Members voted to spend up to $100 for Nick Gayan, Kingsford High School computer teacher, to design a data base for the Norway Cemetery information, and up to $50 to have a computer format design for the graphics on the first page of Dickinson Diggings.

Members received their November copies of Dickinson Diggings.

The meeting adjourned at 1:20 p.m.

The program, presented by Bill Cummings, was a Power Point presentation entitled "The Great War and Armistice Day." President Wilson proclaimed Armistice Day to be November 11 to commemorate the end of World War 1, when peace was signed on the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month in 1918. In 1953 the holiday was changed to Veterans Day to honor veterans of all wars. Period postcards stereoviews illustrated the presentation. Photographs showed army camps, mess halls, barracks, clothing, food shortages, training and weaponry. The United States didn't enter the war until 1917. The draft was established, and the home front worked to support the troops. There were photos showing trench warfare in France, the use of airplanes for observation and the roles of the Navy and the Marines in World War 1.

There are more than 300,000 cross-referenced index cards and 250 notebooks which include newspaper notices of births, deaths, weddings, and social activities, dating back as far as 1879. To gain access to the information it is necessary to fill out a form stating what information is sought and submit it to the museum. There is a form on the museum's web site. The fee for one hour of research is $10 plus 15 cents per sheet for copying. Pamela Foster and Shirley Nelson are authorized to do the research at the museum.

Wilhelm and Anna Bernhardina (Karlsson) Skog were married in or near Skara, Västra Götaland County, Västergötland Province, Sweden, around 1900. Shortly after their wedding, the couple emigrated to the United States, coming to Iron Mountain, Michigan, where they lived at 501 East D Street. Wilhelm, known as William Skoog here, worked at the Pewabic Mine as a miner and fireman.

The Skoogs had four children, all presumably born in Iron Mountain, including Karl Thorsten, born July 13, 1900; Mabel, born July 22, 1902; Harald, born August 22, 1906; and Margit Elizabeth, born April 14, 1910.

In November, 1911, the Skog/Skoog family returned to Sweden, having sold their house and furniture with the intent of remaining in their homeland, living in Hällekis, Västergötland. Within a few months, they decided to return to Iron Mountain where William would again work as a fireman at the Pewabic Mine.

Two of William's relatives, Ellen Natalia Petterson and Jenny Lovisa Henriksson, were invited to accompany them to Iron Mountain, where they would reside with the family of Olaf Rask, another relative, at 805 East A Street.

The little group of travelers secured third class passage on the Titanic, boarding the new "unsinkable" ship at Southampton, England, on April 12, 1912.

The horror of the sinking of the Titanic in the North Atlantic Ocean on April 15, after colliding with an iceberg during her maiden voyage from Southampton to New York City, was brought home to the community when reading this headline in the Iron Mountain Press on April 25: VICTIMS OF THE TITANIC – William Skoog and Family Were Among the Lost Passengers. Of the Skoog family party, only Jenny Henriksson's body was recovered. [John and Carol Meyer]

LETTER FROM A VETERAN

Charles Solberg Tells of His Life in the English Army.

Under date of Longtown, Cumberland, England, February 10th, 1918, The Press has received a letter from Charles Solberg, a former well-known resident of Felch, who is now in the English military service. Charles states that he was sitting on a log and using a soap box for a table when he wrote the letter. He says that, upon leaving Felch, he went to Prince George, British Columbia, where he filed on a homestead. The land was located near a large lake containing plenty of fish and there was all kinds of game – moose, carribou [sic – caribou], deer and lots of partridges. He says, in part:

"I had a big clearing when the war broke out. All my neighbors were either Scotch or English – some married and some single. They all enlisted when war was declared and so did I. I wanted to do my bit for the country I had adopted as well as the other fellows. I enlisted in the 238 Battallion [sic – Battalion] and landed in England two years ago. I fought at Viemy.

["]As a saper [sic] I helped blow the top off the Ridge to give the boys a chance to go at the Huns. I guess you have heard all about that battle. After that battle I got leave to go to London. According to the new army regulations I was too old to go to the front again. When I enlisted I gave my age as forty-four. but I guess my grey hairs made me look my real age. I was then sent to Scotland as corporal and logging and lumbering instructor, and will probably not see the trenches again, and I don't care. I have seen hell to the fullest extent. I could fill a book with the horrors that I have seen. You may remember me to Udderberg, Gordon Murray, Miller and ex-sheriff Anderson and others and tell them if they can spare it to send him some smoking tobacco. It costs 10d [10 pounds] an ounce here and is poor at that. It takes nearly all my money to buy extra grub. I suppose you understand what restricted war rations means. I am still hale and hearty. I have never lost a day since I enlisted. I am now doing my bit by putting blockheads wise to lumbering. I cannot tell you how glad I felt when I saw the Flag of Freedom -Old Glory, the flag I love above all - and Uncle Sam's boys marching in London. I cried like a baby. I know we are now going to win the war. Give my regards to all my old friends."

Mr. Solberg's family still reside at Felch and are held in high esteem by their neighbors.

