Editor's Niche

Well, now...this is my last column and last appearance on CML's masthead as editor, folks. Beginning with the Winter '89 issue, Woodstock's own Sue Paquette (#369) takes over the helm of this magazine. Bonne chance, young lady! After six years and 13 editions of CONNECTICUT MAPLE LEAF, I look forward to retirement. Maybe I can finally get back to work on the Valois Family History & Genealogy--which, regrettably, has been in a state of hiatus for several years.

I'm very appreciative for the considerable assistance, over the years, of that small group of Society volunteers listed on the inside front cover under "Assistant Editors" and "Committee Members." Their singular contributions--Lee DeRagon's ongoing CML subject and surname indexes, Henri Carrier's translation prowess not to mention his continuing lists of Library donations and purchases, as well as Pat Lausier's publishing talent--helped make my editorship so much easier.

As for this particular issue of CML, you'll find some new article contributions by Society members. Paul Keroack (#157), of New Haven, came up with two submissions: "A New System of Geography," an extract providing an early 1800s look at Quebec and the Quebecois...plus a 1930s piece on Canada's first brewery which became, successively, a military prison and Intendant's Palace.

Rosalyn Lachapelle (#72), of Voluntown, was nice enough to furnish a listing of Franco marriages from that northeastern community for the period 1868 thru 1900. My favorite Oklahoman-and-frequent-Library-donor, cousin Therese Valois Grego (#435), of Tulsa, turned up with a helpful research tool in the form of an article on Woonsocket's Mallet Library.

In addition, Paul Veillette (#161), of East Chatham, N.Y., submitted a provocative item entitled, "English Blood in French Veins." The infusion came via English captives in the French & Indian Wars period. You'll also enjoy the third installment from Philip Hebert (#284), of Southbridge, Mass., that continues his Hebert Acadian Collection saga on the French Neutrals in Connecticut.

The Christian brothers of Louisville, Kentucky, Father George and Richard (#458), are aboard once again with the third installment of their meticulously researched genealogy. President Lee DeRagon (#8), of West Hartford, has produced Part XI of that long-running 1900 Federal Census of Connecticut. Surely this should qualify you for a mention in the Guinness Book of World Records, Lee. Finally, Father Albert Goulet (#258), of Southbridge, Mass., presents more Franco histories from his extensive collection of published newspaper articles.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS - DECEMBER 1988 TO MAY 1989

Saturday, March 18, 1989 - Due to the non-appearance of our featured speaker, President DeRagon concentrated on various Society matters as discussion topics. He announced that classes for volunteer Assistant Librarians had commenced on Friday, February 24. The two-hour evening classes, chaired by Chief Librarian Henri Carrier (#1), would run for four consecutive Friday evenings and anyone interested could still register.

Calendar of Events (Con't)

Henri noted that a welcome addition to the Library shelves was now available: volumes 31 thru 40 of Programme de recherche en demographie historique (PRDH--Research Program in Historical Demography). Father Albert Goulet (#258), of Southbridge, Mass., was the generous donor.

The February FCGSC Newsletter incorporated a handy calendar showing 1989 Meeting Dates and Library Holiday Closings.

Saturday, May 20, 1989 - Mrs. Emily Plourde, of Southampton, Mass., was featured speaker and gave an engrossing talk on French-Canadian History & Genealogy. A past contributor to CML, Emily is a retired civil engineering firm executive, grandmother, and homemaker who somehow has found time to matriculate as a full-time senior at Smith College in Northampton while completing a three-generational study of cultural change within a Franco-American family.

Chief Librarian Henri Carrier (#1), of Tolland, reported the addition of extensive Talbot family research material to the Library. This invaluable gift of marriage repertories, books, and cartons of research data belonged to the late charter member Real Talbot (#16), of Hartford, and was donated by his family.

Four Assistant Librarians recently graduated from Chief Librarian Carrier's "Genealogical Counselor" course and will begin applying their new FCGSC Library know-how on your behalf. President DeRagon's congratulations were conveyed to the foursome: Carolyn Jordan (#443), of Enfield, Paul Keroack (#157), of New Haven, Sue Paquette (#369), of Woodstock, and Charles Pelletier (#351), of Storrs.

Following the meeting, a book sale was held of duplicate marriage repertories as well as other surplus genealogical publications from Library shelves.

HISTORY OF CANADA'S FIRST BREWERY AND THE INTENDANT'S PALACE

by National Breweries, Ltd.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lest our readers draw an erroneous impression from the above, its original and lengthier title reads, "History of Canada's First Brewery, founded by Intendant Talon in 1668 under Charter of Louis XIV, and also of the Intendant's Palace in 1686, now Boswell Brewery." Paul Keroack (#157) thoughtfully furnished the aging pamphlet, containing both histories, which was published in Canada at some unknown date. J.V.

Introduction

There is not a spot in the old City of Quebec which is not historical ground. In this old City-romantic and chivalrous France has left an indelible imprint sealed by the heroism of discoverers and colonizers.

The City of Quebec is justly recognized as the cradle of civilization in the New World. It is more than three centuries old and some of its present buildings and monuments date back to the first days of the French colonial period. On the very spot where the Boswell's Brewery is built, there stood, first a Brewery in 1668, then a Palace in 1686.

A bronze tablet, embodying the historical data about this Brewery and the Palace has been placed by the Historical Society on the present building. It is reproduced on page eight of this booklet.

Canada's First Brewery

Jean Talon, the first intendant of New France, was appointed to the position on March 21st, 1665. Soon after his arrival in Quebec, Talon became greatly concerned by the harm which was being caused by the huge consumption of wine and brandy among the "settlers" and sought means to remedy the evil. His action was approved of by the most influential members of the Colony and in 1667 he wrote Colbert, General Comptroller of finances under the reign of Louis XIV, declaring his intention of building a Brewery.

The Minister approved the plan of erecting a brewery, not only on economic grounds, but because "the vice of drunkenness would thereafter cause no more scandal; by reason of the cold nature of Beer, the vapors thereof rarely deprived men of the use of judgment." Accordingly in 1668, Talon began the construction of a large brewery to the great satisfaction of the poorer colonists. Beer was brewed for the first time in the Spring of 1670.

The Brewery was called the "Brasserie du Roi" (King's Brewery) and was located on the banks of the St. Charles River at the foot of what is now known as "Palace Hill." The Brewery covered a considerable extent of ground and in the foundation seven vaults were constructed, the walls of which in some places are eight feet thick.

Although centuries have passed since the time of Talon, these vaults still exist. There are two large and five small vaults in a good state of preservation, and in 1930 were thoroughly renovated by Boswell's Brewery and are now accessible to anyone interested in the historical side of old Quebec.

Military Prison - 1672

In 1672 Frontenac arrived at Quebec to commence his term as Governor of New France and shortly afterward converted the brewery into a Military prison.

Palace for the Intendants - 1686

Upon the foundations of the Brewery built by Talon in 1668, a Palace for the intendants of the French Colony was erected, in 1686 by Mr. De Meulles. It was called "Le Palais de l'Intendance." This district is still known in Quebec as the "Palais."

