The woman in this photograph is Maja Kajsa Larsdotter, great-grand-mother of the Rev. Donald Wold. She was born in 1820 and died in 1900, living her entire life in Sweden.

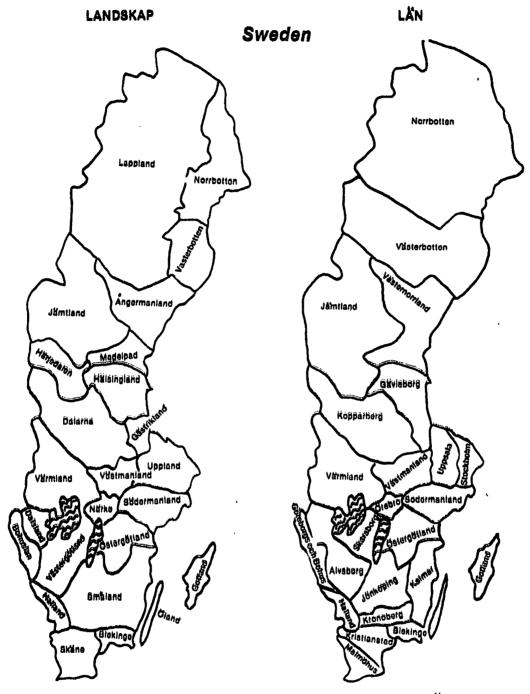

Maja Kajsa was influenced by the religious revivals that swept Sweden in the 1800's, and she became an extremely strict person in belief and practice. She labeled nearly everything as "sin."

She believed it was a sin to have one's picture taken, yet she posed for this photograph due to special circumstances. The child she is holding was her sister's grandson. The occasion for the photograph was a paternity suit held in a court, and she was acting in place of the child's grandmother, who had died. It was evidently necessary for someone to be photographed with the child, and Maja Kajsa seems to register strong displeasure at having to be photographed! Taken in Sweden in 1856, this photograph was found recently by the Rev. Wold in an old album he received from relatives in Sweden.

SUCCESSFUL SWEDISH GENEALOGICAL RESEARCH REQUIRES UNDERSTANDING OF COUNTRY'S POLITICAL DIVISIONS AND PATRONYMIC NAMING SYSTEM

By the Rev. Donald Edward Wold

The starting point in researching families of Swedish descent is to some degree the same as the starting point of any family research. Some very basic information is needed. One person, perhaps a grandparent, may be selected who you know was born in Sweden. Naturally, a birthdate is very important for research in Swedish records. The parish is often the same as the town, but not always. The paster has been the official record keeper in Sweden for the

The older records are housed in archives which have jurisdiction over various areas of the country. Only records from about 1870 to the present are still kept in the parish office. As they become older, they are sent to the regional archives and deposited there. The starting point for research in Swedish records is a birth date and the name of a parish.

There are three main divisions in Sweden; from the largest to the smallest they are the province, the län or county and the parish. Large cities may have a number of parishes within them. There are twenty three provinces as follows: Skane, Blekinge, Smaland, Halland, Bohuslän, Dalsland, Ustergötland, Västergötland, Södermanland, Närke, Värmland, Vastmanland, Uppland, Gästerikland, Västerbotton, Hälsingland, Härjedalen, Medelpad, Jämtland, Angermanland, Dalarna, Norbotten and Lapland. You may know what province your ancestor came from, but that information alone will not be too helpful. For example, if you know that your grandparent was born in and emigrated from Värmland, that helps you locate the part of Sweden, but you need to know more. That would only be as helpful as knowing that a relative was born in Minnesota or Wisconsin.

Their second division in Sweden is the county or län (pronounced "len"). These are basically governmental administrative units and this division is not particularly helpful in genealogical research, except in one respect. The regional archives known as "landsarkivet" house records according to the läns. There are seven of these archives in Sweden. Each archives has jurisdiction over and contains records of the parishes in three or more läns. Addresses for these archives will be given later.

All records, all vital statistics, are kept by the parish office and therefore it is imperative that one know the particular parish of the relative in question. In some cases, there is more than one parish in Sweden with the same name. Then, of course, it is necessary to know the province as well. When we speak of a parish, we are speaking of the Lutheran State Church of a particular town or area. Sometimes a relatively small town may have within it two separate parishes. Every person in Sweden is found in the records of the state church, whether or not he has ever attended or been active in the church. There are both religious and civil records kept in the parish office. Every birth, marriage and death is recorded, as well as baptisms, confirmation records and records of leaving and entering the parish. In addition to these records, the parish pastor made periodic visits to his parishioners for the purpose of examining them spiritually and in order to ascertain needs and problems among them. This also served well as a census, and it is a very helpful source of information for research.

If we know the parish where a relative was from in Sweden, we have a start. If the parish is not known, some clue about it may be found in old letters from Sweden, old documents or even old photographs which may have on them the name of the photographer and the town in which he had his studio.

Along with the parish, we need a date, preferably a birth date or at least an approximate year. Then it is possible to search records for a certain year or for a short span of years in a parish for a specific name. A birth record will usually give the following information: name of parents, name of farm if the family lived on a farm, indication of whether this was a legitimate or illegitimate birth, and usually the names of baptismal sponsors, along with the date of baptism. Usually, though not always, this took place just a few days after the birth date. The listing of sponsors is interesting and may be helpful in that very often relatives, aunts or uncles perhaps, or other close relatives, served as sponsors. Here is a clue to other persons who are very possibly related to the family.

