Letter from the Staff

Two letters arrived since the last issue was mailed that said essentially the same thing. They pointed out a very important discrepancy that occurs time and time again not only in our journal but in many others. Not everyone who reads the journal is familiar with the place names mentioned. They may live far away or the name may be an old name no longer in use. To many of us they are common names, Bayfield and LaPointe (Wisconsin), but for someone who has spent their entire life in California or Washington, they do not know whether we are talking about Minnesota, somewhere in Canada or some other place. We will try to make place names when mentioned easier to locate by at least listing the state or similar reference. We hope that other editors will also take note of this and try to do the same.

We do not claim to be perfect nor do we claim we ever will be, we will however keep trying to improve. While we are on the subject of periodicals and difficulty in realizing what is going on, we will list here some of our pet peeves. Why on earth would anyone use Roman numerals? It becomes obvious as you track a publication that sooner or later someone botches the order of the letters used in Roman Numerals. I believe there are at least two that we receive that are currently incorrect. Another problem comes with periodicals that are the Spring, Summer, Fall and Winter issues. Probably the biggest problem with these is the winter issue, because one editor makes it the first issue of the year and the next makes it the last issue of the year. We receive newsletters that say "winter 1995" and others that say "winter 1996" and they arrive at the same time. A suggested cure for this if you must use seasons is to call it "winter 1995-1996." Next on the list is those that list only a month and year, this is all right if somewhere on the title page it states that there are 4 issues per year issued in March, June, September and December or something similar. The last problem that comes along in cataloging are those where there are no page numbers.

As we said we are not perfect and there are probably those who will say, "what about your journal with it's sequential numbering." The issue numbers just keep growing and the page numbers are getting awful high. But I'll tell you this, you will be able to tell without a doubt if you are missing an issue, it will not take all day to figure it out. We are using seasons, but with only three issues a year, you will not find a winter issue.

I will devote the rest of this letter to query suggestions. In nearly every periodical we pick up (ours too) we find those queries that read something like: "I am looking for anything/everything on so and so." To make it short, I must be truthful. The query committee spends far less time on this type of query than on a query that is specific. "Need marriage date & place & parents of so & so who married so & so about 1823. They had a son John who married" You should be exact as to what you require, if you really want everything, write it all out. We do however suggest that you start with a simple question and see what you get. If you are able to give some clue, that too is very helpful.

We would rather see a member submit three short and to the point queries than to submit one query asking for everything. The shorter and to the point query is much more likely to get an answer from the query committee, or from another member, than one which is either vague in what it is you need or goes on and on with multiple questions. We are more than willing to run more than one query in an issue so long as space permits. Six pages are allotted for queries and so far that seems adequate.

Members are welcome and encouraged to submit original works to be considered for publication in the Journal. The publications committee will determine if and when an article should be included. If you submit an article, you will hear from us prior to your article being published. There are incentives for authors.

Baptismal Records, 1835-1887, Kept at LaPointe & Bayfield, Indian Missions, By Iraneus Frederic BARAGA

The following records are extracted from the Parish records of the Indian Mission done by Father Iraneus Frederic BARAGA. All entries were made by Father Iraneus Frederic BARAGA unless otherwise stated in the entry. Please remember to check each entry closely to make sure you do not overlook the individual you are searching for as many of the Indian names are very hard to read on the microfilm. The entries begin with the date 28 July 1835 & end with the date 15 Dec 1887. Records extracted from microfilm by John L. SCHADE. The records were microfilmed by State Historical Society of Wisconsin as "Baptismal Records of Father Baraga" & are on microfilm reel P82-2352. Marriage & burial records remain in the custody of the parish, Holy Family at Bayfield, Wisconsin. It is a good idea to see what families participated during the visit of the priest, as relatives often came together.

Dictionary of History of the Canadians and the French Metis of the West (Part 2)

In this issue we begin the English translations of the histories of the individuals from Dictionnaire Historique Des Canadiens Et des Métis Français de l'Ouest - 1908 - by A.-G. Morice, O.M.I. We welcome readers documented corrections and/or additions to these histories. This is a computer translation.

- ADAM, John-Baptist. Metis French-Indian. Served as interpreter for Sir John FRANKLIN. After the incredible dangers that he encountered in the frozen plains of the north, and weeks that passed without eating anything but a worthless lichen from rock, he was saved by the arrival of a band of Indians when he was near death from hunger. In December 1821, he left the service of the explorer to join the tribe of Yellow Knives (Coteaux-Jaunes).
- ADAM, Joseph. Porter of the courier of the Isle-à-la-Crosse at Lake Athabasca, with J.-B. CHARBONNEAU (q.v.) to 1820. He had to undergo all incidents, fatigues, famine, etc., common to these Activities in the north. One day he was accosted by a savage that demanded his powder and lead. He was wise to have given them to him, thus saving his life.
- ADHÉMAR, Jacques. French-Canadian. Was the first free trader at Lake Népigon (1799-1804). He had to withstand the competition of the Companies of Hudson Bay, North West, and X Y, that was under the direction of the famous explorer Alex. MacKENZIE. The consequence was a ruinous waste to all, not counting the demoralization of Indians by the liquors from the fort, and the means by which they sought to earn them. After having moved to the Red River, where he enjoyed good business, he committed to the service of the North West Company. A fort situated 7 miles to the east of Portage la Prairie long carried his name.
- ALLARD, O.M.I., Rév. P. Joachim-Albert. Born 30 January 1837 at Saint-Joachim of Chateauguay, near Montréal. Having completed his philosophical and classic studies at the college of Sulpiciens in Montréal in 1862, he began his theology at the great seminary of the same city, and was ordained a priest by Mgr GUIGUES, bishop of Bytown (Ottawa), 23 September 1865. The following 6 October, Mgr BOURGET appointed him curate of Berthier; then eleven months later he departed for the Red River in the company of the venerated Mgr TACHE (17 September 1866). He arrived there 13 October of the same year, and five days after he began his apprenticeship at Red River and Portage la Prairie Oblats of Saint-Boniface. 4 November 1867, he made his perpetual vow in the cathedral of this city, between the hands of Mgr TACHE, O.M.I.