This structure, with repairs and additions, furnished not only a suitable mansion for the Intendant, but also offices and public meeting-rooms for the Sovereign Council, where the Council continued long to hold their sessions; it also contained courts of justice, vaults for the public archives and a jail for criminals. In connection with the Palace were the French Government stores, wherein were housed the supplies for the Colonists.

Intendant Francois Bigot - 1748-61

Francois Bigot was the twelfth of the intendants of France in the New World. He was extravagant to the extreme and accumulated a vast fortune, through his misdealings in the colony.

Recalled to France, after the conquest, he was brought before the Courts of the Realm in 1763 and was condemned to be confined in the Bastille, as a punishment for his misdeeds.

It was under Bigot's tenure of office, as intendant of New France (1748-1760) that the Palace had its period of greatest splendor. It was destroyed by fire in 1713 and reconstructed the following year; it was again damaged by fire in 1726 and 1727. It was finally destroyed in 1775 during the attack on Quebec by Arnold (the enigmatic general from New Haven, CT., who became America's first prominent traitor during the Revolutionary War--J.V.) and Montgomery, the Palace being held by troops under Arnold.

Numerous books have been written by well-known authors on Quebec in which Bigot and his doings at the Intendant's Palace largely figure.

Relics

During the numerous excavations of recent years, a great many relics have been unearthed, such as shells (14 inches diameter), grape shot, cannon balls (some of these are marked with a broad arrow, showing that they were used by the British against the Americans in the old Palace in 1775), bar shot, a military bit, military buttons, Indian tomahawk (of green stone), octagon-shaped and square tiles, bayonets, sword blades, portion of chandelier, pike head and a large number of other interesting relics, which are now on view in one of the vaults, set apart for the purpose.

PETITION FILED AGAINST HALBERT'S INC.

On October 31, 1988, the U.S. Postal Service filed a petition against Sharon Taylor and Halbert's Inc., of Bath, Ohio, alleging breach of a consent agreement entered into in 1985. Specifically, the petition alleges that this company continues to misrepresent that the books it sells "consist primarily of the story of the particular family name listed in the solicitation."

As a result of the filing of the petition, the Postal Service Judicial Officer will make a decision whether to impound mail addressed to Halbert's until such time as there is a final agency decision in the matter.

In recent weeks, NGS members have sent in solicitation letters received from Halbert's, each of which is "signed" by a person with the same surname as that of the addressee and the book being offered for sale. This is a new practice on the part of Halbert's, similar to that used in the past by "Elizabeth Ross." Our collection of letters has been forwarded to the U.S.P.S. regional inspector in Philadelphia.

Halbert's offers for sale books with titles such as (Surname) Immigrants and Their New World Descendants, (Surname) Families Around the World, and The New World (Surname) Family Album and Complete Registry.

1900 FEDERAL CENSUS OF CONNECTICUT (Con't)

by Lee DeRagon (#8), Assistant Editor

The eleventh installment of Franco-American genealogical data, from the 1900 federal census of Connecticut, can be found on succeeding pages. It is a continuation of the Plainfield, Windham County, listings that appeared in the Summer 1988 issue of CML.

Again, we apologize for any misspellings of French surnames. These were largely the work of 19th century Yankee census-takers.

Abbreviations used to identify the relationship of individuals to the head of a household are explained on the page preceding the census data. The extract itself furnishes you with the following useful information:

1. Individual's community of residence.
2. Family surname.
3. Christian name of each family member.
4. Relationship of each person to the head of family (see "Abbreviations Used in the Census:").
5. Age of every person in the household ("1/12" = one month old, etc.)
6. Place of birth of each household member.

You can view the actual 1900 census by examining the copy on file at the State Library, 231 Capitol Avenue, Hartford, and at the Connecticut Historical Society, 1 Elizabeth Street, Hartford.

ENGLISH BLOOD IN FRENCH VEINS

by Paul T. Veillette (#161)

Ever since my early explorations into the Veillette roots, I have known that our family had at least one English ancestor. He was John Thomas, an English shipwright, who had been captured by a French-Canadian war party in the Hudson's Bay region back in 1687.

The seizure of Thomas was only one of many such instances that injected English blood into French veins during the ongoing hostilities between English and French in colonial North America. Anyone of French-Canadian descent shouldn't be surprised to find one or more English persons in his or her family tree. Unlike the case of John Thomas, however, most of the English captives were New Englanders from Massachusetts and Maine.

A case in point is Mathias Farnsworth, a 14-year-old Yankee lad from Groton, Massachusetts, who was captured in 1704 by Abenaki Indians, allies of the French, and spirited to Montreal.

Farnsworth's father was a town officer of Groton and his grandfather, John Nutting, was killed during a conflict between early Massachusetts settlers and Indians. Young Farnsworth was a direct descendant of George Farr who arrived in Salem, Massachusetts, from England in 1629 and, thus, was one of the Puritan founders of the Bay Colony.

Farnsworth happens to be another of my English ancestors. His Congregationalist religion was abandoned in 1706 when, two years following his capture, he converted to Catholicism. Mathias' new godfather was none other than Claude de Ramezay, royal governor of Montreal. The brand-new Catholic also changed his name to Claude Phaneuf! Eight years later, the 16-year-old Phaneuf, ne Farnsworth, married a French-Canadian woman and, a number of generations later, one of his descendants married into the Veillette family.

As a consequence of this research, my brothers and I, plus our children (male and female), are eligible for membership in The Hereditary Order of the First Families of Massachusetts, a society comprising descendants of English-American pioneers who settled Massachusetts prior to 1650. So a little Yankee blood goes a long way!

The result was somewhat different from the standard mid-century New England house, but it was imposing and suitable for a family of wealth and social position."

"The humble request of Jacob Gerware humbly dedicated to this Honorable Assembly, humbly prayeth that your honours would grant me a hearing and also answer my request. Whereas by ye calamity of War I am by Divine providence cast into this country destitute and stript of all ye comforts & satisfactions of Life and in a strange land and my children taken from me, as is natural to all parents to have the education of their own children, and it was proposed that ye neutral French should have their family to dwell together.

Now your Memorialist humbly prayeth that you would consider him and find some method that he may live with his children, as now he is remote from them; he at Litchfield and his children at Woodbury, all his children almost of capacity to get their living and sundry of them able to help support their parents so that your Memorialist is apt to think it will be less burdensome to the Town wherein they dwell, and that he, having his family together, would maintain them without being burdensome, if not, that ye law relating to poor children may be improved; the meanwhile desire your Honours would give him liberty of loyalty, who shall endeavor not to be chargeable to any, if it be possible. Your Memorialist also prayeth that in as much as he can scarcely speak a word of English, his son Paul Landrie might speak a word in his behalf; he knows all ye circumstances and can speak ye apprehension -- begg your Honours would consider and answer his Request and your Memorialist shall ever remain your Honours Most Obedient Humble Servt

THE VISIT TO THE LAND OF MY ANCESTRY

by Richard Quirion

Reprinted with permission from the November 1988 issue of Le FAROG Forum, which is funded in part by the University of Maine, Orono, Me.

