A NEW YEAR AND A NEW EDITOR

Welcome to another year of family research and my first issue of "Connections" so bear with me as I have no idea what I am doing. Don't go too far away just yet, Hugh!

I trust that your summer projects and searches have been fruitful. I got my fence built and the cemetery recordings targeted for the summer where accomplished, so, I had a good one. On the topic of cemeteries, this issue contains a complete index of cemetery lists held by the QFHS library. A most valuable source of information when looking for great-great Grandpa and available to all our members.

The upcoming year looks super from here, with a much better organized new home and a great bunch of people to make it work. Of course, we always need more great people. Any offers ?? Talk to us.

Anyway, I look forward to my job as editor and I certainly plan to enjoy it. I hope that you enjoy the results.

LIBRARY CORNER

by Mimi Hayward & Wendy Hayes

The cataloging of the library is well under way and soon cards will begin to appear in the catalog drawers, initially as a guide to the books and eventually as a guide to all the library resources - microfilms, journals, cemetery lists, maps, pamphlets, etc.

In the next few issues of Connections we will outline the classification of various materials, the subject headings used, and the way in which localities are shown. We want the system to reflect users' interests - family names, places, and time periods. Neither of the universally used systems, the Library of Congress and the Dewey/Sears, were suitable so we borrowed and adapted from each of these and added some original ideas suited to the QFHS collection. We are still modifying and adding as the need arises - it's a 'living' system!

The call number, on the top left corner of the card and on the spine of the book, identifies by line:

1. General subject content
2. Geographic locality and type of work
3. Author, editor, compiler (responsibility)
4. First year of publication

1. General subject content : 2 letters

- AD = General almanacs, directories, yearbooks, annual reports
- BG = Biography
- CL = Cemetery lists
- FH = Family histories
- GN = Genealogy (general)
- GS = Genealogical sources
- HD = Heraldry, insignia, flags, decorations
- HG = History, geography, demography
- MH = Military history
- PER= Periodicals
- PR = Preservation, restoration
- FIC= Fiction

2. Geographic locality and type of work : 3 numbers.1-2 numbers

- 000 = World-wide / International
- 101 = North America
- 100 = Canada
- 200 = United States
- 300 = Europe (except U.K.)
- 400 = United Kingdom
- 500 = Mexico, Central America, South America, West Indies
- 600 = Asia
- 700 = Africa
- 800 = Australia, New Zealand, Pacific Islands
- 900 = Arctic and Antarctica

The second digit represents country, province, group of states, as appropriate; the 3rd digit represents county groups, for example: 151 = Canada(100)/Quebec(150)/Montreal Island(151)

More about locality.type of work in the next issue.

"ENGLISH RECORDS" IN QUEBEC FRENCH GENEALOGICAL SOCIETIES

Last year the Q.F.H.S. joined the Federation of Genealogical Societies of Quebec. This has provided new contacts about sources of information for our members. On the opposite page is a list of the names and addresses and newsletters of Québec genealogical societies that are members of the federation.

They are not all equipped to answer quickly letters written in English but usually have someone who will make the effort. Because most of their work is with the Roman Catholic church records, the repertoires des mariages, only recently have some groups worked on " protestant " records in old communities.

Ernest Blondin of the société de genealogie de l'Outaouais has published books on old Anglican, Presbyterian, Methodist and United, Baptist and Lutheran birth, marriage and burial records, and cemeteries lists from the Gatineau -Pontiac areas and Eastern Ontario areas of the Ottawa Valley. For a list of his publications write to Ernest Blondin, Case. Postale. 41, Station A, Hull, Quebec, Canada, J8Y 6M7.

Guy W.- Richard of the Quebec City Society at Sainte Foy has a personal card index of 35,000 marriage, birth and death records of the older " protestant ". Anglican, Methodist, Congregationalist and other churches in Eastern Quebec. The areas covered is East of Lévis and Quebec City and includes Gaspé and the North Shore. Mr. Richard will answer any inquiry for $5.00 and will refund the cheque if you supply added information for his records. The information has not been published and there is not a list of cemeteries or individual sources. Write to Guy W.- Richard, C.P. 10002, Sainte Foy, Que, Canada, G1V 4C6.