Names can present quite a problem as one searches for information about a relative who was born in Sweden. It is often discovered that entirely different names were used by the same person than those one was aware of when he began his research. Confusion often results and sometimes a person concludes that his relative cannot be found in the records of a certain parish when, in fact, that person is simply listed with another name. The system of patronymics was used for centuries in Sweden. This concerns a way of naming children by using the father's first name and adding "son" or "daughter" to the name. If a man by the name of Carl Person had a son, the son's surname would be Carlsson, literally Carl's son or son of Carl. It is also certain that the first name of Carl Person's father was Per. John Carlsson's son would have the surname of Johnsson. Therefore, each generation produced a different surname in a family, depending on the father's first name. The same principle held true for girls. If Carl Person had a daughter whose first name was Mathilda, her full name would be Mathilda Carlsdotter (Carl's daughter).

The system of names in Sweden, however, is not as simple as that. There are many other factors that account for a discrepancy in names even in the same family. Some men who served in the Swedish army were given a military name, and they might have chosen to keep that name throughout their lives. All farms in Sweden, no matter how small or humble, had and still have a specific name. Often people took for their own names the name of the farm where they lived, although this practice does not seem to be nearly as common in Sweden as it has been in Norway. Still others chose a name which described some feature of the land, some aspect of nature or some other descriptive word. Examples include Björk (birch), Backe (small hill), Ström (stream), Blom (flower), Holm (island), Sjöstrand (seashore), Berg (mountain). There are many other examples of these kinds of names.

Not only did the people in Sweden seem to choose any name they wished, but confusion increased often when people emigrated to the United States. Tracing persons from Sweden to America creates many difficulties and frustrations as seemingly the persons who came to this country cannot be found in any records here. The answer usually is that again here they chose any name they wished to make their own. Some who came with names such as Andersson, Johnsson or Petersson decided that they might better choose a less-used name, a more distinctive name. Others thought very differently, and if they came here with a rather unusual Swedish name, one difficult to pronounce or spell, or one that might sound strange to others, they "joined the crowd" by becoming a Carlsson, Olsson or Andersson. It might also happen that if brothers came here from Sweden they might each settle on different surnames.

As records in Sweden are searched, it may become apparent for yet another reason that there is a problem or a discrepancy in names, particularly in first names. Some of the common first names seem to have a variation or an alternate form. Therefore, Peter and Per are the same name. Carl Persson may for no particular reason be listed in one record as such, and in another record in the same parish as Carl Petersson, for his father could also be known as Per or Peter. Therefore, when it appears that a certain person cannot befound where he should be found in a certain record, it may be that the other form of his name has been used.

Another example is the name John. He may also at times be listed as Johan. A common woman's name in the past in Sweden was Caisa, yet that seems to be an old or corrupted form of quite a different name, Cathrina. The names Maja and Maria are another example. Lena could also be Helena at times in the records, and Lisken is a very old form of Elizabeth.

Often a child was given two or three names at his birth. Occasionally that person, as he grew up, chose to use his second or third name as his official name, again making it appear that a mistake was made somewhere in the records, when this is actually not the case.

Confirmation records can be helpful, at least in pointing out the existence of people already found in parish birth records. Usually a child was confirmed at about the age of fifteen, although this sometimes may vary within a year either way. If a child cannot be located in the confirmation records fourteen or fifteen years after his birth, it is likely that he died as a child, or that the family moved to another parish sometime during those years. Confirmation records may indicate how well each child did in his or her course of study, and other basic information about each child is given, such as names of parents and birth date and the name of the farm or place in the parish where the family lived.

Marriage records generally only contain the most basic information: the names of the persons who married, the date, and the names of the farms from which they came if they lived on farms. Death records give the name of the deceased, the name of the farm, the date of death and often the cause of death.

SOCIETY NOTES AND THE EDITOR'S CORNER

We are quite excited about our four-part series on Scandinavian research prepared by the Rev. Donald Wold which begins in this issue. He has done extensive research in Norway and Sweden, as you will note from his ancestor chart which is printed in this issue. Since we will not publish this series consecutively, you may write to the Rev. Donald Wold, 730 Brown Street, Norway, Michigan 49870, if you have a specific problem. Please include a S.A.S.E.

The November meeting was chaired by Vice-President Kate Chiesa. Plans for our ethnic potluck Christmas gathering were dropped. A suitable meeting place had not been found. There was no meeting in December.

If you would like back issues of DICKINSON DIGGINGS, Volume I, a back-issue policy has been established. Single issues of the quarterly are $2.00; the complete volume (four issues) is $5.00. An index to DICKINSON DIGGINGS, Volume I, is being prepared. We hope to have it completed by May. The cost of the index has not yet been determined.

We had hoped to add several pages per issue to DICKINSON DIGGINGS this year. However, due to the increased costs of publication, which would have had to have been passed on in the form of higher membership fees, those plans were cancelled, and dues remain at $5.00 per year.

At present we have only enough ancestor charts for the next two issues. If no additional charts are received by the end of February, members whose charts have been published and which contain ancestors beyond the sixth generation will be completed. If you wish others to know what lines you are researching, please don't delay in sending us your ancestor chart. In the future we plan to compile a surname index to these ancestor charts for your convenience, and the convenience of other researchers.