I joined the U.S. Navy in August of 1951. Upon entering boot camp, I was labeled as bilingual, as I could speak French fluently. After boot camp, I was assigned to the USS Marquette, A.K.A. 95, out of Norfolk, Virginia. I served on the Marquette until my release in 1955.

One of the experiences I had while on the Marquette in 1953 while in the Mediterranean, in a convoy of five ships, I was a gunner's mate 3rd class. I was called by the captain, and was ordered ashore to help with supplies as I was the interpreter for the convoy, and to report to him on my return. I did. Then he told me that his wife would be joining him for a ten day stay. We were in Gulf Juan, near Cannes on the French Riviera, and I was to go ashore and find them a place near the ocean

I did, and instructed the manager about their menu for the next ten days. I went back to get the captain, whereupon he told me to bring clothes enough for ten days. We went to the airport to pick up his wife and then to the chalet on the beach. He then gave me final instructions to tell the manager. I did. He then turned to me and said, "Have a nice ten days in your native country." He said that he had left word with the ship's officer-in-charge that I would be gone for ten days.

I changed into a clean set of whites, and I was on my way. I took a taxi to Cannes. I went to a bank to exchange some money. We had just gotten paid. I had $87.00 on me. I changed $30.00 for French Francs. The exchange then was 350 Francs to the dollar. I was loaded. I found the bus station and got on a bus. I had decided that I wanted to go to Grasse. I paid the fare, 300 Francs, and we rode and rode. I guess it must have been about 60 miles when we came to a stop. The driver said to me, "This is as far as I go. You can get a taxi to go to Grasse." Grasse was about 12 miles down the road.

I found a taxi and asked him to take me to Grasse. He agreed to take me for 500 Francs. When we arrived, I said to him, "I'll give you a thousand Francs now and another thousand if you pick me up here in two days." I knew he would because that was about three days pay for him. He was elated.

Grasse is a beautiful little country town with fields and fields of flowers (at least it was 35 years ago). The fragrance of the flowers was just fantastic. I then started to inquire about a place to stay. People were very friendly and inquisitive - what was an American sailor doing in their little town? I explained that I was of French descent and just wanted to tour the country. They were just excited and pleased that I could speak such good French. One couple said to me, "Are you here for long?" I said a few days. Then they said, "You will stay at our house, as there is no other place to stay." I gracefully accepted and went with them, and to my surprise, they had a family of six children. They instructed the children to fix a room for me, a small but comfortable room.

The Visit to the Land of My Ancestry (Con't)

The next day, at about noon, one of the boys came to my room and told me that dinner was ready. There was not much to eat as they were poor. I had a few bites, so as not to hurt their feelings. I told them that I was not very hungry, the kids were. I said that I was going to tour the perfume factory that afternoon. I would be back later. I went to the factory.

I couldn't get too close as the smell was very strong. I just went to the store outlet. There I bought a quart of Chanel #5 and paid 700 Francs for it (my mother had that for 25 years). I then returned to the house, and we just sat and talked the whole evening.

The next day I just relaxed and met a lot of nice people who just came in to see the American sailor. The next morning I got up about 7:00 a.m. The kids were all doing their chores, and Mathices's wife, Celeste, was preparing breakfast. We sat and all had a small bowl of cooked cereal and a piece of bread, that was all they had. I said that I was going to take a walk, and I would come back to get my things, as the taxi was going to pick me up at 2:00 o'clock.

I went to the grocery store, and told the store owner that I wanted to buy some food. The amount of food that I bought for $25.00 American was unbelievable. I had to pay 300 Francs for it to be delivered. There was enough food for that family for a month. Words cannot describe how these poor people felt when I arrived with all those groceries. And words cannot express how I felt. I left there and felt good about what I had done. I felt good about myself, about my uniform, and about my country.

My taxi was there waiting for me at 2:00 p.m. He took me back to the bus station. I paid him his 1,000 Francs. I had about 700 Francs left. My fare was 300 Francs so I gave him a tip of 400 Francs. He was ready to kiss me (he didn't). I then went back to Cannes. I stayed there a few days until the money ran out.

I went back aboard ship early. The captain returned a few days later. After going back to sea, I went to see him and thanked him for allowing me to visit the land of my ancestry. And to this day, I can never, and will never, forget that wonderful experience.

Bio

George E. Christian, Jr., and Richard L. Christian (two of three brothers) are natives of Woonsocket, R. I. They attended a bilingual [French and English] parochial school (Saint Anne's) in their home town, then a boarding prep school [Assumption: - also bilingual] in Worcester, MA.

Both received a bachelor's degree from Providence College (R. I.) and have done graduate studies. George has an Ed. D. in Counseling and School Psychology from Boston University, MA. Chris (Richard) has two master's degrees from Harvard and did further graduate study at Boston University. He has taught at the elementary and graduate school levels, worked in several business locations in New England, and is currently in Purchasing at Humana Hospital University (Louisville, KY). George is an ordained R. C. priest in the Dominican Order (O.P.: Order of Friars Preachers), and for the past 17 years has been in an alternate ministry as school psychologist for the Louisville and Jefferson County Public Schools.

Their interest in genealogy dates back some dozen years, but has become more active and time-consuming within the past six years or so.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that this is crucial for ensuring the integrity of the financial statements and for providing a clear audit trail. The text notes that any discrepancies or errors in the records can lead to significant complications during an audit and may result in the disallowance of certain expenses.

2. The second part of the document outlines the specific procedures for recording transactions. It details the requirements for receipts, invoices, and other supporting documents. It states that all receipts must be properly dated, itemized, and signed by the individual receiving the goods or services. Additionally, it mentions that invoices should be filed in chronological order and must clearly indicate the date of the transaction and the amount involved.

3. The third part of the document addresses the issue of expense reporting. It explains that employees are required to submit a detailed report of all business-related expenses incurred during the reporting period. This report should include a breakdown of the expenses by category, such as travel, meals, and entertainment. The text also notes that employees must retain all original receipts and invoices as proof of the expenses reported.

4. The fourth part of the document discusses the consequences of non-compliance with the reporting requirements. It states that failure to provide accurate and complete expense reports can result in the denial of reimbursement for the expenses in question. In more severe cases, it may lead to disciplinary action or even termination of employment. The document stresses that it is the responsibility of each employee to adhere to these guidelines to ensure the proper handling of their expenses.

5. The fifth part of the document provides information regarding the audit process. It explains that the organization's financial records are subject to regular audits by an independent audit firm. The purpose of these audits is to verify the accuracy of the financial statements and to ensure that all transactions are properly recorded and supported by appropriate documentation. The text notes that employees should cooperate fully with the auditors and provide them with all necessary records and information.

6. The sixth part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining confidentiality of financial information. It states that all financial records and reports are considered confidential and should be handled accordingly. Employees are instructed not to discuss financial matters with unauthorized personnel and to ensure that all documents are stored in a secure location. This is to prevent the unauthorized disclosure of sensitive information that could harm the organization's competitive position.