The Société de genealogie des Cantons de l'Est at Sherbrooke has cemetery lists for Shefford County. Case Postale 635, Sherbrooke, Que. J1H 5K5. There is an English speaking research group in Three Rivers (Trois Rivières) who could search that area for you also.

Don't be afraid to write one of the French societies in English, they are nice people who don't bite. As a last resort write to the QFHS and we will have one of our French speaking members enquire for you.

Doops..... Our March issue make a mistake. The address of the Quebec Archives in Montreal is : 1945 Mullins St., Montreal, Qc. Sorry 'bout that.

QFHS SEMINAR

The QFHS invites you to visit Quebec next May. We are planning two days of classroom sessions, two days of touring the resource centers of Montreal, with the opportunity to conduct research.

The second week we hope our members will visit the area of Quebec that is most pertinent to their family research. It is our hope to have a "contact person" in as many areas as possible. With the knowledge acquired at the seminar and an assistant in the area you are visiting, we hope your genealogical holiday will be fun & successful.

----- ANOTHER ENGLISH SOURCE AVAILABLE -----

The Voice of English Quebec (VEQ) and the Literary and Historical Society of Quebec decided to make an active archives for the English community of the Quebec City region from the Literary and Historical Society's collection. The project was born in order to create a consistent and organized effort to gather documents and artifacts reflecting the history of the English-speaking community.

A professional archivist has been hired to set up the archives using the existing collection as a base. The second stage will be collecting more material to expand and improve this valuable historical resource.

If anyone who has roots in the Quebec City area and has dug up any historical/genealogical information, the Literary and Historical Society would be ever so grateful to obtain a copy. Of course, a copy of your own Quebec City rooted family history is more than welcome.

I'm sure our Q.F.H.S. members can make a good showing on this request. Please give it your best shot because the project is important. If you have any questions, you can reach Richard Walling of the VEQ at 418-683-2366 or by mail at:

Sheila works in the reference department of the library, as well as maintains the archives for the LaSalle Historical Society. The historical society's collection is housed within the same room but separated from the reference department.

Sheila is willing to do research for members my telephone or in person. Telephone Number 367-1000, Ext. 374. She also has access to a computer for electronic mail for inter-library loans and searching locations ect.

There are many documents on (1) Lachine Rapids; (2) Lachine Canal; (3) LaSalle & Lachine history. LaSalle is celebrating its 75th anniversary and as many people know there is a historical connection between Beaurepaire, Pointe Claire, Beaconsfield, Lachine, Dorval and LaSalle during the 1700's and 1800's especially.

Genealogy materials available contain Burkes Landed Gentry; Tusk, Scottish & American sources, as well as the Tanguay, Drouin, and the University of Montreals 20 volumes of genealogy.

LOYALIST WILLIAM SMITH -- THE FIRST QUEBEC LIBERAL

The French Canadians and the United Empire Loyalists, the people who were the losers in the Seven Years' War and the American Revolution, founded Canada. Some 80,000 Loyalists were driven into exile and over 35,000, from 1783 on, settled in the Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario. Millions of Canadians trace their roots back through the Loyalists.

Hereward Senior has been a full professor of history at McGill for many years. He has published several books ranging from the Orangemen in Ireland, Great Britain and Canada as well as the Loyalists.

FAMILY TRADITIONS AND HOW THEY CHANGE

Family traditions are often not quite what they appear to be. They change in the telling and particularly when passed on from grandfather to father to son. Bill has some real life and most interesting situations to tell us about. In genealogical research, traditions can become real devils.

Bill Marquis, one of our own members but living in Plattsburgh, New York, is the immediate past president of the Northern New York American - Canadian Genealogical Society. He was instrumental, along with Mrs. Addie Shields, in the forming of the Northern New York organization.

(Color slide presentation)

George Howson, a resident of Melocheville, was raised in Valleyfield and has spent a lifetime along the banks and locks of this old canal. George began to collect old pictures, family stories, ect., which today are incorporated into an outstanding series of slides. The talk also covers the original military canals, 3 at the Cascades and the well perserved one at Coteau Historical Park. We are indeed fortunate that George Howson has collected such a wealth of documents and pictures and will share these with us.