A preliminary hearing was held at Marinette last Tuesday before the circuit court commissioner and the defendants given twenty days to settle same or suit will be pushed. Martin, Martin & Martin, of Green Bay, are the attorneys for Mr. McAllister.

As stated in these columns last week the deputy state health officer was here from Madison and took samples of water from the wells of Dairyman Charles Van Ginkel, also milk from his herd. Last Tuesday a report was received by Dr. Belheumer, local health officer, of which the following is an excerpt: "The analysis of the specimen of water from Charles Van Ginkel well reveals a high content of nitrates and nitrites and the presence of colon bactili [sic - bacilli]. The milk analysis is not quite complete, but the fermentation test shows gas producing microorganisms. The analyst will test further for colon bactili [sic - bacilli] in the milk. However, a further test is hardly required. I am writing Mr. Van Ginkel to-day [sic - today] prohibiting further sale of his milk unless all the water in the dairy is taken from a good well or the water from the present well is boiled before using and all his milk placed on the market is pasteurized. This is a temporary order. looking forward to more permanent improvements (a good well, protected from surface pollution, a more sanitary barn, and better facilities for handling milk). I am reporting my findings to the state board of health and they will issue a formal order:

DICKINSON COUNTY GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY C/O DICKINSON COUNTY LIBRARY 401 IRON MOUNTAIN STREET IRON MOUNTAIN, MICHIGAN 49801

Designed by Architect D. Fred Charlton, of Marquette, and built by the Foster Construction Company, of Milwaukee, Iron Mountain's new high school, constructed at a cost of $219,086, was opened to the public for inspection on Friday, September 20, 1912 - a century ago. A contract for 150,000 vitreous facing brick was let to the Puritan Brick Company of Hamden, Ohio, in mid-July, 1911, when about one hundred men were employed in and about the new school. William J. Turner, of Vulcan, received an order for 1,200,000 bricks for the new high school, the bricks being delivered over the Wisconsin & Michigan Railroad, several carloads being shipped daily by late August, 1911. The three-story edifice measured 208 by 68 feet with a rear extension of 112 by 48 feet, making an overall dimension of 208 by 116 feet. The basement contained a 70 by 70 foot gymnasium with a running track of twenty-five laps to the mile and locker rooms for boys and girls. The first floor contained the manual training department on the east end and the domestic science department on the west end, as well as a lunchroom. The Assembly Hall, 70 by 70 feet, was located on the second floor with a 70 by 16-foot stage, as were the principal's office, board room, general office, teachers' room, recitation rooms and lavatories. The third floor contained the gallery and upper part of the Assembly Hall, music room, commercial room, typewriting room, physical laboratory, botany room, drawing room and lavatories. Although the postmark is incomplete, this postcard view probably dates to May, 1913. A wagon and some workmen, probably working on landscaping, are visible at the main doors of the façade, facing south toward West B Street, and four younger trees have been planted along Stockbridge Avenue. [William J. Cummings]

The statement of the First National Bank of Niagara at the close of business March 4th, [sic] shows deposits of $130,485.37. This is a good showing for a banking house less than seven months old.

The First National Bank building has been plastered and work on the interior finishing is progressing satisfactorily. It is expected that the bank will be ready for occupancy within the next thirty days.

The hall and stairways of the new high school are being concreted and fire-proofed and work on the interior finishing will be rushed to completion as rapidly as the materials can be assembled.

At a special meeting of the common council of the city of Norway it was decided to enter into a contract with the Peninsular Power company to furnish electrical power for the city of Norway. and that not to exceed $5,000 be expended by the board of public works for purchasing and installing such electrical equipment and supplies as may be necessary to make such changes as may be required to conform to the contract entered into. The contract for such electrical equipment was awarded to Julius Andrae & Sons for $3,092.10. Mrs. A. Uren and son Alfred were in Menominee last Friday and Saturday to meet her son Richard, who is touring the u.p. with about sixty soldiers of Michigan and Wisconsin of the 85th division, putting on "A Day at Camp Custer." Richard is a member of the excellent band of twenty-seven pieces.

The Liberty loan committee of Norway township – William Kelly, chairman, B.R. Miller, Thomas R. Trudgeon, M. Schroeder, Fred Alford, Fred Gleason, Herman Massie and F.L. Burr – went "over the top" with their allotment of $32,100 before eleven o'clock of the first day of the drive. This is the first township in Dickinson county to fill its allotment and we have no doubt it was the best time made in any town or precinct in the state. Later – The committee reports that up to the hour of going to press enough subscriptions have been received to bring the township's contribution to more than $40,000.