7. The seventh part of the document provides a summary of the key points discussed in the document. It reiterates the importance of accurate record-keeping, proper documentation, and timely reporting of expenses. It also emphasizes the consequences of non-compliance and the need for cooperation during the audit process. The document concludes by stating that these guidelines are intended to ensure the integrity and accuracy of the organization's financial records and to provide a fair and equitable process for the reimbursement of business expenses.

THE MALLET LIBRARY A VALUABLE RESOURCE

by Lorri Smith; submitted by Therese Valois Grego (#435)
Reprinted with permission from the Autumn 1988 issue of L'UNION, official publication of Union Saint-Jean Baptiste, Woonsocket, R.I.

According to entries in the Library's guest book, visitors this summer alone have come from Florida, New York, Wisconsin, Washington, D.C., Oregon, the Canadian Province of Quebec, France, Haiti and Russia. They didn't mind traveling to Woonsocket, R.I. for their research because the internationally famous MALLET LIBRARY has a variety of resources.

The Library, located in the Home Office, is a valuable fraternal benefit for USJB members. This noncirculating research facility is just one example of how the Society conforms with its official mission statement which explains that "the primary objective is to support the Franco-American heritage."

Many of the 6,000 volumes, both in French and English, are historical in nature, relating to the French heritage in New England. Some are genealogical records of the more popular French surnames. Other books are fiction, written by French-Canadian and Franco-American authors.

An important part of the collection is the éphéméride, a 33-volume compilation of biographies, monographs of French parishes and newsclips of Franco-American events. Issues of New England's French language newspapers, some up to 100 years old, are another rare find for researchers. Several French-Canadian periodicals covering many different topics are also available for reference.

Named after Edmond Mallet, the Library includes a considerable amount of material about U.S. colonial history, early explorations and how the federal government dealt with the American Indians. These were Monsieur Mallet's personal documents from his work. After serving as major during the Civil War, he was appointed an agent for the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs.

A Franco-American from Oswego, NY, he died in 1907. The following year, Major Mallet's widow sold all of those personal documents to USJB for almost $2,000 and that became the foundation of the Library's collection. Rare books and documents were then acquired from the provincial government of Quebec, the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Alliance Française of Paris.

The Library has continued to grow over the years through purchases and donations. A recent acquisition was a five-volume set of Grand Larousse French dictionaries. The authority among all French dictionaries, this 1987 edition is actually a comprehensive encyclopedia. It even has more than 400 colorful maps of places around the world.

This summer, the Library was fortunate to receive a book entitled Massicotte et son temps which is now out of print. Professor Jean Simard from Laval University in Quebec was kind enough to donate it. Since USJB owns 17 of Edmond J. Massicotte's original etchings, this book about the celebrated French-Canadian artist's life is a welcome addition. His artwork, depicting family life in the Quebec countryside, is permanently on display at the Library.

If you have an interest in history, you would enjoy browsing at the Mallet Library because you will find numerous treasures. One example is the collection's oldest book, published in 1655. Many students have been inspired by the materials they discovered which led to successful school projects.

Brother Felician, S.C., USJB's Librarian, is available for assistance from 8:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, and by appointment on Saturday mornings. If you need a specific book or periodical for your research, it's suggested that you phone Brother before visiting so he can put it aside for you. The toll-free line is 1-800-225-USJB. Rhode Islanders may use 769-0520.

A NEW SYSTEM OF MODERN GEOGRAPHY

by Elijah Parrish

EDITOR'S NOTE: The extract that follows--submitted by Paul Keroack (#157)--is taken from Pages 30-32 of the above-referenced work, authored by an Elijah Parrish. It's from his second edition, published in 1812, and offers an early 19th century view of Quebec Province. One eventually discovers, however, that Parrish could never be accused of being a Francophile. J.V.

Lower Canada: Situation and extent...

Climate: The weather is cold here about half the year; from December to April, the rivers are generally frozen over, and the snow is from four to six feet deep. The air is clear and serene; and the inhabitants, being clothed in a very warm manner, find the winter neither unhealthy nor unpleasant. When abroad they are covered with furs, excepting the eyes and nose. Stoves are placed in the hall or entry of their houses, whence flues conduct the heat to different apartments. They have double windows and doors. The spring comes on suddenly; vegetation is rapid, and the summer is delightful, a few days excepted, which are extremely hot.

Population, soil, and produce: A great proportion of the country is covered with woods; but the trees do not rise to that magnitude, which is common in warmer countries. The various species of oak, which are of such excellent timber in the United States, are unknown here, or appear in such a dwarfish form as to be of no importance. Pleasant grapes are gathered in the islands of the St. Lawrence. The province is rather level than mountainous; and the soil is good, producing excellent grass, wheat, rye, barley, and tobacco. The population is 200,000. For several leagues below Montreal, the country seems to be one continuous village. The churches are numerous, and handsome; their spires are covered with tin.

Towns: Quebec (known today as Quebec City--JV) is the capital, not only of Canada but of British America. It is situated on the St. Lawrence, 320 miles from the sea. The upper town stands on a rock of lime-stone; the fortifications are strong, and inhabitants are more than 10,000, of whom two-thirds are French. Being the residence of the governor, the seat of the courts, and the station of a large garrison, the town has an air of splendor and gaiety...

From the hill on which the city is built, 1,000 feet above the river, which is here five or six miles wide, a most enchanting prospect is presented: The busy town, vessels loaded with products of the various climes, the gardens and fields, towering mountains, stupendous rocks, pathless forests, villages and towns, almost bewilder the senses, and delight the eye, with objects beautifully sublime.

Montreal is 170 miles above Quebec, built on an island, ten leagues long and four broad. The town has 6,000 inhabitants and is the station of a British regiment. Here are six churches; four for the Roman Catholics. In the city is a college, under the direction of the Catholic clergy; here are also several Protestant schools. In the town of Three Rivers, 50 miles above Quebec, are a handsome church, a nunnery, a hospital, and a female academy. The college, formerly belonging to the Jesuits, is now a prison.

Character: Nine-tenths of the people are Roman Catholics; among the rest is a variety of sects, such as Episcopalians, Presbyterians, and Methodists. In the colony are 12 clergymen of the Church of England, 126 of the Roman Catholic.

In this province is no Protestant college, but a few of their youth are sent to England, and the United States, for their education. Learning is, however, at a low ebb. Many of the women can read and write; in this they are superior to the men, very few of whom can read. The women, of course, have great influence in all domestic affairs. The husband seldom makes a bargain, or undertakes any thing of importance, without consulting his wife; but all are very ignorant and superstitious.

Commerce: Their chief exports are wheat, flax seed, lumber, fish, potash, ginseng, furs, and peltries. They import English goods, chocolate, salt, wine, and the produce of the West-Indies.

FAMILY HISTORIES: GERVAIS, LARIVIERE, LAPLANTE...
THERIAULT, LANDRY, CAOUETTE, GAGNON

Submitted by Father Albert P. Goulet (#258)

Reprinted with permission from the 26 Feb, 1985 issue of THE NEWS, Southbridge, Mass., and 12 Apr. 1986 issue of WEEKEND, Southbridge, Mass.

