Brunswick Genealogical Society

Editor: George H. Hayward
Queries Editor: Betty Saunders

Generations is published quarterly in Fredericton, N.B., by the New Brunswick Genealogical Society, and is distributed to all its members in Canada, the United States and overseas. The Society also publishes books related to genealogy and sponsors periodic seminars.

Generations is made up almost entirely of articles contributed by members, and the society encourages submissions that deal with genealogy and family history.

Contributors are urged to have articles for publication typed. Text that is typed into a computer word processor and submitted on a diskette is preferred. 5¼" or 3½" disks, double or high density are fine, and any DOS or Windows word processor will do. Contributors who cannot provide text on a diskette are asked to use white paper 8½ x 11 inches, and a good quality black ribbon for typewriters and dot matrix or daisy wheel printers.

Contributors are responsible for obtaining permission to publish material owned by others. Send articles to The Editor, Generations, P.O. Box 3235, Station B, Fredericton, N.B., E3A 5G9.

The editors of Generations reserve the right to edit all contributions, for form, grammar and to shorten articles to fit available space. Excepted are articles reprinted with permission. Articles that are edited will be returned to the contributor for approval.

Generations goes to the printer Feb. 15, May 15, Aug 15 and Nov 15. Items for publication must reach the editor at least 5 days earlier.

1996 Membership Fees are: Capital, Carleton, Miramichi, Southeastern and Victoria Co. Branches, and NBGS, $20.00; Charlotte Co. Branch, $23.00; Restigouche Co. From the Editor's Desk

This is the first issue of a new year, and we have a new look. I hope that a lot of readers will not be disappointed that the tree, which first appeared on the cover of Issue 7, in February, 1981, and which has been on every cover since, has been retired. Maybe semi-retired would better describe its role because we will continue to use it as a logo here and there, from time to time.

I proposed to the executive, and it agreed, that commencing with the Spring issue this year the cover of each issue will carry a graphic image or black and white photograph. This issue has an image that recalls one of the blackest days in the history of the Loyalist city, Canada's oldest incorporated city, Saint John. To many of those who experienced it, the fire was one of the greatest personal tragedies of their lives. It was a calamity that could not be blotted out of their memory, and some lived the remainder of their lives in fear of it happening again.

Also, this is our 18th year of publication, and for our first issue this year we are converting from issue number to volume and number, the system used by most publishers of periodicals to identify issues. This is Volume 18, No. 1, but to ease us into the conversion I will include Issue 67 as well, and I will continue to refer to the issues as Spring, Summer, Fall and Winter. I plan to drop the issue number after Volume 18, No. 4, Winter 1996. I hope this will not be a problem for anyone.

Other than that, this issue has much the same look and content as those published last year. I do not hear from a lot of readers, but those who do write are generally complimentary. So I will be guided by the speculative truth that if it ain't broke, don't fix it, and continue with more of the same in '96.

An article under the heading of "What's Worth Writing About" was published in Issue 58, Winter 1993. I intended to submit additional articles under the same heading, but did not get around to it, until now. In this issue, on page 42, there is an article about Uncle George Raymond. This, and the article in the Winter 1993 issue, are intended as examples of stories to supplement lists of names and dates. Almost everyone has an Aunt Mary or an Uncle George, and whenever I get an opportunity I encourage family historians to add a few stories that recall memories of people and places that they knew when they were young - humorous incidents, tragedies, social life in the community where they grew up, and any number of other things. They are "what's worth writing about," and writing about them is fun and rewarding. Your stories will be treasured by descendants.

The Great Fire of Saint John, June 20th, 1877, And Its Effect On A Number Of People

By Eileen C. Cushing

Editor's note: This article is reprinted from Collections of the New Brunswick Historical Society, No. 17, 1961, p. 116.

A great calamity occurred in Saint John on June 20th, 1877. It is still spoken of as the "Great Fire" for nothing since in the history of our city has equaled it in the destruction it wrought in the lives and plans for the future of the people living here at that time. Two-fifths of the city was laid in ashes, 1612 houses were in ruins by nightfall, at one time three parts of the city were on fire at once. A strong wind was blowing and burning brands flew in all directions and set fires blocks away from the starting point. As they fell on an unprotected roof and smouldered for a while unnoticed, they too added their quota to the burning buildings. All hope of checking the fire died in the hearts of men, though they fought valiantly on. It seemed useless to try to combat the fury of it. It continually broke out in a new spot. Granite, freestone, bricks and marble fell before it as quickly as did the more numerous wooden buildings. The part of the city destroyed, when afterwards measured was found to cover 200 acres.

The telephone makes communication between different parts of the city so easy today and the radio keeps every citizen so informed of what is taking place that it is hard to visualize what a lack of these things mean. Not knowing what is happening can add so much to the fearfulness of a situation. Especially is this so where a fire is accompanied by such freakishness as this one. A section of the city that was considered safe at one hour, would be burning merrily the next; and the section which seemed in imminent danger in the morning was still standing by night. All this added to the confusion. Families separated and endured great anxiety until they were re-united hours later and sometimes not until the following day.