DICKINSON COUNTY GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY C/O DICKINSON COUNTY LIBRARY 401 IRON MOUNTAIN STREET IRON MOUNTAIN, MICHIGAN 49801

Located on the northeast corner of West B Street and Carpenter Avenue - at 126 West B Street - by 1907, the Josiah Beard Blacksmith and Wagonmaker Shop also specialized in horseshoeing and contained a "Carriage Paint Shop." Note the horseshoe on top of the halfround embellishment at the top of the façade. Earlier - by1902, Martin Harvey & Company ran a blacksmith and wagon shop at 124 West B Street, probably the same structure. An article in the April 13, 1911 edition of the Iron Mountain Press announced that Josiah Beard had sold his shop to a new business firm known as Freeland Corning & Co. The business was to be "enlarged so as to include a first-class garage with automobiles for sale and hire." Josiah Beard, a first-class worker in iron and wood, was to remain in the service of the firm. Corning was a machinist and "had experience in the best shops hereabouts as well as in the construction of automobiles." According to the Directory of the Cities of Iron Mountain and Norway and Dickinson County with a List of Residents of Homestead, Wisconsin 1913, William Parent was the "& Co." with Freeland Corning, and the address was given as 130 West B Street. Charles Rauer established an automobile business selling the famed Overland automobile here sometime before June 10, 1915, when an article in the Iron Mountain Press announced Gottfred Johnson and Howard Sandercock had acquired Rauer's business. The partnership had changed to Johnson & DeGayner (Gottfred "Guffy" Johnson and Eugene J. DeGayner), by May 3, 1917, when an Iron Mountain Press article noted the firm had "sold a number of Overlands" and were "expecting three carloads." An article in the October 21, 1920 Iron Mountain Press noted DeGayner, "district agent for the Dodge and other automobiles," had recently purchased the garage and had contracted Tom Stafford to erect a 47 by 49-foot addition at the rear of the building, as well as remodel the original structure. DeGayner remodeled the structure to include "one of the finest auto display rooms in the city," according to an article in the December 3, 1924 edition of The Iron Mountain News. By 1935 DeGayner & Kesler (Eugene J. DeGayner and Russell A. Kesler) were "Dealers for Dodge and Plymouth Motor Cars and Dodge Trucks." [Menominee Range Historical

Selection of Bed Unwise.

Eric Lehto was using the St. Paul railroad tracks for a bed Monday night when several young men who had been at Rockland to spend the evening were on their return to Mass on a gasoline car. When they came around a sharp curve, they saw a dark object on the track, and tried to stop their car but could not do so until after they had struck the object, which proved to be Eric Lehto, who is known around there. Three of the boys on the car, [sic] were badly hurt and one was knocked unconscious. One of the young men was left with Lehto and the balance took the injured boys to Mass and then returned for Lehto, who was conscious and whom they did not think was very badly hurt, but who died after being taken to the Mass hospital.

An article in The Press of last week states that twenty-three Plymouth Rock chickens owned by C.A. Hansen, of Foster City, had laid 436 eggs during March, and "The Press opines that Mr. Hansen's flock of chickens is clearly entitled to the championship." Figuring out the possible number of eggs this flock of 23 Plymouth Rocks could lay during the 31 days of March, it would make a total of 713 eggs, or a percentage of 61. Now comes William Dickson, of Quinnesec, who relates that he is the owner of ten "just chickens" – no pedigreed stock – that laid during the first 28 days of April a total of 221 eggs out of a possible 280, or a percentage of 79. ### QUINNESEC NEWS NOTES

Iron Mountain Press – February 7-November 7, 1918 [Transcribed by William J. Cummings]

We were mistaken in saying last week that Arthur Larsen was one of our honor men. He is a volunteer, who offered himself early in the war.

Charles Gribben and family came down from Iron Mountain to visit the home folks last Saturday and Sunday and attend the honor roll dedication.

Mrs. M.O. Rowe left yesterday for Green Bay, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. T.F. Ryan, for a few days, after which she will go to Chicago for an extended visit.

The concert given by the Norway Methodist choir last Friday evening was a rare treat to all who attended and the Ladies' Aid society of the Quinnesec church is ahead several shekels by the same.

The registration for women at the town hall last Saturday was a great success from every viewpoint. Mrs. M.O. Rowe and Miss Anna Bryngelson, of this village, had charge of the registration, ably assisted by Mrs. J.S. Butler, of Iron Mountain, who brought to her work her experiences gained by the registration at her home city. About eighty registered, which is considered good when the limited number of female residents in our village is taken into consideration. We are certainly 100 per cent patriotic in this, as in all other, [sic] services undertaken for Uncle Sam.

The dedication of the honor roll and service flag at the M.E. church last Sunday afternoon was attended by a goodly number of our citizens, the church being crowded to the doors. The program as outlined in these columns was rendered in a pleasing manner. The address by Rev. J.H. Oatey, of Iron Mountain, was a masterly one, much favorable comment being heard regarding same. The solo, "Keep the Home Fires Burning," by Fred B. Roberts, of Norway, was very fine. Pastor Greenwood is very much pleased with the patriotic response to the efforts of his church to honor "our boys at the front."

A band will be engaged, sports will be pulled off, and refreshments served to the throng, with the one and only thought in mind the raising of the net amount for the Red Cross of $1,000. At the only accounting yet had by the local society, made a few weeks after the establishment of the lunch room, a balance of $450 was found, and the Labor Day celebration, together with the intervening profits, is expected to boost the net amount to $1,000. Don't forget the date, and be prepared to come and help the ladies in the laudable undertaking. There will also be patriotic speaking, and meals will be served to those who wish them.