The Gervais Family

A well-known priest and a lay reader are among the local families re-searched by the Rev. Albert Goulet, French-Canadian genealogist. The families are GERVAIS, LARIVIERE, and LAPLANTE.

The Rev. Donald Gervais, pastor of Notre Dame Church in Southbridge from 1975 to 1983, has ancestors who go back to Paris, France, in the 17th century, according to Father Goulet. Born in Southbridge, Father Gervais was the valedictorian of his high school class in 1946. He studied theology in Montreal and Rome. From 1963 to 1975, Father Gervais served as the secretary to Bishop Flanagan.

The Canadian immigrant was Pierre Gervais from the area of St. Constant de Laprairie, Quebec. Pierre was born in 1840 and was married in Webster, Mass., about 1865. The grandfather of Father Gervais was born in Southbridge in October 1868. According to Father Goulet, this family has lived in Southbridge for 120 years.

The French ancestor was Mathieu Gervais dit Parisien, born in 1648 at St. Maur des Fosses, France. This town is near Paris. Mathieu arrived in Canada in 1665 and served as a soldier of the Carignan Regiment. On Aug. 31, 1676 he married Michelle Picard at Montreal. The couple had 10 children. Mathieu died in April 1710 at Montreal.

Father Goulet noted that the name Gervais was taken by the first ancestor of this family as his last name from Saint Gervais. This saint was a French missionary to Slavic Eastern Europe in the 5th century.

The Lariviere Family

A current representative of the Lariviere family is Richard Lariviere, a lay reader at Notre Dame Church. Father Goulet presented some interesting information about this family.

Alexis Chapdelaine-Lariviere married Monique Daunais at St. Barnabe, Quebec, on May 12, 1857. His son Alexis, Jr., settled in Southbridge and married Elise Capistran here in July 1888 at Notre Dame. Alexis Jr. omitted Chapdelaine and was known as Alexis Lariviere. The French ancestor was Andre Chapdelaine dit Lariviere, born Sept. 10, 1664 at Plomb, Avaranches, Normandy province, France. This town is in the northern Atlantic region of France near Dieppe. Apparently a man of some means, Andre settled in Canada as a colonist. Later he served as a lieutenant and then as captain of militia at St. Ours, Quebec.

Family Histories (Con't)

Andre was married three times. He married Marie Anne Chevrefils on Sept. 16, 1691 at St. Ours. They had 15 children. After her death in 1719, Andre married Marie Anne Joly on Oct. 29, 1720 at Sorel, Quebec. They had four children. His third wife was Marie Chatel; the ceremony took place on Nov. 26, 1731 at Berthierville. Andre died at St. Ours, Quebec, in October 1740.

On the subject of the number of children sired by one man with a succession of wives in Quebec during this period, Father Goulet stated the following. The record is 33 children fathered by one undisclosed man with three young wives over a 40-year period. Father Goulet added that while many had 12 to 18 children even more couples had no children at all.

Father Goulet said that the name Chapdelaine means "one who wears a cope or sells copes (a long mantle worn by priests)." The first ancestor was probably a businessman who sold liturgical vestments. The local genealogist noted that the name Lariviere referred to a house near a river.

The Laplante Family

The Laplante family of Southbridge, according to Father Goulet, came from the parish of St. Aime sur le Richelieu, Quebec, where Louis Badaillac dit Laplante married Marguerite Benoit on Oct. 22, 1844. His son Edward came to Southbridge and married Ernestine Huberdeau at Notre Dame Church on Oct. 22, 1888.

The French ancestor was Louis Badaillac dit Laplante, born in 1644 at Perigueux, Guyenne province, France. This town is in southern France near Bordeaux. He sailed to Canada as a soldier in June 1665 with 1,000 other servicemen and served with the Froment Company, Carignan Regiment.

In 1669 Louis was confirmed at Chambly, Quebec. In 1672 he married an Englishwoman from London, England, named Catherine Lawlor at Sorel, Quebec. During the previous year, Catherine's marriage contract with a Louis Laval was annulled. Louis and Catherine had eight children. He died in 1704.

Father Goulet comments on the family names: Badaillac means "to make fun of everything." Hence, the first ancestor was known as a joker or clown. The name Laplante conveys the idea of "making a garden." This ancestor had a productive vegetable garden that he tended with care.

The Theriault Family

Two Acadian names and an additional Gagnon ancestor are families with many descendants in Southbridge and throughout Worcester County, according to Father Goulet, a local priest-genealogist. The names are Theriault, Landry, Caouette, and Gagnon.

There are about 200 families with the name of Theriault in Southbridge, Sturbridge, Fitchburg, Leominster, and Worcester. One member of this family is Ronald Theriault of the Sturbridge Police Department.

Family Histories (Con't)

Father noted that this family has Quebec and Acadian branches. In the Acadian branch, there were three Theriault brothers who came to Southbridge about 1860 from St. Bernard de Lacolle and were married here, probably at St. Peter's Church which is now St. Mary's. These brothers were the sons of Pierre Theriault and Marguerite Surprenant.

The first son, Jules Theriault, married Valerie Tremblay on Oct. 18, 1863 in town. Gilbert Theriault was the second son to marry. He exchanged vows with Zephirine Lamoureux on Sept. 17, 1866. Zephirine was the daughter of Antoine Lamoureux and Elizabeth Moge. The third son was Joseph Theriault who married Hermine Tremblay on Aug. 24, 1868.

The Acadian ancestor from France was Jean Terriot, born in 1601 at Mar-taize, Aulnay siegnory, Loudun region, Poitou province, France. The town is near La Rochelle on the Atlantic coast of France. In 1635 he married Perrine Ruau in the same area of France.

The entire Jean Terriot family, including children, arrived in the New World in 1640. Later, Jean's sister Perrine sailed to Canada; her husband was Martin Dupuis. Father Goulet added that the Quebec ancestor from France was Guy Theriault or Terriot dit Grandmaison. He was born in 1677 at Bourg Char-ente, Angoumois province, France. This town is near Cognac and between La Ro-chelle and Bordeaux on the Atlantic coast. His parents were Germain Terriot dit Grandmaison and Anne Guillote.

After arriving in Canada, Guy married Marie Anne Poulin on Feb. 3, 1713 at Ste. Famille, Ile Orleans, Quebec. Her parents were Martin Poulin and Jeanne Baret. Guy and Anne Marie had eight children. Father Goulet explained that the original spelling of Theriault was Terriot. This name means "a man of the land, such as a gardener or farmer, as well as a hamlet."

The Landry Family

The Landry descendants include more than 400 families in Southbridge, Gardner, Fitchburg, and Leominster. Father Goulet noted that there are Acadian and Quebec branches of this family. The coach of the Dallas Cowboys football team, Tom Landry, is most likely related to this family through his Louisiana roots, Father Goulet said with a smile.