In the April issue of DICKINSON DIGGINGS, Hazel Dault has written an article on the men of the Iron Mountain militia who fought in the Spanish American War which will include a listing of the members of Company E. Bill Cummings has copied the indices to Volumes I and II of the Petition and Record at the Dickinson County Courthouse. A vast amount of genealogical information is included in these Petition for Naturalization documents. This list and a related article will also be included in the April issue.

THE SPANISH AMERICAN WAR'S EFFECT ON DICKINSON COUNTY

By Hazel Dault

Because of Spain's oppressive treatment of Cuba, discontent and starvation caused Revolutionists to demand their independence. This revolt also incited the people of the Spanish Colony of the Philippines to declare their independence.

The United States tried to alleviate some of the sufferings of the Cuban people. The battleship Maine was sent to Havana on a friendly visit and was sunk on 15 February 1898. This event led the United States to demand that Spain give up sovereignty over Cuba. Spain refused, and on 21 April 1898 President McKinley called for 200,000 men to fight.

Over eighty men responded from Iron Mountain, and soon found themselves at Newport News, waiting to board the Harvard for Cuba.

These men were miners, blacksmiths, backwoodsmen and tradesmen, and because of their skill with a pick and ax, they were used to build roads and dig trenches near the battle line.

Soon hundreds of them fell ill with fever and terrible conditions prevailed. They had no tents, cots or clean clothes.

In July 1898, Sergeant John Oliver wrote home that the Spanish were on top of a hill "higher than the Hulst School hill." They expected the Spaniards to surrender at any moment as their water supply was cut and they were starving.

Patriotic fever ran high back home. Ladies and girls were sewing "comfort bags" to send to their men in Cuba. These bags were a pitiful effort to ease the men's suffering, and contained black thread, needles, pins, gum, scissors, tape and linen rags to staunch the blood of a wound, a kerchief for the neck and a comb.

After the hoisting of the white flag by the Spaniards, the 2nd Battalion was ordered toward Siboney. There they were to carve more roads out of the malaria-infested swamps. A fate worse than death by bullets awaited them, for Company D of Calumet lost twelve men to malaria immediately. The men from Dickinson County were to suffer the effects of malaria for years.

In August most were shipped back to the United States. The government established a camp at Montauk, Long Island, for the recuperating men. Most had scurvy, malaria or yellow fever.

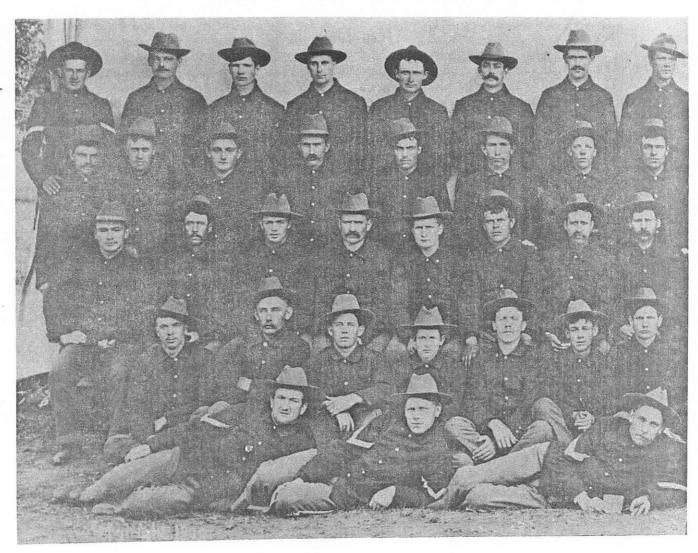

Leading businessmen of Iron Mountain sent a local doctor, J. Addison Crowell, to New York to help care for the men. He discovered sixty men from Dickinson County on the sick list.

On September 1, the men were granted a furlough home. They arrived mostly by train, broken and semi-starved. They would not be discharged until their health had been restored and they were certified free of contagious disease.

The Chicago and Northwestern Railroad issued an order to all conductors and agents to give special care to returning soldiers while upon the trains or at the stations of that company. They were instructed to carefully observe whether the soldiers were in need of food or were sick and required medical attention. The expense was to be borne by the railroad.

Volunteers who were to be mustered out and who were on furlough received ration money for their furlough time in addition to regular pay. Ration money amounted to 25 cents per day. This, in addition to regular war pay of $15.60 for privates, brought the monthly wage to $23.10.

The remains of the dead were not shipped home until April of 1899. A corps or twenty undertakers with caskets and chemicals went to Santiago to dig up the bodies of all the Americans. They stayed in Santiago about a month during which time the bodies of all Americans were taken from the ground and placed in hermetically-sealed coffins. These were then brought to New York and from there shipped to relatives at government expense. Those not claimed were brought to Washington and given an honorable burial in the national cemetery.

On Wednesday, April 5, 1899, nearly a year after they were mustered in, the boys from Iron Mountain were laid to rest. The caskets were carried to the armory under a guard of honor and surrounded by plants and flowers.

Services were held in the Swedish Methodist Church, chosen because it was the largest. Hundreds were unable to enter the church as it was crowded to its doors by people of the town who came to honor the fallen heroes. Choirs sang and eulogies were delivered by many of the ministers of the different churches. It required six railroad coaches to carry the mourning friends and relatives to the cemetery in Quinnesec, along with hundreds of carriages. The dead men of Company E were taken to their final resting place.

Though they were the first to fall, they weren't the last, as the silent killer, fever, stalked many of the men and picked them off, one by one, month by month. The Spanish American War proved to be a war of disease rather than of bullets for the men of Iron Mountain, Michigan.