Help was rushed to the stricken city from other parts of Canada and from the United States. Thus immediate relief was afforded the homeless people. During this time the idea was to provide shelter, clothing and food. When the word reached England there arose a great desire to help. The Liverpool Fund for the Relief of the Sufferers from the Saint John Fire, June 20th, 1877, was established. (Liverpool and Saint John were closely linked by the ships that continually sailed from one port to the other). Sir Leonard Tilley was appointed chairman of the fund, and the leading lawyers, doctors and prominent citizens served on his committee. The ministers of all denominations were asked to submit the names of the people in their congregations who were most badly hit by the fire and in the position where recovery seemed the least likely. The object of this fund was not temporary relief but lasting help. It was to place the person thus aided in a position wherein he or she could, as they had always done, support themselves.

Letters which have been preserved in the New Brunswick Museum tell the story so graphically of what had to be faced by so many men and women after the initial shock of their losses from the fire was over. Their clothing, furniture, homes, their means of livelihood, were all swept away from them at once. No article or book can touch the human angle as can these letters. Let us look at some of them:—

Mrs. N. owned her own home. She lived in one part and rented the other part. She had a small insurance policy to cover the mortgage. She was a widow, her widowed daughter and two small children made their home with her. By the fire she lost also her furniture and clothing. None of them have any means of support.

Mrs. O. lost her shop, her stock, her house and furniture. By the former she supported herself and her daughter. They are destitute.

Miss H. & Miss C. had together kept a boarding house for years and lived comfortably, now they know not where to find food or housing.

Mrs. B. was not burned out herself, but her means of support vanished. She owned property which she rented. With this gone, she has no money. Mrs. W. was in the same plight and many other widows as well.

Joseph L. was a rigger and in a shipping port this meant that he was never out of work. With his tools gone, he cannot carry on his trade. He must have money to replace them, so that he can again bring his weekly wages home to support his family.

The experience of Mr. and Mrs. W. was repeated many times on June 20th. They kept a boarding house opposite Trinity Church and seeing that the building was doomed, they removed their clothing and much of their furniture to the Custom House for safekeeping. When it went, so did all their belongings including Mr. W.'s tools. He was a millwright and joiner. He was able to borrow a few tools and to continue to work, but this could not go on indefinitely. There was no insurance and therefore no money for new tools, clothes and furniture. They badly need a grant to become self supporting as they have always been previously.

Mr. Robert S. had a store on the corner of Duke and Charlotte Streets. He carried groceries, varieties and Yankee notions (whatever they were). He had no insurance. His loss was between $1700 and $1800.

Mrs. Joseph B's case was particularly sad - her husband was burnt to death in the fire and besides she lost everything of which she and her husband had been possessed.

We read of Thomas G., a diver by profession. He lost all of his diving apparatus which was valued at $1500, as well as his wife's, his child's and his own clothing and their furniture. It takes capital to replace the equipment which was burned and by which Mr. G. made his living.

Mrs. S., a widow, lived with security in her house on St. Andrews Street; now without a dwelling, furniture and extra clothing, and the loss of all her earthly possessions which she held most dear, at 82 years she is completely dependent on outside aid.

To understand why so many women were keeping boarding houses in Saint John at the time of the fire is to understand how few ways there were then by which women could earn money. There was teaching, sewing and keeping boarders and not much else.

We find that the Bay View Hotel was kept by Mrs. A. and that after years of work, she had an establishment to be proud of, with its good furniture and equipment. She had put back into her business much of her earnings and was working for the future as she improved the property. The fire swept away years of work and left her destitute.

To put before the committee, the condition of his affairs, Mr. J. D. did not write a letter, rather he uses another form. Here it is:-

"To the Hon. Sir Samuel Leonard Tilley, C.B., Lt. Governor of New Brunswick,

The petition of the undersigned humbly sheweth:

That he was the proprietor of a block manufactory in the city of Saint John, on the twentieth day of June last past and was doing a flourishing business.

That the fire which took place on the said twentieth day of June totally destroyed his shop, tools & stock besides his dwelling house. That your petitioner is desirous, if possible to start again in business having a family dependent on him for support and therefore prays that relief may be afforded him out of the Relief Fund at Your Honor's disposal.

And as in duty, will ever pray.

J. D.

We the undersigned respectfully recommend Mr. D. - to your Honor's favorable consideration, knowing him to be in every way worthy.

D. V. Roberts,

A. M. Seely

H. I. Gillen

John Boyd

Peter _____"

NOTE:- This is an exact copy, even to spelling.

Another letter has a great appeal on account of its simplicity:

"Sir, I hope you will excuse me for being so bold as to trouble you. I have been a sufferer by the late fire, having lost my home and all my furniture and also my employment. I drove the engine of Albert Peters, tanner. He does not intend to rebuild, so I have taken to rough carpenter work, but I cannot find steady employment, not being a good hand. I have received money from the Local Relief Committee and I am trying to build myself a small house, but it is hard work, it seems so hard to get it finished, if you could help me, I would be so grateful.