After having passed a year as professor at the college of Saint-Boniface, the new Oblat was appointed (October 1868) priest of the mission of Saint-Charles of which he had the sideboard since his oblation. He remained there until 1876, except for some weeks each Summer, when he visited Catholics of Péguis, Fort Alexandre, Lake Winnipeg, Portage-du-Rat, Fort Francis, Lac Seul (Lone Lake), etc., localities that were then visited only once each year by the missionary. In July 1876, P. ALLARD moved his residence to Fort Alexandre, he aptitudes for governing, she was soon after elected superior general. Then, in order to work only on religion, in line with the constitutions of her community, she was sent to missions in British Columbia in April 1858. (V. Sacre-Coeur, Sr M. du). Affable and naturally filled with optimism, she was a great help to her companions. She was always ready to help in matters. Because of her duties as assistant and bursar of her community she was almost continually at Victoria. Nevertheless, she was in Quamichan on Vancouver Island, when she died, 25 May 1898.

ANNANCE, François-Noel. - Metis. He was employed by the Hudson Bay Company at Fort Langley, on the lower Fraser (British Columbia), when sir George SIMPSON arrived there 10 October 1828 following his great trip across the breadth of the continent. Five years later, he was at Norway House (June 1833), always in the employ of clerks for the same commercial body. From there he worked, in company of Dr R. KING, with the expedition of Captain BACK, to the Mackenzie River. The following 28 August, he left Fort Chippewayan, on Lake Athabasca, in charge of a boat brigade loaded with provisions for members of the expedition. KING professed a lot of esteem for him.

ARCAND, Joseph. - One of the principal Metis that participated in the revolt of 1885. He was one of the delegates of Gabriel DUMONT siding with savage tribes to make known their view in the dispute. After the shooting of Batoche, he was condemned to a year of detention.

AUBRY, Francois-Xavier. - Famous trader and explorer. Born at Maskinongé on 4 December 1824. He left home for the purpose of becoming independent from the control of his parents. He traveled to Saint-Louis, then to New Mexico, Saint-Peter, Prairie-Du Chien, etc., seeking everywhere the fortune that was slow to come his way. He returned to Saint-Louis, and having obtained goods on credit, which he was going to sell at Santa-Fé, after crossing an infested territory of the most fearsome savages of the American Union. On the way, he was able to profit from his goods and supplies, and soon after obtained a supply of goods valued at $40,000.

He was long famous in the United States for a race that showed well his indomitable energy. He contracted to carry the important dispatches of Fort Union, New-Mexico, to Fort Independance, on the Missouri River, a distance of approximately eight hundred miles. He was promised a thousand piastres (Spanish dollars) if he made it in seven days; he made it in five days and sixteen hours. But six horses in his service died at the task, and near the end of the journey another had given so much that he had to dismount it. This furious race made him the talk of the day.

AUBRY continuously increased his commercial operations. One day he bought for $130,000 all of the goods contained in a shop at Saint-Louis. This quantity appeared insufficient to him, he therefore added another $170,000 of items. He usually resold his goods over an area of approximately a thousand miles from Saint-Louis to New Mexico. He dispatched them in two annual caravans of 100 to 130 wagons managed by 260 to 300 men.

In a single expedition he lost the considerable fortune that he had amassed. Savages had set fire to the prairie, a productive though impractical way, to find animals. AUBRY then went by a roundabout road; but in the valley of the Purgatory River, his caravan was attacked by a steady dreadful hurricane of snow (blizzard), that made it impossible to advance. There were 400 men, 1,200 mules and an immense quantity of goods subject to a imminent loss at the foot of the Rocky Mountains. After having dispatched several messengers to the governor of New Mexico, and despite tempting financial offers that he had made, he had a change of mind. He had to wade several miles in snow too thick to allow his advance. He left for Santa Fe in the morning and he was going to wake the great Spanish Governor and persuade him to lend him his troops to assist with his situation. They could nevertheless take only a part of his cargo, but his men were saved. This was for him a loss of $90,000.