The following list appeared in the Iron Mountain Press on Thursday, August 7, 1902. The article noted that members of Company E would receive medals from the state, and the roster printed below was the roster of Company E as mustered in at Island Park.

SOCIETY NOTES AND EDITOR'S CORNER

The Dickinson County Library's genealogical and local history collection has been moved into an alcove which has been fitted with a locked door to better protect the rare and out-of-print books. Persons wishing to use the material may ask for the key at the librarian's desk. The library is developing an extensive local history file which is located in this area. The "how-to" books on genealogy are again housed in the 929 section of the stacks.

A bulletin board purchased by the DCGS and built by Jim Dault has been placed next to the door to the Local History and Genealogy collection, where current items of genealogical interest will be posted. Florence Trestrail has volunteered to maintain this bulletin board.

We now exchange quarterlies with the Dallas County [Texas] Genealogical Society and the Genealogical Society of Vermont. Their publications will be placed in the new Local History and Genealogy room.

Our January meeting saw the election of new officers for the year which are listed on page 31. At that meeting Mr. and Mrs. Worth Bench, Mormon missionaries, showed filmstrips of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints library in Salt Lake City, Utah, which explained what one might find there and how to find it. The filmstrips also told how to use one of their branch libraries which will prove helpful to the members who use the branch library in Shawano, Wisconsin.

Members exhibited some of their genealogical books and materials at the February meeting's Book Bash. Members eagerly examined the numerous items on display and exchanged information and helpful hints.

Our guests at the March meeting were Mel Miner, associated with the Asp Funeral Home in Norway, Michigan, and Billy Ed Wenzel, sexton of the Norway Cemetery for more than forty years. Using a large map of the cemetery, they explained the history and layout of the Norway Cemetery and told us what records are available at the funeral home and the sexton's office. Although the first burial took place in 1880, records exist only from 1918. The DCGS will begin reading the Norway Cemetery this spring.

In our next issue, the Rev. Donald Wold's series on Scandinavian research will continue. He has accepted a pastorate in Kewanee, Illinois, and persons wishing to contact him concerning a Scandinavian research problem may do so by contacting him at the following address: 102 Willard Street, Kewanee, Illinois 61443. Be sure to include a S.A.S.E.

Thank you for your response to our plea for queries and ancestor charts. Please keep them coming, so we may include them in future issues.

MANY GENEALOGICAL BRIDGES ACROSS THE ATLANTIC MAY BE FOUND IN PETITIONS FOR NATURALIZATION IN COURTHOUSES ACROSS THE UNITED STATES

By William J. Cummings

Among the myriad of official documents housed in county courthouses across the nation are documents relating to the naturalization of immigrants. Some of these naturalization records contain a wealth of information for the genealogist. Of particular significance are the Petition for Naturalization documents in use by the federal government beginning thon documents in use by the century.

The following information may be obtained from these Petition for Naturalization documents: full name of petitioner; current place of residence; occupation; exact date and place of birth; exact date and place from which the petitioner emigrated to the United States; port of arrival in the United States and name of the ship; date and place where intention for naturalization was filed; marital status, and, if married, name of wife and her place of birth and current residence; number of children, complete with full names, dates and places of birth and current places of residence; statement recouncing allegiance and fidelity to country of which petitioner has been a citizen/subject; oath stating petitioner can speak English; statement regard-ing continuous residence in the United States for at least five years preceding continuous residence in the United States for at least five years preceding continuous residence of residence within the United States for the past year, is given; oath that the petitioner has not petitioned for citizensting before any other court; date of record.

In an effort to make members of the Dickinson County Genealogical Society aware of those Petition for Naturalization records which are on file at the Dickinson County Courthouse in Iron Mountain, Michigan, which contain the above information, the indices of the numerous volumes containing these records will be published periodically.

"ONLY A MINER" -- MINING MISHAPS ON THE MENOMINEE RANGE

BLOWN TO ETERNITY: William Williams and Lorenzo Sontini the Victims of a Premature Blast

Last Saturday afternoon at about half past five o'clock, at the open pit of the Antoine Ore company, William Williams and Lorenzo Sontani [sic], were blown to eternity by a premature blast of dynamite. Williams was literally blown to pieces below the waist line and his death was instantaneous. Sontani had one eye blown out and the sight of the other ruined, his jaw broken and the left leg mangled below the knee. In this condition he lingered for several hours.

It is not known how the accident happened, as the men were working in an isolated part of the pit. They were preparing for a blast, and the mine management is of the opinion that they were tamping home the cartridges with an iron bar. This is contrary to all rules of mining and is almost certain to result in an explosion. It is a much quicker way of doing the work, however, and careless miners frequently take the risk.