My reference before when I wanted help to obtain a little money were the:-

Rev. Mr. Carey, Mr. Maher, Mr. Peters and Mr. William Peters. By making enquiries, you would find that what I say is truthful and correct. I would have them sign this personally, but one does not like to be troublesome.
William Mc.-

Then by these letters we see that a music teacher has lost her power to earn. She cannot teach without her piano, it is to her her tool of trade. (We can read or have an old person tell us, how people moved their pianos to Queen Square for safety and that later in the day, when the houses around the square were burning how the pianos caught fire and were burned beyond hope of salvage.)

And then we can read of the man of 82 who lost his home and contents and that his wife became crazed by the fire, and had to be removed to the Lunatic Asylum. What is to become of him?

Once again we read of a lady who kept a boarding house, rather a luxurious one for those days. It occupied a double house and there were drawing rooms, a dining room, bedrooms, kitchen and pantries. It was completely furnished, including carpets, sideboards, sofa, chairs, tables, linens and bedding, and kitchen equipment. Also a piano for the entertainment of the guests. (yesterday's equivalent for T.V.) Everything was swept away including clothing, with the exception of three beds, a small table, a portion of silver plate. It represented the earnings of a lifetime, and there was no insurance.

The firm of Armstrong Bros. Founders, lost all their stock and machinery valued at $15000. One partner lost his furniture and home as well. No insurance.

One young woman's letter sounds brave in a hopeless situation. The family consists of herself, father, mother, a young brother and two young sisters. They have lost their home. One sister besides herself were the only wage earners. Now that sister has no work as the establishment in which she worked was burned out. No money, no clothes, no home.

There is another letter where the loss of tools is of vital importance. To quote:-

"I desire to bring under the notice of the Relief Committee appointed to dispense the English Fund, a statement of my losses by the fire of the 20th of June last and would respectfully ask for your assistance towards replacing my tools for safe-making, and towards erecting a shelter for my family numbering eleven persons. I lost all my tools & materials used in the manufacture of safes in the city about $3000. I lost all my furniture and I and my family lost nearly all our clothing, value of both about $1000. The house in which we lived was totally destroyed. Ten days ago one of our sons was run over by a heavily laden wagon and almost killed. The expenses of medical attendance on him and other assistance has added largely to my loss of time and money.

I am kindly permitted to refer to Capt. Vaughan, Messrs. I. L. Dunn & Co., G. B. Cushing, John Boyd and Robert Cruikshank."

As you read the amounts of money these people lost, remember that to appreciate their loss today, they need to be multiplied many times to have equal value to what they were worth in 1877. Think too, of the shock these people sustained, one day in moderate comfort the next day destitute. Think too, how they arose and built a new city. Stories that have been handed down from one generation to another, such as going out the next morning after the fire to one of the few stores not burned, M.R.A.'s, and buying a few necessities, such as a tooth brush and a cake of soap; but do not forget the many that could not do even this to make themselves comfortable. These letters carry a poignancy which even handed down stories and certainly no article or history written about the fire by someone who did not live through it can ever hope to have. Even the extracts from a letter written by some one who was repeating what her mother had told her is different in its quality. Here are a few quotes from it.

"Ma & Pa, with Kippy, who was going to spend the summer with them, came across the Bay that day and saw the fire very soon after leaving Digby, a distance of forty miles. With their glass they could distinguish all the prominent buildings as they went, one after another, and could see Pat's wharf with the buildings on it, blazing away. When they reached the harbour, the steamer just went near enough to the wharf to take on board part of the HOST of PEOPLE that had been driven down there by the fire, and then steamed out behind the Island where she lay till after daylight. You can just imagine what a night they spent, just walking around watching the fire, knowing their home was gone and in a terrible state of uncertainty about all dear friends. When they landed in the morning dear old Fred was on the wharf, to tell them the family was all safe, so they did not care for all the rest of their loss. Fred lost both his house & factory, the fire going just far enough up Union Street & North Street to take them in, and stopping there. You remember his house & factory were just on a line, North and South. By taking things in time, he managed to save all his furniture, and all the clothes except two trunks of best clothes. dress-coat, party-dresses, etc., though his neighbors laughed at him for moving, and were paid for it by losing everything themselves. The house was insured for $3000 and cost him $4000, so the loss on that is not very great. The made-up stock in the factory was destroyed of course, but the fire had no effect on the rough steel and when Joe was there, Fred was having it dug out of the ruins and going to work, as he had already had several large orders, and was bound to fill them. Pa owned the factory and will rebuild it at once, so Fred is very fortunate after all.