The Quebec ancestor from France was Guillaume Landry, a tailor, who was born Feb. 23, 1623 at La Ventrouze, Tourouvre, Mortagne, Perche-Orne, France. This area is 50 miles northwest of Chartres and 100 miles west of Paris. His parents were Mathurin Landry and Damiane Desavis from Neuilly-sur-Eure, Orne, Normandy province, France. They were married at Laventrouze on Nov. 8, 1620.

Guillaume sailed across the Atlantic and married Gabrielle Barre at Quebec City on Oct. 14, 1659. Her parents were Jacques Barre and Judith Dubeau (or Marie Forget) from St. Nicolas near La Rochelle, France. This couple had three children.

Guillaume Landry was buried on Jan. 8, 1689 at Ste. Famille, Ile Orleans, Quebec. His wife Gabrielle died at age 60 on May 4, 1688 at the same town.

While there is some mystery with the exact heritage of the Acadian branch of this family, Father Goulet is convinced that a common ancestor was Jean Claude Landry, who married Marie Sale about 1625. He was probably from La Ventrouze. They came to Port Royal, Acadia. The couple had two sons, Rene, the older, and Rene, the younger. Rene, the older, was born in France in 1618, probably at La Chaussée, Picardie province, near the Belgian border. His namesake brother was born in 1634.

Rene, the older, was married to Perrine Bourg at Port Royal, Acadia, in 1644. Rene, the younger, married Marie Bernard in France in 1659. They had 14 children. Rene, the younger, died on Jan. 11, 1719. According to Father Goulet, the appellation Landry is an old Germanic baptismal name meaning "powerful country."

The Gagnon Family

In addition to the descendants of Barnabe Gagnon, referred to in THE NEWS of Monday, Feb. 18, there was also Robert Gagnon. Father Goulet said he was most likely related to Barnabe by the wives. Robert's parents were Jean Gagnon and Marie Geffray. His home was Ste. Madeleine de la Ventrouze, France. On Oct. 3, 1657 he married Marie Parenteau at Notre Dame, Quebec. Marie's parents were Antoine Parenteau and Anne Brisson.

Father Goulet is convinced that the blood relationship was between Renee Roger, wife of Pierre Gagnon, and Marie Geffrey, wife of Jean Gagnon, who were from the same parish of Ste. Madeleine de la Ventrouze, France.

HIGHLIGHTS FROM THE VALLOIS FAMILY HISTORY

Extract from "The Valois Family History & Genealogy," by Jack Valois (#31)

The family name was originally Levallois but also appears in early records of France as Le Vallois, de Vallois, Vallois, Le Valois, de Valois, even Valois. Inconsistency in spelling was common in those times of widespread illiteracy and indifferent grammar though, gradually, Canadian and American usage over succeeding centuries, helped along by marginal literacy, permanently shortened the surname in North America to Valois.

A synonym for vale or small valley, the cognomen began as a place-name meaning "one from the Levallois area" of royalist Ile-de-France province in north central France. The area initially lay between the rivers Seine, Oise, Nouette, Therouanne (a tributary of the Marne), and the Marne itself. Ile-de-France is first found in written texts after the start of the 14th century and became a province in the mid-15th century. In the same region is the town of Levallois-Perret (1970 population: 58,890), a suburb of Paris located along the Seine just four miles north of the city.

Dictionnaire Étymologique des Noms de Famille et Prénoms de France (Etymological Dictionary of Family & Christian Names of France) by A. Dauzat, published at Paris in 1951 by Librairie Larousse, asserts that Vallois/Valois variations of this family name originated in the Lunéville district of ancient Lorraine province. Now known as Meurthe-et-Moselle department, it is 190 miles directly east of Paris and 55 miles from the German border at Strasbourg. Lorraine contained a hamlet named Vallois plus a Three-Vallois section located today in Vosges department, 17 miles south of Lunéville. Dictionnaire Étymologique also cites villages called Valois in coastal Normandy, presently part of Manche and Eure departments.

Les Canadiens-Française: Origine des Familles (The Canadian French--Origin of the Families) by N. E. Dionne, published by LaFlamme & Proulx at Quebec in 1914, notes that the Levallois family and its Vallois variation originated in the St. Denis district of Levallois-Perret while the non-royal Valois (in Latin, Valesius) family and its Vallois variation came from the Lunéville district of Lorraine. As an incidental, "Baedeker's Paris and Its Environs," published by K. Baedeker in 1878 at Leipzig, Germany, lists a De Valois Street and De Valois Square in the French capitol, appropriately situated next to the former palace of that absolutist Bourbon monarch, Louis XIV.

Levallois gave its name as well to one of three general types of Stone Age toolmaking methods. In archaeology, the Levallois technique--named for the Seine River site near Levallois-Perret where artifacts were discovered--refers to the distinctive way in which local prehistoric cavemen struck flakes from chunks of flint and quartz to fashion knifelike and hafted weapons or tools.

Research in 1983 by attorney Robert A. Valois of Raleigh, North Carolina, turned up the earliest known non-royal family member in the person of Guiart de Valois, Esquire, of Picardy--a province in northern France that abuts Ile-de-France. Guiart was ennobled way back in 1276, 52 years before the royal family of de Valois first mounted the throne of France. Efforts to learn more about Guiart have been unproductive to date.

Yale University's Sterling Library in New Haven, Connecticut, yielded a puzzling find in 1983 that dates one non-royal Valois individual to 14th century Switzerland. Files of the Library's rare book collection contain an index card on Thomas Valois with the notation "died 1350? - see Thomas Wallensis, died 1350?" The latter's index card listed "Wallensis, Thomas, died 1310 - see Jorz, Thomas, died 1310."

Jorz' card partly resolved the mystery. It described him as attributed editor of a 15th century history in Latin of the Catholic Saint Augustine--and one of the earliest works of printing, which accounts for its condition description of "slightly worm-eaten and water-stained." Though Jorz, also known as Wallensis, died in 1310, his manuscript wasn't published until 1489 at Basel, Switzerland. The book contains commentaries by Thomas Valois and Nicolas Triveth, evidently respected theologians of that era. One still unanswered question: who was this probable Frenchman named Thomas Valois?

Seacoast Dwellers and Noblemen

Numbers of the Levalloises turned up 120 miles west of Ile-de-France in archives of the Channel seacoast province named for its Norman invaders--fierce 10th century Norsemen from the chill fjords of Scandinavia who pillaged, conquered, then settled among and intermarried with French inhabitants of the inland Seine River port of Rouen. Swiftly adopting the language, culture, and religion of their new wives, they began a remarkable assimilation from savage freebooters to civilized fishermen, craftsmen, and farmers of Normandy.

The third documented occurrence of the ennobled, non-royal Valois surname, according to Grand Armorial de France (Major Coats of Arms of France) by H. J. Jounglas de Mourenas, published at Paris in 1934 and 1939, was traced to 89 years before Columbus set sail for the New World. Guillaume Le Vallois is identified therein, from unspecified provincial records dating to 1403, as a Normandy resident who sometimes used the Le Valois spelling.

