place names listed. There is no cost involved to registering one's ancestral line. Introductory information and registration forms are available. For information about the Register or to register your Barrett ancestors, write to: Dan E. Barrett, 179-3033 Townline Road, Stevensville, Ontario, Canada, L0S 1S1.

LOOK, THERE'S A GRAVEYARD!

by Anne Baines #229

Although being a genealogist may mean burning the midnight oil, it doesn't usually mean working the graveyard shift, but it does mean working many shifts in the graveyard and, in addition, spending vacation time visiting cemeteries. Picture the face of your non-genealogist friend upon hearing how you spent your summer touring graveyards. He probably doesn't realize the excitement there is in packing the whole family in the car and driving over county roads in search of that special place and spending the day in the open air at one with nature, etc. Over the years the Baines family has participated in recording graveyards both here in Southern Alberta for the A.G.S. and in searching for ancestors' names in graveyards in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

The Bradwell, Saskatchewan cemetery brings back some of the most vivid memories of cemetery recording. Mum, Dad, Grandma and four children aged nine years down to three years participated in this memorable experience. Somehow "Oldest Son" managed to evade the vacation.

After spending the night in Saskatoon the family was packed in the car and travelled out to Bradwell to search for the graveyard. As it wasn't readily apparent which clump of trees concealed the target, a stop was made at the only place in town that looked like it had any movement at all - the local bar - where the bartender gave directions in a matter of fact manner as if it were an everyday occurrence to give directions rather than serve drinks.

The family descended on the cemetery and the mosquitoes descended on the family, especially the three-year old who ended up with huge welts all over his body. Fortunately nine-year-old had his lucky rabbit's foot with him or it could have been worse. Maybe the cemetery would have been infested with bears rather than mosquitoes. With haste we copied down the inscriptions we needed and hustled to the car.

Because it was relatives' tombstone inscriptions we were copying it was easy to be quick. Did you ever notice that the inscriptions of non-relatives tend to be much longer than those of relatives. Sometimes in transcribing a cemetery, a tombstone is found that has huge amounts of data including all the children's names. Why would all the children's names be listed? Possibly it is because parents often have to list all the children's names before seizing upon the correct one so this listing of names is heard so often the children think this is important information and add it to the tombstone. No such luck in this family. Did you ever find your great-grandmother's grave and find only a footstone with the word "Mother" on it? Anyone entering information from tombstones of this family into the computer will appreciate the briefness of the inscriptions. There is no need to even use the remarks column.

This wasn't the end to the Bradwell cemetery story. On reaching Saskatoon it was found that the lucky rabbit's foot was missing and no amount of consolation, bribery, or promises of another rabbit's foot would bring calmness to the family. No other lucky rabbit's foot would do. The next morning found the family back in the Bradwell cemetery looking for the lucky rabbit's foot and ignoring all the tombstones with their information about those gone on before. This expedition was a success and the lucky rabbit's foot was reunited with its happy owner.

Grandma was horrified on one occasion when a young grandson took her to a tombstone and explained that this was the kind of tombstone he wanted when he died. Children always know who to ask when they want something. Grandma hoped she wouldn't be around when he needed his tombstone.

One of the members of the Lethbridge Branch has a big bus converted to a camper and this has accompanied the Lethbridge Branch members on many of their cemetery recording excursions. For some reason not many cemeteries come equipped with a bathroom and the biffy at the back of the camper often comes in handy.

In the summer of 1991 several branch members took off in the bus and spent several days recording cemeteries in Southern Alberta. If you don't count the mosquitoes, the sunburns, the dusty roads and the roads that were not joined by a bridge across the river it was actually a very relaxing interlude. Several cemeteries were completed in the daytime and the evenings were spent in campgrounds as well as movie theatres.

One small cemetery that was recorded on this occasion was in the middle of a field surrounded by a barb-wire fence with no gate. It was overgrown with bushes, trees and underbrush. Two of our members crawled through the fence and pushed through the foliage and copied the inscriptions. When the task was nearly completed one of the recorders noticed bear sign. Luckily the bear didn't return before the group retreated. One wonders what would have happened had the bear been there at the time. Perhaps there would have been two less members of A.G.S. - one swallowed by the bear and the other tangled in the barb wire while frantically trying to get out. Luckily both lived to record another cemetery.

When the children were little they could spy a cemetery wherever they went.

"Look, there's a graveyard. Shouldn't we stop?"

They didn't realize that we were only interested in Southern Alberta cemeteries or cemeteries that held the remains of our own relatives.

Somewhere along the way this youthful zeal for graveyards has disappeared. Last summer when the branch was going out on the annual cemetery recording ordeal, I mean excursion, all five of the children (the youngest now sixteen) were invited to come and help.

The oldest flat-out declined. He had been in so many cemeteries when he was little that he never needed to go again. At first it sounded more hopeful with the second. He allowed he would go, but added, "only if there is free beer". Being he doesn't drink, and he knew his mother wouldn't be involved in serving beer, free or otherwise, I guess he felt pretty safe.

The next invitation was battled with great logic.

"As soon as you get the cemetery recorded someone else will die and be buried there and so the recording will be outdated. Wait until everybody dies so you can have a complete recording."

It was no use trying to out-think this boy.

One boy said he would come if he couldn't find anything better to do. Sleeping in on Saturday morning was definitely rated higher than cemetery recording.

Some day, perhaps, some of these children will become interested in their ancestors and get involved in the great search. They may even become enthused about graveyards again.

By next summer we, too, will have forgotten the mosquitoes, the sunburn, the rain whose beginning co-incides with the arrival of the branch members at a cemetery, and any other annoyances that have already been forgotten, and remember the great excitement that comes from looking in a cemetery recording done by some group in a faraway place and finding that bit of information that takes us back one more generation and keeps us involved in researching our family.