Not being discouraged by this setback, AUBRY resumed his operations; for the purpose of facilitating his commercial expeditions, he sought with obstinacy and realized the discovery of a shorter route between Santa Fe and Independence, which today bears his name. In addition, he expanded his trade to California, exploring in 1833, a road by Albuquerque, at the head of a party whose exploits increased his prestige in the eyes of Americans. Many attacks by savages put his life in danger. Most perilous was that of 14 August. His expedition was attacked while they were breaking camp. Sixty Indians, supported by two hundred warriors hidden behind hills, descended upon him armed with clubs, and producing a rain of arrows in his ranks. Despite what he had already seen, AUBRY thought for a moment that his last hour had come. Nevertheless he put his eighteen companions on a line of defense and urged them by voice and by his acts. After a furious struggle, the savages seeing that thirty of theirs had bitten the dust, and a far greater number were injured, abandoned the attack. Twelve of his men had been wounded by enemy projectiles, although none mortally, and had himself received not less than six injuries.

On 27 August, he was in Apache country, where he stayed happily with a small number who, while giving him a lot of defiance, did not refuse to interact with him. They worked for him in return for some pieces of gold. He observed that they knew, if only a little, the value of the precious metal that they used to manufacture balls for their guns when lead was not available. This expedition, was made at his expense, although in a useful public purpose. He received unanimous accolades of the American press. It confirmed his taste for explorations of the more savage regions, and called him a real pathfinder.

This was nevertheless his loss. A certain Major R.-H. WEIGHTMAN, agent for a powerful railroad company, took umbrage of the high reputation that the Canadian had acquired. One day when a company a little bit too merry was to celebrate the return of AUBRY, the American provoked him with cruel words, then threw the contents of his glass in his eyes, at the same time that he plunged a dagger in his heart. This was on 20 August 1855, at Santa Fe, the capital of New Mexico.

AUBRY enjoyed such reputation in Saint Louis that his name was given to three magnificent boats, that made service between this city and New Orleans. Several roads carry his name, and a city in Arizona is called Aubry City, and in Colorado a military post bears the name of Fort Aubry.

AUGER, Joseph. - Canadian in the service of the North West Company. In 1793 he was in charge of Fort Souris, close to Qu Appelle. He had for his neighbor Donald McKAY, who was in charge of the establishment of the Hudson Bay Company. The competition of the two traders resulted in difficulties, a consequence of which AUGER tried to put an end to and was successful.

Canadian-American JOURNAL of History & Genealogy for Canadian, French & Metis Study

- AUGER, Pierre. Employee of the North West Company. In 1799 he was stationed at the Upper Red River.
- AYOTTE, Joseph. Employee of a Mr. LIVINGSTON, in the extreme north, this Englishman explored the country to discover rich deposits. He was killed by Eskimos (1802).
- AZURE, Joseph. Served the North West Company in 1804 employed as a guide for the Red River District. In 1804-05, he accompanied F.-A. LAROCQUE (q.v.) on his trip to the source of the Missouri River.
- BARRIEAU (or BÉRIAULT), François. Companion of Sir Alex. MacKENZIE, in his expedition of 1789, to the mouth of the river that now bears his name.
- BASINET (or BAZINET), John-Baptist. The lieutenant of MALHIOT (q.v.) at Lake Flambeau, Wisconsin, where he served as interpreter in 1804-05.
- BATOCHE. The sole Metis that was killed in the battle of the Grenouillère. (V. Bourassa, M.)
- BATOCHE dit LETENDRE, Xavier. An influential Metis. Born in 1841 in the vicinity of the Red River, he married there and resided there until the uprising of 1869; after which he established on the Saskatchewan. It is in his house that the French Colonel was killed in 1885 (V. Letendre, L.). His name was given to a now historic locality, of which he was the first inhabitant. This place was originally called Traverse de la Riviere du Gros-Ventre, in English Belly River. Mr. LETENDRE opened there (1871-72) a great shop to accommodate the Metisse population of this part of the Saskatchewan: fifty families, of approximately six hundred souls. For a long time he lodged the Catholic missionary who was there without residence nor a church. He passed the winter of the rebellion (1884-85) at the Carotte River, where he worked in the fur trade. Then, after turmoils, he retired on land eighteen miles from Batoche. He was successful, and possessed approximately three hundred head of horned animals and several horses.
- have immortalized in their narration under the nickname of the l'Assiniboine, because he lived his childhood with the tribe of that name. First employed in the service of the Hudson Bay Company, he had to leave it, having killed, in a moment of drunkenness, a Metis of bad reputation. He lived in the outdoors in the vicinity of Fort Pitt when English travelers hired him, with his woman and his son, to guide them to the Rocky Mountain breadth and to the banks of the Pacific. Subject of terror for the ineffable Mr. O'B., he was a very great help to two Englishmen who would have certainly died of hunger and starvation without him. He moved to Victoria, on Vancouver Island, where he saw for the very first time the wonders of civilization. He then returned to Kamloops, and he passed there the winter of 1863-1864 in the service of the Hudson Bay Company. The next year he went to the great prairies of his native country.

