Scottish Family History

by David Moody

Genealogical Publishing Company Inc. 1001 N. Calvert St
Baltimore 21202 $19.95 (US)

In this book, written by David Moody, a Scottish native who clearly has a comprehensive knowledge of his subject, the reader is presented with a somewhat non-traditional but interesting view on how to research ancestors from Scotland.

Beginning with elementary and basic research techniques and sources which would be of interest to even the most novice of researchers, Moody then takes the tracing of pedigrees a considerable step further than most other authors on genealogical research techniques. He does this by introducing the reader to various socio-economic factors which have influenced family life in Scotland over succeeding generations and fully explains the significance these things have for anyone wanting to know more about his ancestors of Scottish origin.

His is a very wide-ranging and in-depth approach to the subject. For example, Moody delves into such things as the impact of religion, culture, sociological structures, democratic trends and political forces on the Scottish population. This in support of the book's overriding theme which is the history of the family and its evolution from the time clans were first established right to the present day.

As a researcher into Scottish family history myself, this book has given me a better appreciation of the kind of society in which my forebears lived. It's a well organized and easily read book, which I would highly recommend. Moody's approach gets one thinking about putting some substance onto the 'bare bones' statistics, such as births, marriage and death dates, with which we as family history researchers are so often preoccupied. To incorporate his ideas would put some colour and flavour into what can otherwise be a rather dull and lifeless compilation of basic data on pedigree charts.

Of course, this approach is not without its disadvantages. One can readily appreciate the investment of time need to fully explore and appreciate the issues Moody raises. Although this technique may not be for everyone, all readers will benefit from his insightful presentation. For those who might be considering publishing their research findings, this book would be an indispensable guide.

Clarendon

The name Prendergast is thought to be derived from the French word 'prendre', to take, and the German word 'gast', guest. It is said that at the time of the conquest of England by the Norman French in 1066, the Family lived in Paris where they operated an inn on the North road leading to Germany. They took the name Prendergast from their occupation of "taking guests". Some of the Family moved to Britain and an early Family record found in Clarendon states that the Prendergasts came from Wales to Ireland in 1831. However, there is an historical reference to an even earlier Prendergast move to Ireland.

In 1169, an army was raised in England by Richard de Claire (called Strongbow) by authority of Henry II of England, to help Dermot MacMurrough to recover his kingdom of Leinster in Ireland. The army was headed by Robert Fitzstephen, Myler Fitzhenry, Harvey de Monte Marisco, Maurice de Prendergast, Maurice Fitzgerald and others. In May, 1169, they landed in Bannow Bay, near Wexford, having sailed from Wales.

And there have been Prendergasts in Ireland ever since.

James Prendergast was born in 1789 in or near Co. Monaghan, Ireland. Little is known of his father, John Prendergast, but his mother, Maria Corry, was descended from Cornet Walter Corry, an Englishman in the army of Cromwell. The home of Maria's branch of the Family was Rock Corry Castle in the village of Rock Corry, near the town of Monaghan. In the early 1800's it was owned by Maria's cousin, the Honorable Thomas Charles Stewart Corry, High Sheriff and M.P. for Co. Monaghan.

It is believed that James was the oldest child. He had three brothers, Robert, George and Thomas and three sisters whose names are not all known. One was Elizabeth and another possibly Jane.

We know little of James' early life in Ireland but he joined the army when very young. In 1805 he enlisted as a private in Capt. Enraght's Company of the 100th Prince Regent's Regiment in Dublin. This regiment was booked for colonial service in

On Nov. 15th, 1813, he was gazetted second Lieutenant of the Voltigeurs. He finally had his commission.

On April 11th 1814, Col. de Salaberry who had charge of the forces in Lower Canada, raised a special force to meet an invasion coming by way of Lake Champlain. Men from all the troops in the colony were asked to volunteer as it was considered a very hazardous expedition. Only picked men were taken and James was one of the officers chosen. Major Herriot was in charge of these voltigeurs who formed a part of Gen. Prevost's army which also included 12000 seasoned British regulars fresh from Wellington's armies in Europe.

It was not known exactly where the American troops would strike next but they had already occupied Plattsburgh and other points on Lake Champlain. Major Herriot and his voltigeurs reached the outskirts of Plattsburgh on Sept. 6th and kept up a spirited attack until the 11th, when Gen. Prevost made the last of his many military blunders and withdrew his army, to the disgust of many of the officers and men. The voltigeurs returned to Montreal and Major Herriot in his reports before Plattsburgh mentioned James for gallantry and great daring. This was at least partly inspired by a little incident that occurred at Lacily Mill on the retreat, where a small party of the British army was reported surrounded by a body of 1000 American troops. It was considered by all that it was impossible to rescue them but James took a detachment of the voltigeurs and succeeded against the Americans.

On Aug. 24th 1815, after his battle service, James rejoined the 100th Regiment and on Sept. 1st, he was promoted to Ensign. He now had his commission in his old regiment. On April 26th 1816, he applied for promotion to Lieutenant but was unsuccessful. On Nov. 4th, 1818 he was demobilized and with many of the men, he returned home to Ireland. For his thirteen years of service he was pensioned as a Half-Pay Retired Officer on three shillings per day.