Our dear old house was down within an hour after the bell struck (that is the one in the bell tower) though the fire started about half-mile away, but those good faithful girls, Maggie and Kate, managed to pack all the small silver into a trunk. They also tied up the clothing, and many other things in sheets, and would have saved that, but had to run for their lives with Bert, out the back way, break down the lower garden fence and get through Prince William Street to a tow-boat in the harbour, where they stayed all night. The good creatures dragged that trunk with them, and handed it over to Ma in safety next day. Maggie put Ma's set of cairn-gorm jewellery in her pocket, and that, with the silver, is all that is left of the contents of the house."

Here is a picture of what people faced and how quickly they tried to re-build their lives and start over again, whether from nothing, when they required a stake such as the Liverpool Fund provided, or whether themselves had some resources of their own. □

To Understand why so many women were keeping boarding houses in Saint John at the time of the fire is to understand how few ways there were then by which women could earn money.

St. Andrews Immigration Records

transcribed by George H. Hayward

Editor's note: This is a record of immigrants names, the length of time they were assisted by the commissioners of the alms and work house and overseers of the poor, and from whence they came to the Parish of St. Andrews, Charlotte County, N.B., during 1842. Source, Provincial Archives of New Brunswick, RG1, RS347/J, Records of the Lieutenant Governors and Administrators.

To His Excellency Lieutenant Colonel Sir William McBean George Colebrook, K.H., Lieutenant Governor of the Province of New Brunswick, &c. &c. &c.

The Petition of J.W. Chandler, Peter Smith, Thomas Berry, Thomas Sime and John Parkinson, Commissioners of the Alms and Work House, and Overseers of the Poor for the Parish of St. Andrews in the County of Charlotte, Humbly Sheweth,

That by the accompanying accounts it will be seen that for the support of Emigrant Poor, and other necessary outlays, advanced on their behalf from the eleventh day of January one thousand eight hundred and forty two to the tenth day of January, Instant, both days inclusive, Your Petitioners have expended the sum of Six hundred and thirty five pounds, twelve shillings, and ten pence.

That a large portion of these emigrants were passengers in vessels which arrived during the season, and became chargable to the Parish in consequence of illness and indigent circumstances; and that of those who came by one vessel from Ireland in the month of June last were upwards of forty individuals whose passages were defrayed by an extensive land holder to get quit of them off his estate and landed here in a state of absolute pauperism, the major part without clothing of any kind suitable for the climate, and the whole destitute of both money and goods. The immediate consequence was that they became chargable to the parish, and your Excellency will see, upon reference to our list, from the twenty third day of June onward the names and numbers of those admitted into the poor house, and that three distinct families of the name of Sheean compose twenty members thereof. Your petitioners are convinced that in the charge per week they do not exceed the sum which it has cost to maintain each person, and therefore humbly pray that your Excellency would be pleased to take the premises into your favorable consideration, and grant them the sum of six hundred and thirty five pounds, twelve shillings, and ten pence, to reimburse them for their expense.

And as in duty bound will ever pray.

Corrections

I want to thank Jane Skliar-Welsh, 220 Greenstone Dr., Reno, NV, 89512, for bringing to my attention that "Pitta family" in the third last line in the first column on page 53 of Issue 65, Fall 1995, should have read "Pitts family." If anyone has information on the Pitts family that they are willing to share with Jane, she would appreciate hearing from them.

It is inevitable, I suppose, that a typographical error or a misspelled word will get past my computer spell checker, and/or proof readers, from time to time, but what got into print in the Winter 1995 issue for everyone to see is embarrassing. On page 27, col. 1, the last four children listed in the family of Jonathan and Hannah (Platts) Burpee should be deleted. They belong to Thomas and Esther (Hopkins) Burpee, and are listed on the previous page 26, col. 2, in that issue. Jonathan and Hannah Burpee had seven children. Moses was the youngest. Those of you who use a word processor to compile family history notes will probably guess how I accomplished that mirror image. To relieve the tedium of inserting all those tabs and roman numerals for each list of children, I copy the lists from one family to the next, then work down the list of children, deleting the previous names and dates and typing in new ones. Before I finished that list I suppose the phone rang, or something else distracted me, and when I returned to the computer I neglected to delete Hannah, Nathan, Sarah and Samuel. I apologize for that.

Seeks Contact with Descendants of Irish Emigrants

The following letter was received from John Cronin, of Ballyshannon, Ireland:

I got your address from the Canadian Embassy in Dublin and would like to make enquiries about emigrant sailings between Ballyshannon and St. John, N.B., during the 1860/70s.

You will see from another enclosuer (at right) that the firm of John Myles Ltd. owned a sailing ship, the Julia, and the last surviving member of the Myles family, now aged 82, informs me that they also had a ship named the Beta. You will note that a ship named Viking sailed this route as well, and I am wondering if you might have any records of these three ships, or indeed of any other ships which sailed from Ballyshannon, Mullinasole, Salt Bay, or any Donegal ports during the last century?

I happen to know John Myles personally, and he mentions Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, but not with any great accuracy. Because of ice flows, it is possible that ships in those years might have to change their destinations! He also informed me that some years ago he ordered staff to clear out books and documents from his office, and it is possible that much valuable information relating to 19th century emigration could then have been destroyed.