- BAZILE, Charles. One of the pioneers of Saint-Paul, Minnesota, born at Nicolet on 5 November 1812. He moved first to Prairie-du-Chien, Wis., then to Saint Paul (MN) where he is established in the autumn of 1843. During a certain time he was an owner of land in part of this city, he gave a gift to the State, of the land, known by the name of Capitol Square. Had death not stopped him, he would have easily become a millionaire.
- Chicago. He was the son of John-Baptist BEAUBIEN, Canadian who traveled from post to post as a voyageur, trapper and merchant in furs. In 1822, Alexandre lived in a hut that was close to what has become South Water Street and Michigan Avenue. His childhood was spent in the fields that covered what was then called the Portage of Chicago. The place numbered at this time less than twenty persons. Alex. BEAUBIEN was already a man when the first foreigners arrived to settle close to his father. They were attracted there by the protection that they believed to be found in the vicinity of Fort Dearborn. He lived to see the locality become a large village, then to grow until it had reached the rank of a city of respectable size. He witnessed the first brick to arrive, and the first sidewalk placed; he knew personally the first members of the municipal police; was witness to the arrival of the first steamboat on the river; was interested in the first attempts of the local press; took part in feasts organized to celebrate the first fifty thousand of population then to all subsequent celebrations of similar character, until the spring of 1907, the time of his death. At that time the population of the city that he had seen born had increased to more than 2,000,000 residents, who arrived after his birth.
- BEAUBIEN, Charles. In his childhood he had received a first rate education and began his theology. However, not feeling called to the ecclesiastical state, he entered the fur trade and was employed in the service of the Hudson Bay Company. In 1820, he left with a number of Canadians for a long expedition into the wilds of the western United States where he became lost due to his drinking. After having wandered some time, he and his companions were surprised by a troop of Mexicans that had advanced beyond their possessions. They captured the Canadians, made them prisoners and took them into their country, they were prosecuted before the governor, and they were near the point of being put to death.

But a companion by the name of ALVAREZ, hoping to have their lives saved, took them to the capital of Mexico. This was a trip of 2,000 miles in most tedious conditions. Having arrived in Mexico, they were well received by the viceroy who, not only permitted their return to New-Mexico, but gave to each of them in addition to the expenses of their trip, a sum of one thousand to fifteen hundred piastres.

BEAUBIEN then established in New-Mexico, where he was raised to the dignity of Judge. His companions, isolated for a long time from all civilized country, followed more or less the habits of the surrounding savages, and found it difficult to preserve their mother tongue. An American author quotes BEAUBIEN as one of those that have worked the most to give to his country of adoption its form of territorial government.

- BEAUCHAMP, Jacques. One of the companions of Sir Al. MacKENZIE on his trip of 1793 to the Pacific coast. He was killed in 1802 by Eskimos in the country where he sought, with a man named LIVINGSTON, to find deposits of riches. (V. Ayotte).
- BEAUCHEMIN, Andre. Metis delegate for the voters of Saint-Vital, Assiniboia, to the November and December Conventions of 1869. Was also chosen by the same member district to the first legislative Meeting of Manitoba, 30 December 1870.
- BEAUCHEMIN, Baptist. Member of the Convention of December 1869 convened by the Provisional Government of the River-Red.
- BEAUDRY, Baptist. Interpreter in the service of the Northwest Company at the bottom of Lake Athabaska in 1804.
- BEAUDRY, O.M.I., Rév. P. Patrick. The first French Metis priest of the west. He was born at the diocese of Saint-Albert in 1875; entered in 1897 into the Congregation of Oblats, and was ordained priest by Mgr. GRANDIN, in the year 1901.
- BEAUDRY, Prudent. One of those that have contributed the most to the development of the city of Los Angeles, California. Born to a family of Montréal, he arrived in the month of April 1852 in this young American city, where he successfully began a small business. In 1855, he returned to Montréal, and after a trip to Europe he organized there, a body of cavalry of which he was the captain for six years. In the month of January 1862, he returned to Los Angeles, and was in a dispute which was questionable in appearance in which he lost a considerable sum. Land transactions were more successful for him. He then began construction of an aqueduct that resulted in a ten fold increase in the value of the land that he owned. The reservoir that was necessitated by this enterprise had a capacity of a million gallons. In addition he created a fine public park with all modern conveniences. American authors were full of praise for his spirit of enterprise.

He was elected to the municipal council of Los Angeles in 1871, three years later he became the first Judge. Remembering his native country, he created on 26 May 1875, an annual scholarship of one hundred fifty piastres for the maintenance of a poor pupil at Polytechnique School of Montréal, directed by the catholic school commissioners.

BEAUDRY, Victor. - Brother of the preceding. Born at Sainte-Anne-des-Plaines 22 February 1831. He moved to San Francisco in 1849, where he opened an agency for schooners that navigated between Stockton and Sacramento. With his brother Prudent, he established a company to manufacture syrup. He moved to Nicaragua and organized a transportation line. In September 1854 he was in Canada. He returned to Los Angeles in February 1856. At the outset of the Civil War, he was appointed supplier of supplies for the army, and continued in this capacity of work for Washington. Contrary to what usually happened in most cases like this, he did not prosper from this position. Other enterprises, more remunerative, called him to Los Angeles, Independence, and other localities of the American west. He learned the process of smelting ore, and possessed ten to twelve sources of water, a great value in a mining country. Despite huge losses he managed to amass a fortune of approximately $300,000.

BEAULIEU, Etienne. - Grandson of the following. Enjoyed a great respect in the north. He served as guide in the wilderness of the northeast for the explorer Warburton PIKE, who states that "despite all his deficiencies, he was a fine master in the art of travel by boat and by dog sled, prompt in difficult moments, and far more courageous than most of the Metis of the Great Lake of Slaves." That was in 1886. Etienne, or The King (Le Roi) as he was called by PIKE, had at that time three sons, Francois, José and Paul, "each of them married and fathers of large families that would make themselves known in the future of the Great Lake of Slaves, and that the next generation will be great", the English traveler remarked pleasantly. Unfortunately, these children, born of an Indian woman, do not seem to take after the father.