RESEARCHERS WANTED

The QFHS has inquiries for people who will do research in the following areas:

- Pontiac County
- Dorchester County
- Megantic
- Quebec City
- Argenteuil County
- And others

All you need is some enthusiasm and some experience. You do not need any special qualifications, although it helps if you have some, and you will gain experience as you work. Some of the enquiries may only take a little time at first and can expand later. Some of the small requests may be done on a volunteer (free) basis. Others will be paid for . These are all private agreements between the enquirer and the researcher. This is a good way to have some fun and earn some expenses and pocket money, but don't expect to get rich.

If you would like to try your hand at researching for others please write to our secretary Joan Benoit, at P.O. Box 1026, Pointe Claire, Que. H9S 4H9

The Preacher, on the subject of 'Enemies', asked if any of the congregation could honestly say that they had none. An ancient fellow in the front pew raised his hand. The preacher asked him to stand and tell everyone how it was that he was without enemies. The old lad slowly got to his feet, turned to face the congregation and said " I outlived the buggers!"

Re: The application of Dr. Robert H. Pallen

Dear Sirs,

Dr. Robert Pallen has asked me to supply a reference concerning his application for membership in your society.

Dr. Pallen is a member of the Quebec Family History Society, a group of people interested primarily in the genealogy of Québec's English speaking people. Dr. Pallen has addressed our audience with an account of his research into his own family history. With his own personal library supported by the resources of Concordia University, he produced a fascinating tale where it was hard to know where the half-truths ended and the family pride began. By comparison the epics of Rabelais and Baron Munchausen would be suitable as gospels for the New Testament.

Bob Pallen is a competent member of our society and I heartily recommend him to you.

Yours truly,

Hugh M. Banfill
President

WEE BOBBY'S VERY OWN ARMS ??

Voila, everything you ever wanted to know about Heraldry but did'nt know what to ask. Well, not everything, but thanks to Bill Ludlow, a very good beginning.

This month's theme of coats of arms and the possibility of a Canadian source for granting them, is intriguing. If the cost and critiria are to be reasonable, the idea could be extremely interesting. I realize the basic uselessness of an arms, but being your average egoistical s.o.b., I would just love to have one !! (I wonder if I'll be able to slip one past my wife ?)

There are lots of reference goodies in this issue like Alison Yeats' list of journals from other societies and Hugh Banfill's article on sticking a number on great grandma so that you can find her when you want her.

This being the last issue before the holiday season, let me say on behalf of myself and all the people that make our society the great one that it is, a very Merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year to you and yours and I hope Santa leaves you lots of old birth certificates, wills and family hierlooms under your family (Christmas) tree.

LOOKING AHEADNEEDS , COSTS,
CHANGES in WORKSHOPS and ANSWERING QUESTIONS

Like all societies we run with a budget. For the first time this year we will play $4000 in rent and face a forecast loss of about $1200 . Our increased membership income and reduced taxes and mailing costs for CONNECTIONS helped us to take the rent and loss risk for a year.

We face more costs in the future. The reader-printer for micro-fiche like the I.G.I. is obsolete and repair parts will not be available. We must plan for a new reader-printer costing up to about $ 5000. The computer system is working well and needs to be expanded for about $ 1000. We now understand fully what a time consuming job the manual membership records were. We now print 550 mailing labels for CONNECTIONS in less than an hour. An up-to-date membership list is available at any time so that labels for renewal notices are printed within half an hour.

You will soon see the results of the library indexing project. The job could not have been done manually. What volunteers would type 6000 or more dreary little cards and 2000 finicky little labels. But we cannot produce a single alphabetic list of all the books because the file on a diskette is not large enough.

We get up to 18 requests per month. Joan Benoit tries to get a quick answer which will encourage memberships. Once Gary Schroder and Joan got interested enough that the answer was two days work in three different placesfree! Even typing and mailing an answer costs time and money. Your executive has already set up a committee to look into the cost of answering requests. We are proposing a charge per hour for searching our library, with a minimum charge for non-members. Most other societies have set policies on charges because they cannot afford paid staff working for free. You have probably found this out for yourself when writing other societies. We are not a charity and our charges are the lowest of any.