The only help which I can give you from this side is to supply you with a list of names which are common to this area. I might mention that even though Ballyshannon is in County Donegal, it is also about 3 km from Counties Fermanagh and Leitrim, so that in effect I am supplying names from three counties.

Perhaps you might kindly publish some extracts from this letter in your Newsletter in the hope that some Gallaghers, O'Donnells, or other descendants might come up with some items of interest.

Waiting in hope.

Le gach deagh guidhe.

Yours sincerely,

John Cronin, Member of Co. Donegal Historical Society, Portnason, Ballyshannon, Co. Donegal, Ireland.

"The Days of Auld Lang Syne"

We are indebted to Major J.S. Myles, M.C., for the above picture of the busy quays of Ballyshannon sixty-five years ago. The larger vessels were the Viking from St. John, N.B., and the Norge from Sweden, with cargoes of timber for John Myles.

The firm of John Myles Ltd. has now been in existence for more than 100 years. The late John Myle's father, Robert Myles, was in business in Ballyshannon from the early days of the last century. John Myles started his business at the Mall Yard, with his shipping at the Old Bond Yard where ships came from many ports, English, Scottish and Welsh, with cargoes of coal, slates, fireclay goods, and all the materials for building. In addition the late Mr. Myles carried on an extensive trade with Canada (timber, deals and logs) and with Norway and Sweden (prepared flooring and tongued and grooved boards) with red pine of the Baltic. In this connection the firm owned a sailing ship the Julia which carried on an extensive trade with Canada in the sixties and seventies, making several runs each year with emigrants and returning with cargoes of timber.

In 1875 the present West Port premises were secured with the extensive quay accommodation existing there. In 1897 the present sawmill was opened and in 1900 the firm had their premises lighted by electricity from which later developed the public lighting of Ballyshannon (1908) and Bundoran (1910). These two towns were taken over in 1946 by the E.S.B.

Messers. Myles have, in recent years, enlarged their sawmill and added a considerable amount of machinery including planing machines. Box making, particularly fish boxes, are a large output and are eagerly taken up by the costal fisheries.

Rev. Frederick Dibblee's Register

Woodstock, Carleton Co., N.B., 1791-1816

Transcribed by George H. Hayward

The Anglican register of christenings, marriages and burials of the Parishes of Woodstock, Northampton and Queensborough is one volume, divided into several sections. It was the register of Rev. Frederick Dibblee from 1791 to 1820, and the register of Rev. Samuel D. Lee Street from 1832 to 1839. This is a transcript of the first section, Woodstock baptisms, marriages and burials, 1791 to 1816. The arabic numeral preceeding the event (Bap., Md. or Bd.) in each record is the page on which the record can be found in the register, although its pages are not numbered. The records in the register were entered chronologically, but have been sorted alphabetically in this transcript, by the surname of the person named in the record. Marriages are listed twice here (but not in the original register), once under the groom's name and again under the bride's name, to simplify locating brides by their maiden name. 1825 Military Settlers Granted Land in the Upper Saint John River Valley

Prepared by Linda and Winston Fairley, Box 233, Perth-Andover, NB, E0J 1V0

After the revolutionary war ended in 1783, the British Government relocated those loyal subjects who wished to leave the rebel colonies. About 35,000 immigrated to the Maritime Provinces, where most were granted land, many in the lower St. John River area.

The main line of communication between military headquarters in Halifax and Lower Canada (Quebec) was by ships travelling the St. Lawrence in summer. However in winter the overland route by snowshoe up the St. John River and onward to Riviere DuLoup was the only link. The region of the St. John River between Woodstock and Madawaska was an unforgiving wilderness area which offered no shelter to military couriers. In 1790 NB Governor Thomas Carleton directed that military posts be built at Presqu'ile near present day Florenceville and at the Grand falls. Built in 1791 these posts would secure the overland communications link between Halifax and Lower Canada as well as encourage British settlers to develop this remote region. Thus claims of British sovereignty would be established before US settlers could claim the region.

In 1812 the US declared war on Britain and a great many sons and grandsons of Loyalists in NB answered the call to defend their King and Country against the invaders. Many marched overland to Upper Canada and fought US troops in several decisive battles while others took part in the capture and occupation of Maine. After the war ended in 1814 the region between the two posts was still a vast wilderness so it was declared a Military Settlement and veterans were induced to settle by offers of free land, rations, implements and seeds for up to three years.

Veterans of the following units were the first settlers of the military settlement of upper York County (that area is now known as Victoria and Carleton counties).

1825 Military Settlers Granted Land in the Upper Saint John River Valley

In 1825 a document granted land titles to 145 military veterans. This 6 page land grant is on microfilm at the Provincial Archives in Fredericton, NB. The following names, tract numbers and lot numbers have been transcribed as recorded in the grant. However the rank and unit info have been taken from the McLaughlin Report of 1820 and from various historical journals.