BEAULIEU, François 1°. - Canadian father of the first Metis French-Indian whose history has preserved the name. He accompanied Sir Al. MacKENZIE in his trip to the Pacific (1793).

BEAULIEU, Francois 2°. - The Leader of the French Metis in the Canadian north-west. Born in 1771 of the preceding and a mother of Indian descent of the tribe of Montagnais. In 1883 (sic) he arrived to live as the first white at the Great Lake of Slaves. In March 1829 he already possessed such expertise on the geography of the great north that Sir John FRANKLIN asked his assistance to help find the best route to follow on his exploration. To this end, the Metis drew him a map of the way to the Copper mine and the adjoining coast that was so accurate that an Indian, who entered while he was at work, recognized immediately the country that the map represented. BEAULIEU was then at Fort Wedderburne, a position that the Hudson Bay Company maintained on an island in view of Fort Chippewayan, which had been established by the North West Company on the shore of Lake Athabasca. BEAULIEU was later an accredited hunter and one of the interpreters of Sir John during the explorers stay at the Great Lake of Bear (Grande Lac des Ours).

Before the arrival of missionaries, François was a great fighter, and the account of a lot of his feats are spoken of by his numerous descendants. Following in the ways of his maternal ancestors, he had taken several wives. The Indians had not known a greater chief.

Upon the arrival of missionaries, he received them with great joy, and was baptized by P. TACHE in 1848, at the age of about 76 years. From then on Mgr TACHE (1856) called him "the submissive child of the man of prayer", because he always served with eagerness and generosity. His story, to the date of 9 July 1862, is told in the journal of Mgr GRANDIN, that not being able to slow him down, he was then 90 years old, he was in his encampment to complete his religious studies.

Despite his advanced age, he gratuitously offered his services to the missionary, for the purpose of helping free him from Indians who had taken the protesting minister prisoner. Similarly, in spite his own poverty, he had a short time earlier made a gift of twenty note books to the mission of Athabaska, and he was always ready to assist the missionary.

For a long time he was established at the River of the Salt, with a band of savage Yellow Knives (Couteaux-Jaunes), of which he was chief when he died there in November 1872. Independent of the two languages of his parents, he spoke the dialect of these Indians and that of the Flancs-de-Chien.

- BEAULIEU, Jacques. Relative of François B. 2°, he called him his uncle. He was Metis by his mother. He was the interpreter for the first white that visited the Great Lake of Slaves, and continued his pursuit of the same (1784).
- BEAULIEU, Pierre. Son of François B. 2°. Despite his advanced age, was in 1889 "one of the most alert voyageurs" that W. PIKE had ever seen. This Englishman appears generally happy with his services as helmsman and boater.
- BEAUMETTE, Guillaume. One of the pioneers of Saint Paul, Minnesota, born in 1800 in Canada, and in 1818 or 1819 traveled to Red River, where he was employed as a mason in the construction of the Fort Garry. Later he emigrated to Fort Snelling (MN), and he later settled at Saint Paul, where he married a sister of Victor GUERIN (q.v.). He died there in November 1870.
- BEAUPARLANT, Gabriel. Canadian in the service of Sir John FRANKLIN (1820-21). In the course of travel of more than a thousand miles on foot in the plains of the great north, he received frostbite. Adding insult, the older voyageurs looked at this incident as a disgrace, a sign of his lack of experience, good at the very most for a new comer. But this misadventure was nothing compared to the lamentable fate that awaited him. After several weeks had passed in travel without food other than lichen, and sometimes the scraps of skins or pounded bone. He became separated from the main party, and joined in the company of SAINT-GERMAIN and Salomon BELANGER (q.v.), to accompany Captain BACK to Fort Enterprise, where he hoped to find help.
 - 4 October 1821, BEAUPARLANT decided that he was already well weakened by his preceding travels and his long fast, his condition soon became such that he could no longer advance without the greatest difficulty. Moreover unfortunately, the time was very cold, and in the afternoon of 16 October he declared that he could no longer go on. At some distance a grove was found in which his companions decided to stay the night, leaving behind BEAUPARLANT who had promised to join them after a moment of rest. When night came, he had not rejoined them. One of them fired some gun shots, to which he replied faithfully. When he still had not appeared the next morning, BACK sent SAINT-GERMAIN to find him. The former found him spread on his back, enormously swollen and his members frozen stiff (17 October 1821).
- BEAUSET, Captain E. In 1885 ordered the third company of the French-Canadian battalion envoy to reduce the Metis in Saskatchewan.
- BELANGER, Alexis. Type of Metis uncommon in the west. Born in 1816 to a mother of the Cris tribe. At the age of 13 years he entered work as a messenger for the Hudson Bay Company in New-Caledonia, as the greater part of British Colombia was called at that time. His propensity for the Indian way of life and his young age made it easy for him to learn the language of his new country. He was generally employed as an interpreter, and in this capacity he gave good service. However, his laziness, his inconstancy and his aversion to all constraint made it difficult for him to keep the same job for long. If he was not rapidly discharged by his superiors, he left on his own, taking with him what he wanted from the establishment that he left. His lack of conduct was notorious and it eventually cost him his life. In the spring of 1848, he was helmsman for one of five boats that ascended the Fraser River to Fort Alexandre, with goods necessary for trade in the north. As he crossed the river at the place where it intersects with the Quesnel River, shots sounded from firearms; Alexis collapsed in his boat, and a few days after he died from an injury made by a ball that had been shot at him by a savage. His death on the part of the company was the opportunity to make terrible and unjust reprisals upon the Indians.