Workshops are more expensive now that we must hire the hall in addition to speaker's costs. There is enough effort involved that organisers feel frustrated with little return to the society despite the work and financial risks. We have decided to raise the price of work shops. The beginners' workshop will be $ 12 instead of $10 and others will be $ 20. Fees will be payable with enrollment and will be returnable on reasonable notice or if the workshop is cancelled. Angie's extensive list of workshops is tentative and depends on the demand. Their success will eliminate our forecast loss.

We need to cover our possible loss for the year and have a surplus to put towards our needs and better service. We solicit your suggestions on how to raise our income. Please encourage possible new members, as we lose some every year, 50 new members nets us about $600. We need your help to keep building a productive, friendly and useful society.

HERALDRY

(a short explanation)

Written & Illustrated by

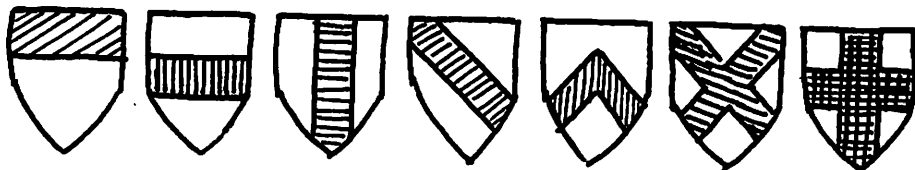

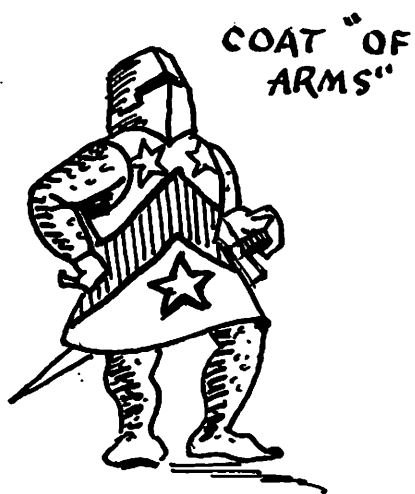

Wm.G. Ludlow

Heraldry had its origins as a method of identification in the twelfth century at the height of the feudal system in England, Scotland and Europe. As local wars became large scale confrontations and weapons increased in sophistication, more defensive armour was required and knights were soon enclosed in heavy armour and helmets that concealed their identity from their followers. It then became the custom to paint symbols on shields and helmets that would be recognized by friend and foe alike on the battlefield. Banners were also emblazoned with various symbols that would be recognizable at a distance and serve as a rallying point around the king or knight.

The medieval knight had his symbol not only on his shield, but on a surcoat that was worn over his armour, thus arose the term coat "of arms". These "arms" were displayed on his banner and on the cloth that covered his horse and came to be worn in civil life on the clothing of both he and his wife.

As no two men of the same region were allowed to use the same "arms", they then became personal symbols and were used on seals to documents and letters written for them by the clerics, the only literates at the time. A personal "crest" was sometimes worn on top of the helmet, not usually in battle, but in the jousting tournaments. This word "crest" is erroneously used today to signify a complete achievement of arms or any badge of a military unit, school or corporation.

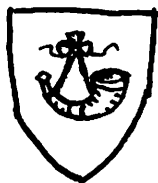

As armour became outdated, the arms were now used for decorative purposes to mark personal property such as curtains, furniture, buttons, brooches, silverware, china and writing paper as identification of the owner. As time passed and more and more people adopted their own "arms", it became necessary to control duplication. Heralds were appointed to make visitations throughout the country to record the arms used by various families and they had the power to make changes if it was found that another family had a prior right to similar designs. These Heralds established the rules which have remained valid with very little alteration to this day. Therefore everything connected with "arms" is called "heraldic" and the whole complex of armorial knowledge and art is called HERALDRY.

The College of Heraldry in England was established in 1484 to govern the design and granting of arms. The Court of the Lord Lyon in Scotland and the Chief Herald of Ireland govern for those countries. In Scotland, a grant is protected by law from improper use by anyone other than a direct descendant of the original grantee and any other person using these arms can be prosecuted.