The actual Grant reads as follows –

“LAND GRANT #1949 - George Manzie and 144 others, Military Settlers, Parish of Kent, County of York, New Brunswick.

The said 4 tracts containing 31,231 acres more or less with the allowance as aforesaid, being divided into 311 lots, 207 of which containing 20,515 acres are included in this grant, are partly improved and partly wilderness land.

Genealogical Institute of the Maritimes

P.O. Box 3142, Halifax South Postal Station
Halifax, Nova Scotia, B3J 3H5

The Genealogical Institute of the Maritimes, a non-profit organization, was established in 1983 under auspices of the Council of Maritime Premiers. The Institute arose in response to a felt need noted by leading genealogist, genealogical societies and archivists of the Maritime provinces, for certification and registration of persons undertaking genealogical research for the public.

The Institute examines and certifies people who wish to establish their competence in the field of genealogical research. The first level of certification is that of Genealogical Record Searcher (Canada) [GRS(C)]; the second is that of Certified Genealogist (Canada) [CG(C)]. The Institute has, in addition, an educational role in upgrading the quality of professional family history research in the Maritimes. Members of the Institute strive for excellence in research and encourage others to do the same. Through lectures, and articles published in journals, newsletters, and press, an endeavour is made to raise the profile of professional genealogical research methods and techniques.

To date some 50 people have taken advantage of the opportunity to become certified. Of these the following are presently willing to undertake paid research for the public. They are listed together with their addresses and areas of expertise or specialization.

The Irish In Edmunds, Maine

by Rebecca Hobart, in the Dennys River Historical Society Newsletter, October 1995

Editor's note: This article was submitted by George F. Haney, R.R. 1, Moores Mills, N.B., E0G 2L0, a member of the Charlotte Co. Branch. He says that some of those who are mentioned in the article came to Edmunds from N.B., and some removed from Edmunds to N.B. For those who are not familiar with the location of Edmunds Township, it is on Route 1, roughly 77 km (48 miles) south of the Calais/St. Stephen area.

Many of the Irish families who left their homeland to come to America were attracted by the Pembroke Iron Works and the Lubec Lead and Zinc Company. However, some Irish immigrants made their homes in the area between those two towns.

When Col. Aaron Hobart purchased Twp. 10 (Edmunds) in 1786, he found a few families already living within its boundaries. Among them was James O'Neil who, with his family, settled in that part of the town which is now called South Edmunds in 1775.

In the 1790 census of Twp. 10, the household of James O'Neil included one male over 16 years of age and two females. However, a statement in the Edmunds records says, "Sometime in 1792 a boy by the name of Edward, 10 years old, was lost in the woods and never seen since. Some thought O'Neil killed him." (Who was Edward? Where was he in 1790?)

James O'Neil left his property in 1793 or 94 and moved to Macadavic (St. George, N.B.). In 1800 Nathaniel Cox, Jr., a newcomer to the Cobscook Bay area, purchased the 100 acres of O'Neil land and his buildings. The home of Nathaniel's great, great granddaughter, Sophronia (Cox) Rogers, is now located on a portion of that lot.

In 1785 William Hurley, whose family came from Waterford County, Ireland, moved to a peninsula in Twp. 10 which still bears his name, Hurley Point. Having formerly resided on a land grant in Macadavic, he had sold his 200 acres there in 1784. In the 1790 census, William Hurley was living in Edmunds with three females – his wife, Nancy, and two daughters, Jane and Susan, who were born in 1786 and 1790. Since his son, John, born in 1784, was not included, it appears that he may have died. Another son, William, Jr., was born in 1792, the year that the Hurleys returned to Macadavic.

Capt. Robert Little, an Irishman who had previously lived in Eastport, settled his family at Burnt Cove in Edmunds in 1822. Unlike the O'Neils and Hurleys, Robert Little and his wife, Elizabeth, spent the rest of their lives in Edmunds. Robert held civic offices, serving as school agent and selectman. Capt. Little, who died in 1855 at the age of 77, was predeceased by Elizabeth in 1836. Although their 22 year old son, Robert, Jr., died in 1827, two other sons, John and George, were paying real estate taxes in 1840. John married Jemima Bell and had two children before both he and Jemima died in 1848. George also married a Bell, Philena, and had seven children between 1847 and 1858. Philena, who died in 1909, outlived George by 19 years.

No Little families reside in Edmunds today, but Little's Mountain has become a landmark, having been the site of the Edmunds fire tower.

Widow Nancy McCoy, who was born in 1785 in Ireland, first appeared in Edmunds in 1830. Her daughter, Mary, was born in Twp. 10 January 14, 1830, indicating that Nancy had been recently widowed. The Irish birth of her sons, John and James, in 1820 and 1822 prove that she had resided in this country only a short time.

In the 1850 census, her household included sons, James and John, and 99 year old Alexander Horan, possibly Nancy's father. When Mr. Horan died in 1851, he was buried at Chapel Hill in Trescott where other Horans are also interred.

Mary McCoy's absence from the family in 1850 may mean that she either married young or died.