BELANGER, Andre. - Voyageur who with G. FRANCHERE returned to Canada, on 25 May 1814, he drowned in a rapid.

BELANGER, Horace. - One of the principal officers of the Hudson Bay Company in the final times. Originally of Lower-Canada, he served several years in the district of Lac de la Pluie (Rainy Lake) before his transfer to (Fort) Cumberland, of which he received the command after staying some time. He remained there in the capacity of superintendent until 1888. From June 1889 to October 1892 he was in charge of the district of Norway factory. A distinguished man and well recognized around the world. It appears he and his family were followed by a strange fate. His father had drowned in the Hudson Bay, close to the factory of the original (Moose Factory), at the time that he was beginning to do well. Two of his own children had perished in the same manner near Fort Cumberland while he was in command. In addition, one of his uncles found a similar death not far from the city of Quebec. He himself drowned, in October 1892, in the rapide de la Mer (Sea Rapid), on the Nelson River.

Mr. BELANGER had been appointed chief trader in 1872; then agent the next year, and finally chief agent in 1885. He is the only French-Canadian that ever reached this last rank in the Hudson Bay Company. According to the constitution of this commercial body, elaborated in 1871, a chief trader received a fee of a share and a half of the Company, an agent two shares, and a chief agent two and a half shares. On the other hand, each share equaled onehundredth of the annual profit of the Company. Upon the death of Mr. BELANGER, his family enjoyed a pension consisting of two hundred livres sterling for each share that he earned during his life, which was five hundred livres during the years 1892 and 1893.

BELANGER, John-Baptist & Salomon. - Two Canadians who accompanied Sir John FRANKLIN during his first expedition. 17 April 1821, both were dispatched to arrive as quickly as possible at the Great Lake of Slaves, and to this end they walked without quitting during 36 hours, in the middle of a storm that raged in the wilderness and uncultivated plains of the north-east. The Indian who accompanied them dared not to venture in the wilderness to equal their time, and did not arrive at Fort Enterprise until a day after the Canadians. Salomon fell in a rapid, and had to remain in the frozen water for a long time, because the violent current prevented a boat from approaching him. He was incognizant when finally pulled out. This misadventure happened to him in three different places (sic). FRANKLIN calls him "the most diligent and the most obedient of his party." (V. Beauparlant). As for John-Baptist, he was killed and eaten by the Iroquois Michel TEROAHAUTE in a moment of extreme scarcity of food.

Canadian-American JOURNAL of History & Genealogy for Canadian, French & Metis Study

Our Collection

In 1990 we Began publishing a subject bibliography of our collection in our newsletter Cousins et Cousines. After 4 years we finished going through the entire shelf list from start to finish. Since beginning many new items have been cataloged. Additions to our collection are listed in this our Journal beginning with #1. Back issues of the newsletter unfortunately are not available, however, at some time in the future we will publish a complete listing of our holdings in a separate publication. To answer the most asked question, "How can I use the collection?" Unfortunately, the collection is permanent and can not be loaned out either by mail or to walk in patrons. The good news is that this means when you come to the library you know the book will be here. A limited amount of work will be done by mail for members who live far from our collection,. You know what we have, we will try to look up specific questions for you in the requested source(s). Please include a business sized self addressed stamped envelope for a reply.

BOOK REVIEWS

Book reviews, unless otherwise noted, are written by Joy Reisinger CGRS, editor of the formerly published Lost in Canada?

1995-96 Directory of Professional Genealogists, Elizabeth Kelley Kerstens, compiler and editor. Washington: Association of Professional Genealogists, 1995. Soft cover, 8½" x 11", xi + 146 pp., $15.00 postpaid from APG, 3421 M Street Northwest, Suite 236, Washington, DC 20007. The 1993 Directory was a big success, and this edition should do even better. With over 770 members and 47 institutional members, you should be able to find help almost anywhere that you need it, although not all members accept clients. Members are listed alphabetically by surname, and there is an index to their geographic specialties and research specialties such as adoption, federal records, religious records etc. Included in the Directory is the article, "So You're Going to Hire a Professional Genealogist." This directory should be on the shelf of every library—both public libraries and genealogical societies' collections.

BCG Roster of Genealogists Certified: Researchers, Editors, Instructors, Lecturers, Librarians, and Writers. Falmouth, VA: Board for Certification of Genealogists, 1995. Soft cover, 81/2" x 11", 65 pp., $8.00 postpaid from BCG, P.O. Box 5816, Falmouth, VA 22405-5816. The above review of the APG Directory can be repeated here, with one big difference. All persons listed in the BCG Roster have passed a certification examination in their category, and must renew every five years to demonstrate that they are keeping abreast of the continually rising standards in the field of genealogy. Listings are arranged alphabetically by state, then by researchers who specialize in that state. Indexes are provided by special topics, and by surname of the genealogist. In contrast to previously published rosters, this one has all categories spelled out, rather than using a cumbersome numbering code. This Roster should also be on the shelf of every library.