Williams has been a resident of Iron Mountain for many years and was highly respected by his associates. He was about forty years of age and leaves a wife and several small children in rather poor circumstances. Of Lorenzo Sontani but little is known of his history, a young man, about twenty-eight years. He was arrested about a year ago for being implicated in the murder at the Pewabic boarding house, but the prosecution was unable to make a case against him and he was discharged. --Iron Mountain Press, Thursday, July 29, 1897

FATALITY AT THE PEWABIC: Cage Drops Sixty Feet With James Bennets, Causing His Death

James Bennets, a young man about 19 years old, met with an accident at the Pewabic last Saturday night which resulted in his death. He had come to the surface to make some inquiry about a certain grade of ore, and as he stepped into a car to go down, bid some companions, who were standing near, good-bye. He rang the cage down, and immediately after those standing on the surface heard a crash. They rang up the other cage and went down slowly looking for the cause. When down about 100 feet they found the cage held by the grippers to the frame of the shaft, and Bennetts [sic] pinned in between the iron cage. They went up again and got help and took him out. He was still alive and was sent to the hospital where he died soon after of his injuries. It is thought that the accident was caused by the cage catching in some way at the surface until the rope slackened, when it fell down the shaft until stopped by the grippers, and that the sudden stop threw Bennetts out of the car, which fell back on him causing internal injuries from which he afterwards died. He leaves a widowed mother, five brothers and two sisters. -- Iron Mountain Press, Thursday, July 5, 1900

SHORT HAPPENINGS

Giles King, night captain at the Badger Mine, Commonwealth, was crushed to death under a mass of ore while in the discharge of his duties last Friday night. Capt. King was a former resident of Iron Mountain, moving from here some six years ago. He was quite prominent in labor circles and took an active part in politics. He was the Demo-Labor candidate for representative in the state legislature, but was defeated by Hon. B.S. Waite. Capt. King leaves a wife and five children in comparatively comfortable circumstances. He was a good citizen, and many friends will mourn his untimely death. --Iron Mountain Press, Thursday, July 30, 1896

SWEDISH PARISH TRANSFER RECORDS PROVE EXTREMELY USEFUL IN TRACING MOVEMENT OF PEOPLE WITHIN THE COUNTRY

By the Rev. Donald Edward Wold

Of great importance among the parish records in Sweden are the out-going and in-coming records. In the past, there was a great deal of movement of many of the people in Sweden. This was true mainly of the peasant or farm-worker class of people. These people did not own their own farms. Many worked as servants. A drang was a male servant and a piga was a female servant. They are noted as such in many of the church records. This class of people went wherever work was available. They might move from farm to farm or parish to parish, and, of course, there could also be other reasons for moving.

When a person left a parish for any reason, he or she would go to the pastor and obtain an exit permit called a "flyttningsbetyg," even if the parish he or she was going to was only a mile or two away. It was noted by the pastor in the exit permit that this person was leaving his parish and going to another parish, and this parish was specifically named. The exit permit was carried to the pastor in the parish where the person was going, and shown to him. This pastor would note in his entrance records that this person had come from such and such a parish and was intending to live there for the present at least. In other words, careful records were kept on all persons and their whereabouts, though indications of carelessness in record keeping became apparent from time to time.

However, when a researcher begins to trace people in these records, numerous problems may arise. For example, Carl Persson intends to leave parish A and go to parish B. He receives an exit permit and in the exit records of parish A, the date he leaves the parish and the name of the parish to which he is going is noted. However, often when the incoming records are checked for parish B, perhaps for a day or two after the exit date from parish A, nothing about Carl Persson can be found. His name does not appear even weeks or months later in parish B. From there it can be extremely difficult to ascertain what happened to him, and where he can again be located in any parish records. He is "lost," so to speak, at least for a time.

There might be two or three possible conclusions to be drawn from this problem. Perhaps Carl Persson was permanently side-tracked from his plans to go to parish B, or he changed his mind and went elsewhere. It is also very possible that as he came to parish B the pastor simply neglected to note Carl Persson's arrival in his records. Possibly the best thing to do would be to check the incoming records of several of the neighboring parishes with the thought that Carl Persson simply decided to go to another parish nearby to work and live. It is also possible that he will remain "lost" as far as further research on him is concerned. This happens frequently, and pastors even had a section in their own records for those who were unaccounted for and never heard from again. It is also possible, of course, that this Carl Persson will turn up in records of parish A, his home parish, even years later.

Another important record is the "flyttningsbevis" which is another type of exit permit. This concerns emigration from Sweden. Information on this document includes birth date, name, parish where born, parish where presently residing, and destination. Also there is a place for comments as to the person's reading ability, knowledge of the Christian faith and eligibility for Holy Communion, and whether or not this person has been immunized for certain diseases. Some of these categories are often not filled out. This document is helpful in learning or in confirming basic information about the person. It gives the date of leaving a parish and the destination which is usually simply given, such as "N. America." Because of the date on this document, the study of passenger and immigration lists in the United States is facilitated.

Documents known as "bouppteckningar" are very helpful and uniquely interesting to the person researching Swedish records. This document is similar to our probate court records and also, in some ways, is similar to a will in this country. If the death date of a person is known, it may be possible for the court of that county to provide you with a copy of the "bouppteckningar" for that person. This document first names the deceased and the date of death. Then members of the immediate family are listed and if not the immediate family, those who are the closest relatives or closest friends are listed. The parish where the descendants and heirs live is also listed. Then follows a very specific listing of all of the possessions and financial assets of the deceased. Household possessions, for example, are listed individually down to the cups and saucers, pots and pans, chairs, tables, etc. The monetary value of each item is given and this is totalled. There is also a specific listing of the heirs and the amounts of money left to each of them by the deceased. Finally, there are the witnesses listed who have signed the document, attesting to the fairness and reliability. The "bouppteckningar" is helpful in genealogical research in learning of others in the family of the deceased who are listed as heirs. It is also helpful in giving a good picture as to the prosperity and the style of life lived by the deceased.