The 1845 Edmunds tax roll included both James and John McCoy. The births of three children of John and Mary McCoy between 1852 and 1857 are listed in the Edmunds records.

An 1836 map of Edmunds shows that the McCoys lived on Hurley Point, possibly on the William Hurley site. On an 1861 map only J. McCoy (probably John) lived on the Hurley Point peninsula, but on a different location. No McCoys appear on the 1881 map.

The Edmunds 1836 map, but not the maps of 1861 and 1881, shows that Peter Lynch also lived on Hurley Point, near the McCoys. He was on the tax roll during the 1830's. Two children, Mary and Susan, were born in 1833 to Peter and Margaret Lynch in Edmunds. One child, identified only as belonging to Peter Lynch, died in 1838. Edmunds records tell no more about the family. However, in the cemetery at Chapel Hill in Trescott are grave-stones bearing the names of Peter, Margaret, James, Mary and John Lynch. There are no dates.

Thomas O'Dell's family settled in Edmunds in the late 1820's. While a two year old daughter, Phebe Ann, died in January of 1829, another one, Mary Low, was born on June 24 of that same year. A son, William E., who was born in 1833, died in 1836. The name of Thomas O'Dell's wife is not given in these records.

In October of 1829 or 1830 Miss Sophia O'Dell married Morris Carney, also of Edmunds. This couple had five children born between 1836 and 1855, including twin girls, Phebe Ann and Eliza Ann, in 1841. (What was Sophia's relationship to Thomas?)

James Belyer (or Belyea), who was born in Ireland in 1792, made his appearance in Edmunds in the 1840's. His wife, Sarah, also born in Ireland, was the widow of John Reed. Their children, Ann and James, were born in Maine in 1832 and 1837. Sarah Belyer died in 1855; both children in 1861; and James in 1875. All are buried in the Dennysville Cemetery. The cellar hole of the Belyer home is located between the Belyer Road and Belyer Cove in Edmunds.

(In the 1850 census the wife of William Wood of Edmunds was Sarah, aged 37, who was born in Ireland. Living with the Woods was 34 year-old Mary Reed. Were Sarah and Mary daughters of Sarah [Reed] Belyer and her first husband, John Reed?)

Michael Burns and his wife, Ann, both natives of Ireland, were settlers in Edmunds, too. Their six children were born between 1832 and 1847.

Michael died in Edmunds in 1861 at the age of 76. His wife, who was 10 years younger, survived him for 18 years. Both are buried at the St. John's Cemetery in Pembroke.

One of their sons, Edward Burns, lived at the intersection of the Lane and King Street in Dennysville and raised his large family there. A number of his descendants still live in the area.

The youngest Burns daughter, Catherine, married Hiram Runnels of Edmunds. They, accompanied by Hiram's brother, George, went with Pope and Talbot from East Machias to Port Gamble on Puget Sound in 1857. There Hiram and George logged with oxen for the Pope and Talbot mills. The third generation of the Runnels families now resides in Washington state.

John Sheahan, who was born in Ireland in 1810, came to Eastport in 1823. From 1825 until 1831 he lived in Perry where he was active in church and civic affairs. He married Eleanor Dougherty of Dennysville where the couple was living when their first four children were born. Prior to 1850 the family moved to Edmunds where Henry, James, and Sarah were born in 1847, 1850, and 1852. However, the Sheahans had returned to Dennysville before the birth of Otis in 1855. After the 1874 death of his wife, John married in 1878 Mrs. Sarah (Wood) Shaw, the widow of James Shaw. Mr. Sheahan died in Dennysville in 1896.

Four Sheahan sons fought in the Civil War. The eldest, William, was killed at Rappahannock Station. The second son, John P., was captured at Petersburg and was imprisoned in South Carolina for several months before his escape. After the war, John P. Sheahan continued his education before returning to Edmunds as a doctor and dentist. Another son, Edmund B., married Mary Vose and lived in Dennysville. He was one of the last surviving members of the G.A.R. in the community.

Other Irish families who lived in Edmunds included those of James McCarty, Timothy Sullivan, and Henry McLaufin.

Among the many Irishmen who lived in Trescott was Heman Kelley. Two of his children moved to South Edmunds in more recent years after having married residents of that settlement. Mary H. Kelley was the wife of Robert Hallowell while her brother, Irving Kelley, was the husband of Mildred S. Hallowell. The two couples raised 14 children in Edmunds.

Thus many Irish families were a part of the citizenry of Edmunds, the greater number of them during the middle of the 19th century. Although none of these names are now represented in the town, the past influence of these families helped shape the community of today. □

Provincial Archives

Records from government and individuals continue to stream into the Provincial Archives, faster than they can be made ready for research. In 1993, government records in 254 accessions totaled 800 metres. In the same period, 493 accession of records from non-government sources were received; these measured approximately 35 metres. In 1994, government offices transferred 600 metres of documents in 135 accessions, and 80 metres in 441 accessions were received from private sources.