Canada Research Outline. Salt Lake City: Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 1993. Soft cover, 48 pp., This is item 34545, $.75 (US funds) per copy. Order from Salt Lake Distribution Center, 1999 West 1700 South, Salt Lake City, UT 84104-4233. Excellent advice is given in the "Introduction" which states: "If your Canadian ancestor came to the United States, study United States sources before starting research in Canada." This research outline addresses sources located at the Family History Library and other locations as well. Information in this outline was proofed for accuracy by Terrence Punch CG(C), Brenda Merriman CGRS, CGL, this book reviewer, and others. A bargain and a "must-have" for anyone researching Canadian ancestors.

Canadian [Census] Catalog, American Genealogical Lending Library. Computer disk, $15.00 from American Genealogical Lending Library, P.O. Box 329, Bountiful, UT 84011-0329. Specify IBM-Compatible disk size. Also available on microfilm or microfiche for $10.00. Produced to show the call number for borrowing Canadian census reels; on computer disk this catalog serves another function. Searching the file for a place name you haven't been able to locate, may help you zero in on the right place to hunt for Grandpa.

Some Southern Balls: from Valentine to Ferdinand and Beyond, Donna Rachal Mills, CGRS. Tuscaloosa, AL: Mills Historical Press, 1993. Hard cover, 6" x 9", xiv + 325 pp., $35.00 + $2.50 p & h from Mills Historical Press, 107 Woodridge, Tuscaloosa AL 35406. Simply put, if you would like an example of how to write a family history, this is clearly the model to emulate. You do not have to be a member of these families to enjoy reading this book, which traces the descendants of Ferdinand Ball (1824-1874) and the ancestors of his mother, Marguerite Doucet, and "Mr." Ball. Family members tried for thirty years to research this line, and all came up against one brick wall after another. Finally, one of them commissioned Elizabeth Shown Mills CG, FASG, to solve the problem. With the aid of Gale Williams Bamman CG, Mary McCampbell Bell CALS, Sharon Sholars Brown CG, the author, and some other researchers, the tangled story unraveled in spite of several name changes. Source citations are meticulous and numerous; the endnotes may give us ideas of sources we hadn't thought of. Acadian researchers will particularly enjoy the chapter, "Doucets: The Acadian Wanderers," which begins with Germain Doucet's arrival in Acadia in 1632, and follows each generation down to Marguerite/Margaret. She was born 1803 in Louisiana, the illegitimate daughter of Jean Doucet and Sarah Celeste Burrus La Combe. Highly recommended reading for all genealogists.

The First Families of Louisiana: An Index to Glenn R. Conrad's 2-volume series of 1970, Donna Rachal Mills, C.G.R.S. Mills Historical Press, 1992. Soft cover, 81/2" x 11", 89 pp., $16.00 + $2.50 p & h as above. An every-name index to the described work, with extensive cross-references and alternate spellings, and an index to place names. When this reviewer studied early Gulf Coast families, trying to identify Louisiana Casket Girls as well as French-Canadians who descend from King's Daughters, I found this index invaluable. Any library or individual holding Conrad's two-volume work should have this companion volume.

Florida's First Families: Translated Abstracts of Pre-1821 Spanish Censuses, Donna Rachal Mills, C.G.R.S. Mills Historical Press, 1992. Hard cover, 6" x 9", xi + 201 pp., $23.00 + $2.50 p & h as above. During the time known as the "Second Spanish Period," the British left the province, while American Loyalists, American frontiersmen, and immigrants from Britain and Europe were moving into the area. The earliest existing census of this period was taken in 1786, another in 1787, 1793, 1813, and 1814. Not all areas were enumerated each time, nor have all schedules survived. In addition to the transcribed returns, there are tables of abbreviations and name equivalents in English. Not all Loyalists went to Canada or the West Indies; if a reader has a "lost" Loyalist this work should be consulted.

How To Get Started in Genealogy 1994 edition. Wisconsin Rapids: Wisconsin Genealogical Council, 1994. Soft cover, 81/2" x 11", 47 pp., $5.50 + $1.50 from WGC, 6083 County Trunk S, Wisconsin Rapids, WI 54494-9212. Written by a genealogical reference librarian, there is good advice for experienced researchers as well as beginners. Included is a explanation of each Federal census return, and of Wisconsin State and Territorial returns, and sample work forms. Genealogical Societies may purchase a quantity of this guide at a discount, for re-sale as a fundraiser. This is a quality guide.