Other types of records include military records which are housed in the Krigsarkivet (Swedish Military Record Office). The Kammararkivet (Cameral Archives) contains lists of real property, tax records, mortgages, transfers of property, etc.

The other very helpful and crucial record has been alluded to earlier. This is the household examination roll or "husförhörslängder." This record serves as a census, but also gives more information about a household than a normal census record would provide. Periodically, the parish pastor visited his parishioners in their homes and on their individual farms. Sometimes a certain farm was designated as the place to meet for this examination/census. The pastor filled out a form for each household, and for all the people living at every farm, including the owners and their families, all of the servants and anyone living there for any reason. This record gives the name, occupation, birth date, birth place, and, if from another parish, the date of arrival is noted. Notations are made on this form concerning the educational status of each person and their knowledge of the catechism and the Christian faith. This information was gleaned by the pastor as he visited and examined his parishioners. It is also usually noted as to whether each person has attended Holy Communion at least once during the year.

Other matters about people are also frankly noted. The undesireability of certain persons in the parish is noted, those who were drunkards, mentally retarded, criminals or blatantly immoral in their conduct. More than any other record, the "husförhörslängder" gives a total picture of a family or a household or of all living at a particular farm. Much more is obtained from this record than simply vital statistics. This record served as a census—taking for the parish and for the pastor it served as an opportunity to have at least a brief contact with each person in his parish. It was his opportunity and responsibility at this visit to record data and to see how his parishioners were generally faring, spiritually and physically.

"ONLY A MINER" -- MINING MISHAPS ON THE MENOMINEE RANGE

At the Pewabic mine, last Friday morning, occurred an accident that came near resulting in the death of several men. Antoine Gambarini, George Villa, Phil Micholini and Joseph Zand were engaged in drilling on the fifth level of shaft No. 1, when the drill penetrated a missed hole causing the cartridge to explode with terrible force. Villa and Gambarini received many cuts and bruises and the former a broken arm. For a time it was feared that they might lose the sight of an eye each, but this danger has been evaded and the men are resting comfortably at the Pewabic hospital. Micholini and Zand received injuries of a trifling nature. ——Iron Mountain Press, Thursday, April 11, 1901

FATALITY AT THE VULCAN

Last Saturday morning, a fatal accident occurred at the west Vulcan mine in which Guillo Molletti, a young Italian, lost his life. Molletti was at work underground. Soon after going down into the mine to work a large fall of ore caught him, crushing out his life. It is estimated that at least seven tons of rock and ore fell. The young man was a nephew of Peter Moligoni, of Norway. He was married eleven months ago, and leaves a wife and child. --Iron Mountain Press, Thursday, May 2, 1901

Last Monday morning at eleven o'clock, August Wick met death by the falling of ore in the Loretto mine. He was working on the fourth level. His head was crushed. Deceased was aged 27 and was unmarried. --Iron Mountain Press, Thursday, May 16, 1901

The April meeting of the DCGS was highlighted by talks on names and naming systems by Florence Trestrail, Hazel Dault and Bill Cummings. We learned that a researcher should be aware of the many ways in which the surnames and given names may change.

Problem solving was the theme of our May meeting. Members explained some of the problems they were encountering in their research and were given helpful hints on new avenues of approach.

In June members told of the ways they have organized their information on their various families for easy reference and how they solved some of their own research puzzles.

Your editor wishes to remind you that when asking for information from others, it is genealogical courtesy to include a S.A.S.E. (self-addressed stamped envelope). This includes letters to individuals, genealogical societies, historical societies and libraries. Most of these organizations operate on very small budgets which do not allow for extra postage.

The DCGS is now selling forms in packets instead of by individual sheets at the following rates: family group sheets, 10 for $.50, 20 for $1.00; pedigree charts, 5 for $.40. This enables our treasurer, Toni Cummings, to eliminate a tedious duty included with her position.

We were informed, to our immense pleasure, that the Library of Congress has requested copies of Dickinson Diggings for placement in their genealogical collection.

The DCGS has placed an order with the National Archives for a microfilm entitled "Special Schedule of the Eleventh [1890] Census Enumerating Union Veterans and Widows of Union Veterans of the Civil War." This roll contains the names of those who were living in the counties of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, as well as in several counties of the northern Lower Peninsula.

In our list of members for 1983 published in Volume 2, Number 2 (April, 1983), there was an error in the name of a member. Mrs. Ellen Cootware's complete name is Mrs. Ellen Cootware Conner. We apologize to Ellen for our mistake.

Joan Oberthaler, of Norway, is the co-ordinator for the reading of the Norway Cemetery. If you wish to help with the reading of this cemetery, please contact her for an assignment.

Bill Cummings recently purchased a family Bible at a local antiques store. The Bible was published in 1865 by the American Bible Society in New York and contains the family records of Mr. and Mrs. S. Moffat, who at one time resided in Marquette, Marquette County, Michigan. Children's names include Angeline, Eciphere, Ida, Eva, Lottie, Olevina, Joseph E., Mary, Phiemon, Francis F. and Silas. Anyone able to prove a direct connection with this family may have the Bible for the purchase price and postage.

"ONLY A MINER" -- MINING MISHAPS ON THE MENOMINEE RANGE

By William J. Cummings

Only after William C. Trestrail was elected as newly-formed Dickinson County's first inspector of mines in August of 1892 were accurate accounts of mining accidents which occurred in the county systematically recorded and then included in the mine inspector's annual report, the first of which included the period from September 30, 1892, to September 30, 1893. Prior to the publication of these annual reports, the only accounts which remain are those published in the newspapers.