His grandson became the first ennobled member of that family in the late 1400s when granted the title of Lord du Mesnil-Guillaume. He wed Guillemine du Pont and their son Jean, awarded the dual siegneurial title of Lord d'Escoville et du Mesnil-Guillaume, "was summoned to appear for a (nobility) hearing at Caen in 1511, retained his title...through inheritance in 1515, and married Catherine de la Bigue."

Jean's son Nicolas, Lord d'Escoville et du Mesnil-Guillaume, married Catherine Hennequin in 1523 and served as a counsellor at the royal court in Paris. Eleven years later in 1534, evidently widowed, he wed Marie du Val, widow of Nicholas de Grandrue. Among their sons were Louis and Francois who continued a tradition of service as courtiers and realm officials at Valois and Bourbon courts of France through the reign of that nation's most famous sovereign, Louis XIV (1638-1715) of "L'état c'est moi" fame, who ascended the throne at age five and ruled 72 years, longest suzerainty in European history.

Highlights From The Valois Family History (Con't)

This particular Le Vallois family--using the siegneurial surnames of d'Escoville, du Mesnil-Guillaume, de Vilette, de Murcay, and de Mauzai--produced a 16th century Knight of Malta...a Counsellor-Secretary to King Henri II (1519-59)...a King's Page, later Provost-General of Normandy, whose son successively became Henri III's (1551-89) Gentleman-in-Ordinary of the Royal Household, Equerry of the Royal Stables (official of the court supervising a staff of officers in charge of royal stables), and Provost-General of Normandy...another d'Escoville also became Equerry of the Royal Stables, subsequently appointed Steward of the King's Household, then named a Counsellor of State.

Philippe, Marquis de Vilette, holder of the coveted military decoration, Grand Cross of Saint-Louis, was a frigate captain who eventually commanded the naval military forces of France, later serving as Lieutenant-General of Lower Poitou province (the article on Valois Huguenots describes his storied conversion to Catholicism by his aunt, Madame de Maintenon, who was also Louis XIV's morganatic spouse).

Philippe's namesake son, Count de Murcay, benefited no end from being the grandnephew of Maintenon, Louis XIV's longtime mistress. The Sun King in 1684 purchased the Queen's Dragoons from its colonel, Jacques de Brisay de Denonville, for 60,000 livres then gave the regiment to Philippe as a gift. The count later attained the rank of brigadier general in the royal army. As Marquis de Denonville (1637-1710), he went on to become governor of Canada from 1685-89.

In an age when aristocrats held the highest privileges in that realm, ennoblement was the first important step up the ladder and a basic requirement for access to loftier levels of the social structure. There were various ways of achieving noble status and its accompanying coat of arms. At the top of the heap were familles chevaleresques (chivalrous families, or Nobility of the Sword), descendants of early knights in the service of French kings and, therefore, noble by reason of birth.

Then came families of ancient extraction, unable to furnish valid documentation of nobility earlier than the 16th century, but accepted as nobles by the common consensus of their home province. This group sometimes ran into problems when a royal regime conducted periodic hearings in the various provinces for the express purpose of rooting out false claims to nobility (thereby adding any bogus, previously tax-exempt, nobles to local tax rolls).

At the bottom of the pile were created noblemen. Their basic route to ennoblement was a Letter Patent from the king, ostensibly granted for service to the crown although some titles were purchased outright. There was also the more common ennoblement by officeholding: secrétaires du roi (Secretaries to the King)...important judicial and fiscal positions, known as Nobility of the Robe...and occupants of various municipal offices. A last resort was the family that owned a feudal fief and lived in the style of nobles until recognized as such. Technically, mere possession of a fief didn't necessarily confer nobility upon a person.

In all, 18 heraldic coats of arms were granted to Le Vallois, Le Valois, and non-royal de Valois families in Normandy by kings of France, raising most to the rank of noble. The 1696 edition of Armorial Général de France

Highlights From The Valois Family History (Con't)

(General List of Coats of Arms of France) describes 10 bearings conferred on persons who indiscriminately spelled "Valois" with and without the double "l."

Coats of arms represent another invention of necessity. In the 12th century, about 100 years after the Battle of Hastings (1066) where Saxon England fell to the Norman French, plate armor came into general usage and practically every military leader wore a closed helmet of metal for protection in combat. Trouble was, inside his pot helmet a troop commander became unrecognizable and, in the confusion of battle, foot soldiers often found themselves following the wrong captain.

The problem was eliminated by painting a commander's war shield with his own individual design, or marking, in vivid color as a means of identification. For that reason, the shield has remained the central device for the identity system known first as a gentleman's shield of arms and later renamed coat of arms, derived from the garment a warrior knight wore over his steel armor.

Feudal barons who originated heraldic coats of arms were also the first of their time to assume surnames or family names. Both names and heraldic arms related to a particular territory or fief; viz., the Count de Champagne, the Count de Valois. This development of the military coat of arms into a heraldry system for identifying individuals and families is believed to have originated in Germany during the late 12th century. The practice spread to France, Spain, and Italy, and was brought to England by its Norman conquerors.

Two factors caused heraldry to flourish in Western Europe: 1) The frequent jousting tourneys between armed knights on horseback in simulation of real battle, and; 2) The Crusades, a series of wars undertaken by European Christians to recover the Holy Land from infidel Moslems. These contests and conflicts drew together knights from many countries and spurred interest in embroidering family emblems on the surcoat, or tabard, worn over chain mail armor.

Blazonry, the science of describing or depicting armorial bearings, evolved quickly thereafter. Its chief function was the description of the shield--also called the escutcheon--principal part of a coat of arms. The description details the color of the field on which devices (emblematic designs) are displayed on the shield. Coats of arms are identified by their: CHARGES (figures which commonly include a cross, lion, fleur-de-lis, flowers, or heraldic animals).. CHIEF (a band or strip occupying the top third of the shield).. FESS (a band or strip across the middle of the shield).. and BEND (a diagonal band).

Coats of arms awarded to younger sons theoretically showed design differences between them; thus, a second son would alter his shield design by displaying a crescent (usually a quarter moon). The bend sinister (narrow band extending from the shield's upper right corner to the lower left) doesn't always indicate an illegitimate child. A wavy border around the shield typically identifies such individuals. Blazonry also features a description of the crest, above the shield, and the motto of a coat of arms. Colors used in heraldic bearings are gold (or), white or silver (argent), red (gules), blue (azure), green (vert), purple and black (sable).

Some coats of arms of the Normandy Valloises were registered in the towns of Bayeux, Caen, and Saint Lo--destined as primary targets for the Allied invasion of 1944 and heavily damaged in the process. One titled Saint Lo noble is listed in Armorial Général as "Jean Joseph Le Vallois, Esquire, Lord du Manoir and Royal Keeper of the Door to the King's Chamber." This functionary of the Bourbon court apparently was a forerunner of today's White House appointments secretary!