James' father, John Prendergast, probably died before James returned to Ireland in 1818, since James seems to have lived at or near Rock Corry Castle, with his mother over the period 1819-1825 inclusive, writing several letters from there and the nearby town of Cootehill. He was thinking about returning to Canada and on August 21st 1805, the first contingent of 11 officers and 260 men sailed for Quebec. Luckily, James did not go with this first contingent, as it was lost at sea and never heard from again. James sailed from Dublin with the remainder of the regiment three weeks later and reached Quebec safely. The depleted regiment was joined to a detachment of the garrison and the combined forces were known as "The Old Fighting 99th" until disbanded in 1818.

In the years that followed, James worked to advance himself and on July 15th, 1811, he was promoted to Sergeant. Soon after, on Feb. 26th, 1812, he became Quartermaster Sergeant. On Mar. 16th, 1812, he applied for a commission. This he eventually got, but not in his old regiment at first.

The war of 1812 had started and James was to see much active service as he took part in actions at Sackett's Harbor, Black Rock, Chippewa, Fort Erie, Niagara, Chrysler's Farm, Plattsburgh and Lake Champlain. He was severely wounded in three actions.

Early in June, 1813, at the time of the capture of the United States Sloop Growler and Eagle at Ile aux Noix in the Richelieu River, James, at his own request, was detached to attempt a landing of some of the troops designed to annoy the enemy from the shore opposite the island. He completed this successfully, compelling one of the American vessels to send her boat on shore. In this, with only three men, he boarded the sloop and had the honour of receiving the swords of the officers when the vessel surrendered.

James then volunteered his services as Acting Adjutant to a detachment of Canadian Voltigeur, the first regiment of French-Canadian regular troops formed by Col. Charles de Salaberry. This detachment was under orders to march against the enemy in Upper Canada and James joined them on August 2nd, 1813. At the action of Chrysler's farm he was actively engaged both prior to and after its commencement. On Nov. 11th, 1813, during the fighting, he rushed forward with a party of the 49th Regiment and gaining possession of one of the enemy's field pieces, he, with the assistance of the only man surviving of a the party, turned and discharged it twice on the American troops. For this he was mentioned in dispatches for great daring.

Canada as early as 1821 because on Oct. 30th of that year, he persuaded his cousin, the Hon. T.C.S. Corry, to write to Lord Bathurst requesting a special land grant (including some islands) in Canada for James. Lord Bathurst refused but wrote that he would be happy to direct the Governor of Canada to make a grant of land to Ensign Prendergast under the usual terms and conditions. This failure to obtain the land he wanted may have delayed James' plans and it was not until 1825 that he and "some of his people", presumably relatives and possibly friends, came to Canada.

Jane Maria Prendergast with husband John Alexander Armstrong
and son James Armstrong

He had obtained "his Majesty's permission to proceed" and arranged to draw his half-pay through the Commissary General at Quebec from the 25th of June 1825. He arrived at Quebec in July or August, 1825, probably with all of his family except Robert, the brother who came over in 1837.

Atlas of British Surnames

One hundred and fifty-four (154) comparatively rare family names have been plotted by computer on maps of England and Wales.

The maps do not indicate counties, cities or towns but are small outline drawings with concentrations of some rare or unusual names, indicated by dots. Most of the data was compiled from telephone directories by and for members of "The Guild of One Name Studies". The short notes which accompany the maps provide information as to alternative spellings and often indicate the origin of names.

The six page introduction by G.W. Lasker of Wayne State University Detroit and CGN Masaie-Taylor of University of Cambridge will interest a human biologist as well as genealogists.

The paperback book is priced at 14.95 U.S. and there is a copy in the Library.

Scottish-American Heirs

by David Dobson

(165 pages - Genealogical Publishing Co., Baltimore MD USA)

One should note that Canadian as well as American heirs are included in this book. There are also some heirs and/or landowners in Jamaica.

In Scotland when a landowner died the local sheriff held an inquiry to establish the rightful heir. The recorded evidence from these inquests, "The Service of Heirs", is kept in the Scottish Record Office in Edinburgh.

The Scottish authority, David Dobson, has abstracted those names of Scottish landowners with transatlantic heirs from "The Service of Heirs", for the 200 years between 1683 and 1883. The family name of the deceased is listed alphabetically and all other names are found in the index. The occupation of both heir and landowner and the relationship and location are given in most cases. A valuable book for the GFHS library.

Browsing in Back Copies

How well do you know your "CONNECTIONS"?

Do you realize that the first issue of Volume 1 appeared in September 1978, to be followed in December '78, and March and June of 1979, and so on down the years to Volume 13, 1990-1 with its new look! And they are all on file in the QFHS Library.

Browsing in back copies could prove fruitful for new members, and not-so-new members, too.

Volume 1 1978-79 even today gives the sense that it was "a labour of love" for the tyro editors and contributors.