In Norway, Michigan, The Current began publication February 7, 1885, and is the earliest surviving newspaper available to local historians and genealogists for research purposes. A complete bound set of The Current is contained in the archives of the Menominee Range Historical Foundation Museum in Iron Mountain.

The lot of the miner was reflected in a song which Fred Trestrail, son of William C. Trestrail, remembers hearing the miners sing as they ascended in the cage to surface from the depths of Iron Mountain's Pewabic Mine for their noon meal. Fred often brought his brother William Joseph Trestrail his traditional miner's lunch in an oval-shaped dinner pail which held a pasty in the lower compartment and hot tea in the upper compartment. A tin cup was attached to the top of the dinner pail which also boasted a leather strap to facilitate carrying the pail in the mine. William Joseph is the taller of the two miners pictured above. His partner, an Italian, spoke virtually no English. The photograph dates from about 1910. At the time William Joseph was earning money to pay for his education at the Michigan College of Mines at Houghton. The men are wearing miner's candleholders on their oilskin hats. The candleholder had a point at one end which could be driven into the timbers in the mine, thus illuminating the miner's working area for his eight or ten-hour shift underground.

Fred Trestrail recalled two of the verses of "Only a Miner," and Hattie Jens, daughter of Samuel Jenkins, remembered the melody the miners sang. The Tyrics dramatically reflect the hazards faced daily by miners everywhere, and the excerpts from Volume I of The Current which follow verify the frequency with which they occurred.

Only a miner, killed underground,
Only a miner, and one more is gone.
Killed by an accident, no one can tell,
Only a miner, poor miner, farewell!

He leaves a sad wife, and little ones, too, To earn a living, as all miners do. Torn from this life, in a moment or two, Farewell to the miner, poor miner, adieu!

THE CURRENT, VOLUME I, NORWAY, MICHIGAN

A man was hurt at the Norway mine on Thursday last Saturday, February 21, 1885: A man v by a fall. Particulars not at hand.

of pipeman, was hurt at the Norway mine yesterday by the bursting ಹ James Barry, an air pipe Saturday, March 7, 1885: Eric Loff had a most miraculous escape from instant death on Wednesday last. He was standing on the landing of the new shaft at the Norway mine waiting for a rope that was being let down from the shaft house above. The rope being a heavy one, and coming down faster than he anticipated, when he took hold of it, it overbalanced him and he fell into the shaft. Luckily for him, and the men working in the bottom, a stick of timber that was about to be lowered was hanging at the end of a rope some twenty-five feet down from the mouth of the shaft, and on this Loff landed and rolled off into the timbering on the side of the shaft, more scared than hurt. Had it not been for this stick of timber he would have gone to the bottom, a distance of over three hundred feet, the result of which can easily

Saturday, March 14, 1885: An Italian, named Benianino Polla, fell down No. 2 shat the Vulcan mine, a distance of 50 feet, Friday of last week, and strange to relate was scarcely injured. He was engaged at the time letting timber down into shaft, and in some manner slipped and fell with the above result.

A CLOSE CALL Saturday, March 21, 1885:

Alf. Chipman had a close call from being blown to atoms in the Cyclops mine Monday last. He fired a hole just before going to dinner, as did several others who were working close by him. After setting fire to the fuse, he sought a place of safety, intending to go back and see how the ground had broken. Several holes went off and, thinking his had among them, he went in to see the work it had done. He was too soon, however, for the charge went off, burning and lacerating his face in a fearful manner. He was at once removed to the hospital and cared for by the attending physician. It was at first feared that he would lose both eyes, but we are pleased to state that this will not be the case. Although he will be marked for life, it is fortunate for him that the accident proved no worse than it did.

[Saturday, March 28, 1885: Alf Chipman, whose serious injury was noted in these columns last week, was discharged from the hospital to-day. Alf. had a close call, and for a time his life was dispaired of.]

LOST HIS LEG Saturday, March 28, 1885:

Francisco Vernetti had his leg amputated at the Norway hospital Wednesday ..st, that being the only remedy left in the opinion of the doctors that would give him a chance for his life.

Vernetti was injured in the West Vulcan mine in April last, nearly a year ago. He had a stick of giant powder stuck in the leg of his boot, which in some manner caught fire, burning the skin completely off his leg from the ankle to a short distance above the knee. He was removed to his boarding house, but two months afterward was taken to the hospital. Grafting was resorted to and folmonths afterward was taken to the hospital. Grafting was resorted to and folmonths after away as Chicago, their vitality being scientifically maintained during as far away as Chicago, their vitality being scientifically maintained during transportation. The grafting worked admirably as far as it went, but the trouble was that enough material could not be procured in the short space of time alotted to man here below to cover the wounded member. The patient stood the surgical to man here below to cover the wounded member. The patient stood the surgical operation well, and is now doing very nicely. Dr. Hirschmann, assisted by Drs Jones, Lockart and Kimball, attended to the carving. [Saturday, April 18, 1885: The Italian, Venetti, who had his leg amputated, an account of which appeared in these columns a short time ago, is now on a fair way to recovery. The hospital steward reports that his apetite has grown to something wonderful, in fact that it would bankrupt any ordinary boarding house at the usual rate for board.]

[Saturday, May 23, 1885: The Italian, Venetti, has so far recovered that he will probably be discharged from the hospital some time next week. He eats so heartily that even his crutches are beginning to show signs of fattening.]