Search for Missing Friends: Irish Immigrant Advertisements Placed in the Boston Pilot, Volume IV: 1857-1860, Ruth-Ann M. Harris and B. Emer O'Keeffe, eds. Boston: New England

Canadian-American JOURNAL of History & Genealogy for Canadian, French & Metis Study

Historic Genealogical Society, 1995. Hard cover, 6" x 9", 783 + xxxiv pp., $45.00 + $6.00 p & h from NEHGS, 101 Newbury Street, Boston MA 02116. Volume I covered the years 1831-1850 and was reviewed in Lost in Canada? 16 (Winter 1991/92) 146; Volume II covered 1851-1853 and was reviewed in Lost in Canada? 16 (Spring 1992) 197. When Irish immigrants reached North America, it often was difficult to find family members who previously immigrated. Advertising in the Boston Pilot was one means of finding them, or of re-establishing contact with someone who migrated elsewhere. As with the earlier volumes, a look at the index to placenames reveals many references to Canada [there is also an every-name index]. An example of how far separated families became is the following ad found on page 416: "Of John Reilly, a native of the city of Cork, boot and shoemaker by trade, who came to Quebec about 33 years ago, and was last seen in Three Rivers, Lower Canada. Information will be thankfully received by his brother, Joseph, care of Rev Mr Macgahagan, Mobile, Alabama." The "Introduction" has very poignant stories of the time-era of these immigrants, and the efforts of one Vere Foster to ensure that the shipping lines lived up to the promises made when selling tickets. He also saw to the placement of many young Irish women in homes across America. This series of books is indispensable in aiding genealogists with roots in Ireland.

The Black Hawk War, Frank E. Stevens. Bowie MD: Heritage Books Inc., 1993 reprint of 1903 edition. Soft cover, 5 ½ x 8 ¼, 323 pp., $22.00 + p & h. The story begins with the life of Black Hawk from his 1767 birth in the northwest corner of Illinois, a full-blood Sauk (Sac) whose father was born near Montreal. It continues to chronicle his life through numerous skirmishes with other tribes, as well as the British and Americans, through the Black Hawk War of April-August 1832, and on to his death in 1837. Source citations appear throughout, and the introductory acknowledgments read like a Who's Who of upper midwest historians. The book is illustrated with personal portraits, views of battlefields, and original documents, some of which did not reproduce well in reprinting, but are nonetheless interesting. In an appendix about Capt. Abraham Lincoln's service in this war, the author attempts to dispel some of the myths surrounding his service. Fully indexed, this work can aid the family historian who wishes to understand his ancestor's life in these affected areas in that time frame.

The Loyalists in the American Revolution, Claude Halstead Van Tyne. Bowie MD: Heritage Books, 1993 reprint of 1902 edition. Soft cover, 5½" x 8½", ix + 360 pp., $20.00 + p & h. Written by the head of the history department at the University of Michigan, this work was meant to augment the many published histories of the American Revolution by focusing on the Tories. This is not a genealogical source book, but it may present a better understanding of the times. Sources utilized include original material, as well as Rivington's Gazette, a Loyalist newspaper.

Hough and Huff Families of the United States, 1620-1850: The Midwest, Granville W. Hough. Bowie MD: Heritage Books, 1993 reprint of two volumes in one; originally published 1975 and 1976. Soft cover, 5½" x 8½", 152 + 183 pp., $16.50 from Heritage Books as above. States covered in this work include KY, TN, LA, MS, AL, MO, AK, TX, OH, IN, IL, MI, MN, WI, and IA. Sources were largely Federal census records to 1880, although some pension records and published materials were also used. If you have lost track of a Huff family, you would want to consult this book; be prepared to spend some time. There is a separate index for each variant spelling of the name. For example, if you were looking for Henry Hough who married Miriam Sherridan, you will find her in the index, but with diligence. In the text (p. 137) she appears as spelled above, but indexed (p. 182) as Sherraden (no given name). There are 93 entries for Henry, but if you only know her as Miriam, there is little help here—you may have to read all 93 entries for a couple named Henry and Miriam.

British Army Pensioners Abroad, 1772-1899, Norman K. Crowder. Baltimore: Genealogical Publishing Co., Inc., 1995. Hard cover, 6" x 9", xviii + 351 pp., $35.00 + p & h. Also known as Chelsea pensioners, these men often left Great Britain and lived in Canada, Australia, South Africa and elsewhere; many of their descendants now live in the United States. Information includes the name, date of pension award, and sometimes the place of residence and death information. The original registers are in the Public Record Office in Kew, England and are available on microfilm at the Family History Library in Salt Lake City and Family History Centers. The most important piece of information to glean from this index to pensioners is the name of the unit in which he served at the time of discharge. Researchers can then read the entire file which may be voluminous. Recommended for all genealogical reference libraries.

County Courthouse Book 2nd Edition, Elizabeth Petty Bentley. Baltimore: Genealogical Publishing Co., Inc., 1995. Soft cover, 8½" x 11", viii +397 pp. $34.95 + 3.50 p & h. The 1st edition, published in 1990, received mixed reviews. The review in Lost in Canada? 16 (Spring 1991) 50-51 pointed out serious concerns, as did reviews in the journals of the Minnesota Genealogical Society and the North Carolina Genealogical Society, among others. Some of the specific corrections mentioned in reviews were incorporated into the 2nd Edition, others were not. The 1st edition listed sources consulted when a survey wasn't returned [new edition does not include such a list]; among these was Ancestry's Red Book, 1989. The 1992 printing of that work has very reliable information about Wisconsin and can be consulted with confidence. With such a caveat emptor, genealogical consumers will have to decide for themselves. Possibly the next edition [providing there is one] will show investigation, and incorporation, of suggested corrections made by reviewers.