There are certain rules governing the design of a coat "of arms". If you look carefully at drawings of arms, it is seen that only a few basic colors are used and only certain designs which, at first, seem confusing but, in fact, are not complicated. The five colors are red, black, blue, green and purple with sometimes an orange and a sort of maroon. The colors are called "tinctures" and the last two, "stains". Two "metals" are also used, gold and silver which are usually shown as yellow and white. The basic rules for general use are very simple. Color is not shown on top of another color nor metal on another metal as this would be too indistinct at a distance. Any of the above colors, though, will show up well on either white or yellow. Likewise, white or yellow shows up well on any one of the colors.

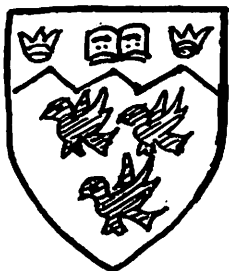

Now an explanation of the coat "of arms". They are usually shown on a shield which will be one or more of the colors and metals mentioned above. On this may be placed various symbols or "charges" which vary from simple lines called "Bends, Chevrons, Fesses, Saltires, Pales", ect. to many forms of animal and plant life. Even everyday items like water buckets, keys, ladders and anchors were, and are still used. Above the shield is usually depicted the helmet on which is the "crest". It is attached to the helmet by a twisted silk called a "torse". From this hangs the "mantle". It is thought that the mantle originated during the Crusades to keep the heat of the sun off the back of the armour. A motto on a scroll completes the "achievement" of the arms. Sometimes animals or mythical creatures are depicted on each side of the shield. These are called "supporters" and are only granted to royalty and various nobles and countries.

Heraldry is used by almost all nations, even those which are now republics and if you look closely at national flags, it will be seen that most of them conform to the rules outlined previously. Cities have their individual arms although not all have been registered properly. The City of Montreal has an attractive shield which conforms to all the rules but which has not been registered with the College of Heraldry. The City of Westmount seems to be the only city in the Province of Quebec which has officially registered its arms. Many cities and towns in Ontario have been granted new and attractive arms in place of the old ones which had been devised when Heraldry was at its worst in the Victorian era. Most of the states in the U.S.A. use very complicated and generally unattractive arms or "seals" as they prefer to call them.

The earliest arms were very simple but as more families adopted arms, they became more complex and symbols were used to reflect the surnames of the owners. Fox used fox's heads, Applegarth used apples, Miller used millrinds and Shelley used seashells. These are known as "canting" arms, signifying a pun on the name of the owner.

Heraldry is still alive and well today as can be seen in the arms of the countries within the British Commonwealth and also in their flags. Companies and corporations in these countries use arms and badges although most now use company "logos" which are, in effect, another type of heraldry. The armed forces have badges for the many branches and regiments. Members and ex-members may wear these badges embroidered on blazers and ties composed of the colors of the regiment. The Royal Canadian Legion follow this practice with their own badge and tie.

The language used for describing coats of arms is a mixture of Old French and even Saracen words and there is a specific sequence to the description. This makes it easy for anyone with a fairly basic working knowledge of it, to draw or paint these arms in their proper colors without actually seeing them.

The belief that anyone with a certain family name is entitled to use the arms of someone else by the same name is FALSE. Unless they are able to prove that they are descended in a direct male line from the original holder of the grant of the arms, it is unlawful for them to display them. Unfortunately, fancy little heraldry shops in city streets and shopping malls are offering your "Family Arms". These shops con the purchaser into laying out money for a, so-called, "Family Name" shield of arms which, in no way whatsoever, has any connection with the hoodwinked purchaser's family, other than a similar surname. It is legitimate, however, to display the shields of lawful arms of cities, universities, clubs or societies to which one is a member. If one desires to obtain their own coat of arms, there is a legitimate means to do so, but it must be done through the College of Heralds, Court of Lord Lyon or the Chief Herald of Ireland. This will cost a considerable amount of money and may take up to two years of research. Once granted, these arms are now handed down in perpetuity in that family.

At the present time in Canada, any citizen wishing to obtain a grant of arms must petition the authorities previously mentioned in England, Scotland or Ireland. As Canada has many citizens of other ethnic origins, this is not always practical or desirable. The Heraldry Society of Canada has for some years now, been very active in trying to persuade the Government of Canada to set up a Canadian Heraldic Authority to have the power to grant arms to Canadians, regulate their use and, hopefully, prosecute violators.