No.1 Sept/78 - If you don't know the Missisquoi County Historical Society, enjoy the introduction given by the late Doris McIntosh to budding family historians. Here, too, are the inscriptions from 31 tombstones in the Old English - Burying Ground 1866 - once located on Dorchester near St. Urbain Street, Montreal, dating from 1788. Could some of the names belong on your tree?

NO.2 Dec./78 - Mme. Yvonne Lambert Tardif, Sect'y of La Société Généalogique, Canadienne-Francaise, introduced the young QFHS to the work done by her society. Perhaps she has some hints for you.

Searching for the Lost History of the Gaspé Coast with David and Doris McDougall gives a lively, enthusiastic account of "using the histories of individuals and groups to re-discover the history of a place"... and discusses a file system for those who are not yet computer buffs.

No.3 Mar./79 - Have you found Genealogical Identification Systems difficult, confusing, baffling to the point of saying "Who needs one?"? A quiet browse with Gwen P. King, as she lends a kindly, guiding hand through the maze, may be just what you need.

Genealogy and the Camera - Camera equipment has changed remarkably in ten years, but Leon Goldik's basic ideas for camera use in recording family history remain the same.

Cemetery Inscriptions at Lakefield, Gore, Argenteuil County excerpted from "The Parker Family History" (1952) and dated 1940 may provide a starting point for some of our browsers.

No. 4 June/79 - Perhaps you read the article on Argenteuil Ancestors by Pamela Oss in "Connections", Vol. 13, No. 1 and wondered about the one published Cemetery List mentioned. It's here: Cemetery Inscriptions - Edina Protestant Cemetery by Jean Mott.

Here too, listed in The British Militia and the "Blockade of Quebec" 1775-1776 by David McDougall are the names of 175 militia men (and their widows), unsung heroes of that long-ago winter. Perhaps you'll find a family member among them.

And if you are feeling jaded, and your research has bogged down, try re-charging your batteries with Getting High on Genealogy by Irene Jezek

Happy browsing in "Connections" Volume 1, 1978-79.

Volume 2 1979-80 is well worth browsing through.

Nos 1-2 Sept, Dec /79 Vermont Genealogy Parts 1 and 2 by Carole Anne Sinclair Lewis is full of information (that may need to be updated in certain aspects) for anyone just starting out on the trail of Vermont forbears - eg Probate Districts, not to mention an alphabetical list of Vermont towns and present counties.

No 3 March/80 - Have you ever considered Funeral Notices in your genealogical research? D.E. and D.J. McDougall enlarge on the possibilities and present a collection (1790-1856) for the Montreal region.

Having trouble Fitting our Ancestors into Historical Migrations to Canada? Margaret Turner, in describing her own experience may help you to see the picture more clearly. You'll want to update her fine bibliography - so much has been written in the past ten years.

No.4 June/80 - If your memory of the history of Lachine is limited to the Lachine Massacre, Margaret Oke offers you a pleasant introduction to Lachine and Its People. This issue also provides an extensive Summer Reading list, both fiction and non-fiction for those interested in not only "Who were they? Where did they live?" but also "What kind of life did they have?" Just remember this list requires updating, too.

Why not let Q.F.H.S Library help you?

This is the last paragraph of a letter written to my gggrandfather Alexander Esdon on 15th May 1833, coming from Cartside Johnstone, Renfrew, Scotland. It was addressed as follows:

Mr. Alexander Esdon
Upper Canada Settler
North America

Old H. has the face of a religious man - the heart of a fiend - the conversation of an honest simple countryman - the craft of a sneaky lawyer - The conduct of a sharper - His character are fully developed - Maliciously - jealousy - envy - hatred - spleen - Spite - Backbiting - Hypocrisy - Cruelty - What a collection - but they are no exaggerated pictures - I defy a man to clear him of one - God forgive me if wrong - I am

Not to know what happened before we were born is to remain perpetually a child. For what is the worth of a human life unless it is woven into the life of our ancestors.

Exciting News

As mentioned in previous issues of "Connections", the British Government has made available for sale on microfiche the indexes to births, marriages, and deaths in England and Wales for the period 1837 to 1983.

The Q.F.H.S. has set up a special fund to be used solely to buy these microfiche. From this fund we have been able to obtain the indexes to marriages for the period 1837 to 1850 inclusive. These indexes are presently in our library.

We have ordered also the indexes to births for the same period. The cost per year for each index to births or marriages or deaths is approximately $50.

The Q.F.H.S. would appreciate greatly any donations to this special fund. Please remember that the Q.F.H.S. is a registered charity and that any donation is tax deductible. For those of you who have always dreamed of finding your ancestors in England and Wales, this is your golden opportunity.

Please specify the use of your donation to:

1. Fund to purchase microfiche from the British Government
2. Fund for the purchase of Library books
3. Fund to purchase a new microfiche/microfilm printer/reader
4. General fund
5. Miscellaneous

By the time this issue goes to press we will have purchased the new reader/printer and members can now be assured of having excellent prints from both a microfilm or a microfiche with the least possible trouble. Just the push of a button! However, one must not forget that the QFHS can still use donations for the printer/reader.