Saturday, April 25, 1885: HE WILL PROBABLY DIE

A young man named Charles Anderson was very severely injured in the Cyclops mine, Thursday last, and will probably die. He was working in the tunnel that runs from the large open pit at the mine mentioned when a fall of ground took place crushing him beneath it. One leg was broken, his spine badly injured, while he received many other bruises on different parts of the body. He now lies at the mine hospital in a very critical condition, his body being paralyzed from the waist down.

[Saturday, May 9, 1885: The young man Anderson, who was so severly injured in the Cyclops mine a short time ago, still lies in the hospital in a very precarious condition, and no hopes are entertained for his recovery.]

Saturday, May 23, 1885: An Italian miner had his foot badly crushed at the East Vulcan mine Monday night last by a fall of rock, and was taken to the Norway mine hospital Tuesday. It is feared that amputation of the injured member will be necessary.

Saturday, June 20, 1885: Pat. O'Brien, known as "Buster," formerly of East Vulcan, was killed by a cave-in at the Ludington mine Thursday night. [Iron Mountain]

[Saturday, June 27, 1885: The funeral of Patrick O'Brien, who was killed in the Ludington mine Thursday of last week, took place from St. Mary's Catholic church Saturday forenoon, and was quite largely attended.]

A miner at the Norway lost a toe Friday of last week by a rock falling upon it.

Saturday, June 27, 1885: The Ludington mine appears to be very unfortunate of late in the way of accidents. Two men, John Maline and Andrew Johnson, fell into a winze Tuesday last, a distance of about 100 feet, Maline being almost instantly killed and Johnson receiving injuries which caused his death the following day.

Saturday, September 5, 1885: Peter Langeuish, a Frenchman, was seriously hurt at e Ludington mine Tuesday afternoon. He was removing a log that covered room 7, when he lost his balance and fell through the lagging a distance of forty-five feet.

Christ Christianson was instantly killed at the Chapin mine, Tuesday afternoon, by falling ground.

Saturday, September 12, 1885: John Mildren was slightly injured, on Tuesday last, by a rock striking him on the head, while at work at the Perkins.

Julius Barber Cobi fell down No. 3 shaft at the Norway, Saturday morning last, while going to his work, and dropping into a skip at the bottom, sustained injuries from which he died during the afternoon. The deceased was an Italian, and was insured in the Travellers Accident Insurance Co. for $500.

Saturday, September 26, 1885: On Saturday last, Albino Sieler, a miner at the West Vulcan mine, was injured by a falling rock. The injury necessitated the amputation of his left hand. The operation was performed by Dr. Jones, and the patient is now at the Norway hospital, doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

On the same day [Saturday last] Thomas Oliver, was seriously injured at the Norway mine, by a falling derrick. "Tom" as he is familiarly known, was standing near the derrick, when one of the guys broke, and he being a heavy man, and somewhat lame, from a previous accident, failed to reach a place of safety. The mast struck him on the arm and hand, breaking the former, and badly mangling the latter. It was at first thought amputation would be necessary, but Dr. Hirschmann, who is in attendance, hopes he will be able to save, all of the hand not taken off by the derrick.

[Saturday, November 28, 1885: Thomas Oliver, who had his hand so badly injured some months ago, is slowly recovering from the effects of his injury and will soon be on deck again.]

[Saturday, January 2, 1886: Thomas Oliver, whose hand was so badly lacerated some time ago, is doing well. This speaks well for the attending physician, Dr. Hirschmann, as the hand was so terribly crushed in a derrick that it seemed beyond human skill to save it.]

Saturday, October 3, 1885: Antone Zuzy was slightly injured at the Norway mine on Wednesday last.

Saturday, October 24, 1885: A Swede, whose name we could not learn, was killed at the Chapin mine the early part of the week by falling down a shaft.

SOCIETY NOTES AND EDITOR'S CORNER

The DCGS is offering a joint membership for the first time for the calendar year 1984. A joint membership entitles you and your spouse, or you and a friend, to have your ancestor charts published in DICKINSON DIGGINGS along with the usual two queries per person (total of four queries). However, only one volume of DICKINSON DIGGINGS will be included with the purchase of a joint membership at $7.00 per year. Single memberships remain at only $5.00.

Dorothy Davey showed slides of her recent trip to Cornwall, England, at our August meeting, which proved to be most entertaining. Her ancestor chart was published in Volume I, Number 3 (August, 1982).

Because our scheduled speaker was unable to attend our September meeting, we enjoyed a social hour which included cookies baked by Florence Trestrail, who o provided recipes, and, as usual, coffee furnished by Kate Chiesa. Treasurer Toni Cummings reported our membership at 80, and also noted a new exchange with the Sheboygan County Genealogical Society in Wisconsin.

Officers for 1984 will be elected at the November meeting which will be held Vovember 17, as Thanksgiving falls on our regularly scheduled meeting date. There will be no meeting in December.

DICKINSON DIGGINGS will enter its third year in January, 1984, and Volume III promises to be exciting and packed with names and information about our forebearers in Dickinson County and the surrounding area. In January, the third and last part of the Rev. Donald Wold's series on researching in Sweden will be featured. The August issue will contain an article by the Rev. Wold on Norwegian research. In April, we will begin publishing portions of the transcription of the 1894 State of Michigan Census for Dickinson County, the first census taken after the county was formed in 1891. The Foster City area will be featured. Renew your membership!