For Scots, or their descendants, it is perfectly legitimate to wear or display the badge of the clan with which their name is associated. This badge consists of the crest of the clan chief and is surrounded by a belt on which is written his motto. They cannot use the crest, however, without the belt around it.

There are many books on Heraldry available which go into much more detail than I have been able to cover in this brief article. Unfortunately, most are rather expensive and not always readily available in your local library. If anyone is interested in knowing more about this fascinating subject, I will be only too happy to help you. Heraldry obviously ties in very closely with genealogy and sometimes a knowledge of it can help to unravel a rather complicated family tree.

"Isn't it odd that so few people descend from the millions of peasants of the past, yet so many descend from the few hundreds of the nobility?"

OUR NOBLE ANCESTORS

There were the Scots who kept the Sabbath
And everything else they could lay their hands on.

Then there were the Welsh who prayed on their knees
And their neighbors.

Then, the Irish who never knew what they wanted

And finally, the English
Who considered themselves a self-made nation
Thus relieving the Almighty
Of a dreadful responsibility.

National Forum on Heraldry in Canada

On 26 March 1987, The Honourable David Crombie, Secretary of State of Canada, and Major Terence C. Manuel, President of The Heraldry Society of Canada, co-hosted a National Forum on Heraldry in Canada. This historic meeting took place amidst the Gothic splendour of the Centre Block on Parliament Hill in Ottawa. More than 75 delegates attended from all walks of Canadian life, including leading academics, members of the legal and medical professions, the military, ceremonial and protocol officers, Native People, federal and provincial officials, churchmen, artists, and representatives of many prominent organizations.

Among the invited guest speakers were two experts from Great Britain: Dr. Conrad Swan, York Herald at the College of Arms in London (Dr. Swan is the first Canadian-born British herald); and Mrs. C.G.W. Roads, Lyon Clerk and Keeper of the Records at the Court of the Lord Lyon in Edinburgh (Mrs. Roads is the first female British herald). They spoke with much eloquence about the heraldic traditions of England and Scotland respectively. Afterwards, many delegates raised concerns about particular aspects of Canadian heraldry.

Discussion focused on the need for the creation of a Canadian heraldic authority, independent of, but co-operating with heraldic authorities overseas. During the conference, it became apparent that Canadians must establish a multi-cultural heraldic authority, capable of acknowledging symbolic traditions from various parts of the world. Delegates observed as well that grants of arms require legislative protection in Canada. Numerous other recommendations resulted from this constructive deliberation.

Mr. John D. Blackwell, representing The Ontario Genealogical Society (Canada's largest and only armigerous family history association), presented a Brief to the Forum, stressing the importance of providing for "the registration of genealogical information in order to administer the lawful descent of arms in Canada." He went on to say that: "Genealogy has traditionally been the handmaid of Heraldry.... Therefore, it will be imperative for the Canadian Officer of Arms to be assisted by persons competent to judge the genealogical, historical and legal pitfalls of verifying a pedigree, using either Canadian or foreign documentation. This is a formidable and endlessly challenging task." In conclusion, Mr. Blackwell noted: "As a major repository of artistic and genealogical history, a Canadian heraldic authority could eventually become a great national treasure -- rivalling the vast collections of European counterparts. In this increasingly depersonalized age, the establishment of a Canadian heraldic authority would also help us all hold onto the things in our lives that make us individuals. We heartily applaud the vision of The Heraldry Society of Canada."

Delegates left the meeting greatly encouraged by the interest of the government and the progress being made in this significant endeavour. An official report of the National Forum on Heraldry in Canada has since been released, and anyone wishing further information should write to: State Ceremonial, Department of the Secretary of State of Canada, Ottawa, Canada, K1A 0M5 (which has recently produced a splendid videotape presentation entitled "Heraldry: Symbols of A Sovereign People" and an illustrated teaching kit called "Canada: Symbols of Nationhood"); or, Hon. Sec., The Heraldry Society of Canada, P.O. Box 697, Station B, Ottawa, Canada, K1P 5P8 (which publishes a most informative journal named Heraldry in Canada). Readers should also note that The Ontario Genealogical Society (which issues many useful publications) has lately moved to new premises at 40 Orchard View Blvd., Suite 253, Toronto, Ontario, Canada, M4R 1B9.