Among others mentioned in this same reference work: Jacques Le Vallois, Esquire, Lord de Haye (town of Bayeux); Francois Le Vallois, Esquire, Lord de St. Pierre (Bayeux); Robert Le Vallois, Esquire, Lord de Fontenay (Saint Lo); Adrienne Le Vallois, widow of Georges Le Suer, Esquire, Lord de Bueron (Caen); a Catholic clergyman, Francois Le Vallois, Canon of Guerran at the cathedral of Bayeux; and Jean Le Vallois, lieutenant to the magistrate of Bayeux. Normandy's Le Vallois de Murcay family had two branches in the provinces of Poitou and Ile-de-France and both displayed the same coat of arms. Two other Norman families, the Le Vallois and non-royal de Valois, held identical armorial bearings dating prior to 1666.

Brittany province, Normandy's immediate neighbor to the southwest, was home for ennobled lines of Le Valois de Ségréac and Le Valois de Lauzerois. The de Lauzerois coat of arms was granted in 1577 by Henri III (1551-89), last of the Valois rulers of France and co-instigator with his mother, Catherine de Medici, of the 1572 St. Bartholomew's Day massacre of several thousand Huguenots in Paris.

Lords Vallois of Maine and de Vallois of Anjou, ancien régime provinces adjoining Brittany's eastern boundary, brought the number of armorial bearings in France proper to 23, including a coat of arms mentioned in "The Book of Heraldry of Paris" which was awarded Adrien de Valois, Lord d'Orville, playwright son of Louis XV's (1710-74) provincial treasurer at Rouen, Normandy. The 24th coat of arms was issued to the non-royal but ennobled de Valois from Liège, Belgium, an ecclesiastical city not far from Germany that remained under rule of Catholic prince-bishops until 1792.

Kinship to the Royal Family

Perhaps the most interesting aspect of our Valois name is its apparent relationship to 14 monarchs of the Capetian dynasty who autocratically, though not always wisely, ruled France for 261 years (1328 to 1589). Family tradition reinforces this belief but it doesn't square with the facts. The royal de Valois cognomen also originated as a place name in Ile-de-France province but from an area 40 miles northeast of Levallois-Perret, known in the 12th century as Crespy County. By a 1284 decree of King Philippe III (1245-85), it became the domain of the newly created countship of Valois and source from that date of the Counts de Valois peerage.

King Charles VI (1368-1422), 4th of the Valois sovereigns, in 1402 upgraded his family's feudal holdings in that province to a dukedom which lasted until the 1789 revolution swept away the nobility, via guillotine in numberless instances, along with their inherited privileges. Incidentally, a patriot named Levallois from Saintonge served as appointed deputy from Saintes region in the brand-new republic's first constituted national assembly.

Nowadays, the ex-Valois fief, centering around the town of Crépy-en-Valois in Oisne department, extends eastward into Aisne department. Oddly enough, the ancient Chateau Valois still survives in the town of Crépy; in 1984 it housed an archery museum.

With the 1589 murder of Henri III by a religious fanatic, the tenuous direct line of de Valois abruptly ended for lack of a male heir, replaced on the throne by Bourbon cousins and effectively canceling any claim on our part to regal ancestry. An illegitimate offshoot of this family--de Valois de Saint-Rémy, founded by a natural son of King Henri II (1519-59)--did apparently survive. As for our own natural lines, one illegitimate branch of Canadian Valoises, begun circa 1814 in Quebec, still flourishes as does an American line started in New York in 1933.

FCGSC LIBRARY & RESEARCH CENTER - Tolland, Ct.

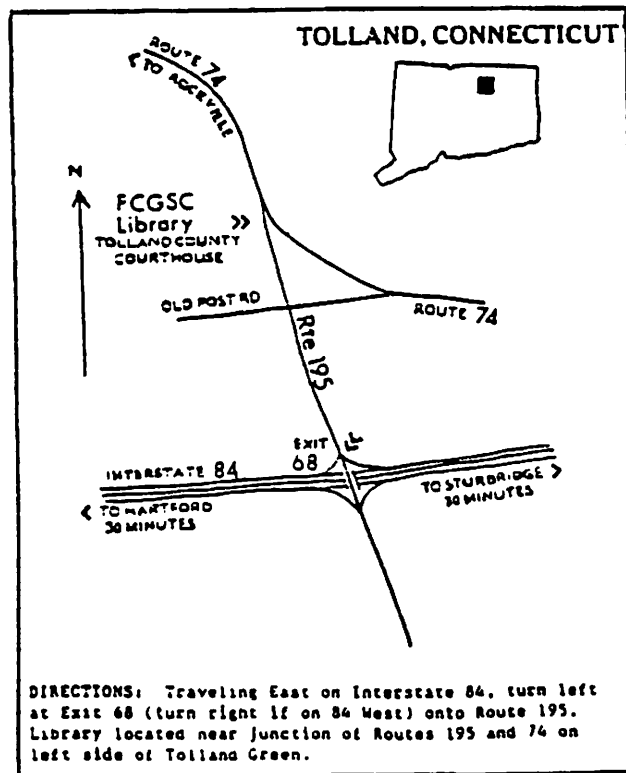

Located at 53 Tolland Green (Route 174) in the former county courthouse--within easy reach of Interstate Route 84 (see map below)--the Society Library & Research Center is for the use of FCGSC members and guests interested in tracing their French ancestry. Telephone number: 1-203-872-0138. It is open on:

Monday and Wednesday evenings - 4 to 8 pm
Saturdays - 9 am to 4 pm; Sundays, 1 to 4 pm

A librarian-genealogy counselor is always there to answer queries and can provide instructions on how to use the various genealogical reference publications as well as the Canadian and U.S. marriage or birth repositories.

A variety of French, French-Canadian, and Franco-American periodicals, plus published and unpublished family histories, are also on hand for research use. In addition, we maintain an extensive card index file of recent Franco births, marriages, and deaths from Connecticut and neighboring states.

There is also a surname data file comprising local, regional, and national newspaper and magazine clippings pertaining to individuals of French extraction. Finally, the Tolland Genealogical Library, which shares first-floor quarters with us, invites you to consult their U.S. and foreign genealogical and historical reference works.

AN IMPORTANT REMINDER TO FCGSC MEMBERS

You'd be surprised how many Society members, when asked the big question, reply:

"Of course I renewed my Society membership! Now, let me ask you one, fella. How come you folks stopped mailing me CONNECTICUT MAPLE LEAF? Huh?"

Don't wait until you start missing those two yearly issues of CML. It's a sure-fire sign that your membership in Connecticut's first Franco-American family research organization has expired.

The best way to make sure you continue receiving this state's best Franco-oriented genealogy magazine (that's because we're the only group that publishes one!) is to renew your FCGSC membership between now and September 1--if you haven't already done so.

To make things even easier for you, just complete the handy renewal form below...write out your personal check or money order (simply make it payable to "FCGSC"; saves you writing out our organization name in full)...and mail it to us today.

Remember--your annual dues guarantee you free access to a continually expanding collection of scarce Franco marriage repertories and other invaluable genealogical material at our Tolland Library. What's more, your membership fee helps us finance the purchase of additional research works for the Library, not to mention the on-going operational expenses that include publishing CONNECTICUT MAPLE LEAF.