Please NOTE: If you live in the West Island region and your telephone number has recently been changed, please give Joan Benoit your new number. She can be reached at 694-2377. Thanks.

1988 is our 10th Anniversary and we would like to put a special edition of CONNECTIONS together. Any suggestions for the contents? If so, please write to the editor, he needs all the help he can get !!

We would like to make the Library Corner a regular feature, but to do this we need your help:

If you have any questions concerning the location and availability of genealogical resources in our library, or any area library, please forward them to either Mimi Hayward or Wendy Hayes in care of the Q.F.H.S. mailing address. We would welcome queries from readers in other provinces or countries, as well.

An example of the type of information we can share:

Question Where can I consult an early 19th century, large-scale map of an English county?

Answer: The Rare Book Department of McGill University has a large collection of old maps. Rare Books, located in the McLennan Library at 3459 McTavish, is open Monday to Friday, 9-5 (winter hours). It is open to the general public and no appointment is necessary.

Did you know that good things come in very small packages - for researchers interested in Great Britain? The F.F.H.S. publications are little gold mines of useful information. Some titles:

- Record offices: how to find them.
- Marriage, Census and other indexes ...
- Land tax assessments, c.1690-c.1950.
- Local newspapers, 1750 - 1920: a select list.
- Probate jurisdictions ...
- McLaughlin guide series. For example:
 - Parish registers
 - Reading old handwriting
 - St. Catherine House
 - Simple Latin for family historians

These booklets are located in the reference section of the Library. Some will be available for purchase in the near future. (See Ernie Smith).

In the next issue we'll explain the arrangement of the books on the shelves, and the filing rules for the card catalog.

The following was sent in by one of our members, Sandra Dobbie, of North York, Ont. Sandra came across this while searching thru the 1852 census for Quebec City. It is a classic.

It seems that even in 1852, city folk were given the census form to complete and these were collected later. The form requested information regarding birthplace, religion, age, sex, handicaps and births/deaths in 1851. A certain Mr. Charles Secretan had a real good time filling out his form.

Judge from the following "Remarks" column on the form:

"I have no personal knowledge where I myself or any of the other persons living in this house were born, or when, and cannot therefore, state with certainty, my own or their ages. I believe them to be of the sexes before mentioned but, not having inspected their persons, cannot, with the exception of myself, be sure that the information herein given, is correct. Nor can I tell whether they are married or single, widows or widowers with the exception of my mother. Some or all of them, with the above last mentioned exception, may, for aught I know, have had "births in 1851". I know I had none, nor do I wish to have any. As to what are "Lunatics", I am not able to define. I sometimes thinks myself slightly affected in that way. Some of our most celebrated physicians are of opinion that more than nine tenths of the human race are cracked and I think they are not far wrong.

Signed: C. Secretan Junior

THE TROUBLES OF 1837 - 38

An audio - visual slide presentation

Kevin O'Donnell, formerly a project consultant with the Quebec Ministry of Education, has previously presented us with film scripts on the Lawrence family of the Eastern Townships, the Squire of the Great Kettle, the Gaspé Schooners and the Victoria Bridge. This talented gentleman will be back to show and tell us of the Rebellions of 1837 - 38. Kevin, holding degrees in literature and art and having a very keen interest in history, began a personal search, for the 150th anniversary of the uprising, of the causes and events leading up to the troubles of this period. We guarantee this evening to be first class entertainment.

Periodical Exchange

Through subscriptions, exchanges and very welcome donations, the following periodicals from organizations and areas as noted, are being received at our library.

Our Journal Exchange Committee is endeavoring to index these for surnames and subject. Our Index File drawers are gradually filling and should soon be a useful tool for researchers.

Any volunteers in the Montreal area who would be kind enough to help with the indexing of these journals, are asked to contact the Q.F.H.S. secretary, Joan Benoit or The Journal Exchange Committee Chairlady, Alison Yeats at 481-5825.