As new accessions are arranged and described, finding aids are placed in the Public Service area. The following is a list of the material which became available for research in 1994.

Archives Acquisition

Canadian archives acquire not only the records of their sponsors, but also documents from other sources which complement their official collections. The Provincial Archives of New Brunswick is the official repository of the records of the Province and through the long process of records surveys, classification and file plans, scheduling and transfers, archival selection, and arrangement and description, permanently valuable records of the province become available as archival resources.

But what of the records generated by non government organizations, businesses and private citizens that are vital to documenting the history of New Brunswick and complement the official records? How are they acquired? While the Provincial Archives has the mandate to acquire and look after these, the owners have no obligation to turn them over to the archives. Fortunately most individuals and groups would like to see their records preserved for posterity; many are flattered that their records are deemed to have permanent historical value. And persuasion sometime helps.

Donors sometimes give their documents as outright gifts with no thought to any recognition other than being noted as a donor. But there is another incentive to donate; the possibility of a (small) tax break. The archives can issue a receipt for a gift to the Province; this receipt is for the 'fair market value' of the donation and is suitable for income tax purposes. Donors of gifts with a high value may worry about capital gains but their tax advisors/accountants help them out there.

Then there is the archival material for which purchase is the only means of acquisition. When this happens it is usually for a large collection with a high market value. As an example, in the late 1980s the National Archives of Canada purchased the entire photograph work of Karsh. He is internationally renowned for this work and the immediate market was there for his material. The purchase price was $3.2 million!

Relative to its size and population, New Brunswick has comparable archival material which should be preserved for the people of the Province. Even in the financially flush days of the late 1960s and early 1970s, the Provincial Archives did not have that kind of acquisition budget. In the lean days of the 1990s, the Provincial Archives has no acquisition budget.

One of the tasks of the Archives associates is to set up a mechanism whereby donations, large and small, can be accumulated to acquire material which can only be acquired by purchase. But the mechanism is not enough; the money is needed. It is hoped that funds can be acquired both for specific acquisitions and to accumulate in an interest-bearing trust to acquire material over the long-term. □

Books on the Hessians

Little had been written before about the involvement of German soldiers in the defence of Canada during the American revolution.

King George III called for help and six German princes, all related to the King by blood or marriage, responded by supplying experienced troops. A total of 30,000 men were shipped to these shores, about 6,000 of them permanently stationed in Canada!

After the revolution many of those soldiers remained here for ever and made Canada their home.

Researching Canadian Archives and German military files, the Author has extracted much information about these forgotten soldiers, commonly known as the Hessians, and has written detailed accounts of many of them and their role in history.

The following titles are available:

He Was A Hessian, 2nd Edition - A study of some early German military settlers in Canada 1783-1800. 99 pages, in Cerlox binding, (15x22cm), $10.00 + $2.00 postage & handling for first book and $1.00 for each additional book.

Er War Ein Hesse - Die Geschichte deutscher

Soldaten in Kanada während und nach der amerikanischen Revolution 1776-1783. Eine wichtige Episode kanadischer Geschichte. 172 Seiten, in Cerlox Bindung, mit Buntbildern und Landkarten, $25.00 + $3.50 p&h 1st book & $1.00 for additional books.

The Hessians Of Nova Scotia - The Personal Data Files of 225 Hessian soldiers who settled in N.S. after the American revolution. Plus a short history of N.S. written by Terrence M. Punch, 275 pages, in Cerlox Binding, (22x28cm), $25.00 + $3.50 p&h 1st book & $1.00 for additional books.

Register Of German Military Men - who remained in Canada after the American revolution. Over 4,000 entries from Abbete to Zyprian, with over 12,000 references from hundreds of sources, 185 pages, information for genealogists, family researchers, and historians, $22.50 + $3.50 p&h 1st book & $1.00 for additional books.

The DeMill Family

Hampton, Kings County, N.B.

Daniel F. Johnson, C.G.(C).

An interesting item which surfaced in the Hayes estate auction held by Bond Auctioneers on Saturday October 7, 1995 at Lower Bloomfield, Kings County, N.B. was an old family bible (formerly in the possession of Julia J. Smith of Upham). The bible is now owned by Mavis Drummond of Hampton. The following births were transcribed from the above bible:

	Born
Henry Demill	November 21 st , 1792
Charity Demill	August 15 th , 1793
Elizabeth Demill	December 25 th , 1814
Frances C. Demill	October 2 nd , 1816
Sarah A. Demill	"
John Demill	October 7 th , 1818
Julia Demill	November 28 th , 1821
Margaret S. Demill	September 28 th , 1824
Mary Demill	December 28 th , 1826
Henry Demill	January 17 th , 1829
Charles E. Demill	April 16 th , 1831
William J. Demill	November 2 nd , 1834

Fortunately, we can readily identify this family from a typed transcript entitled John Demill, Loyalist: His Ancestry And Descendants compiled by Muriel DeMill Raymond. This typescript was prepared some time after 1928 and donated to the Archives And Library of the New Brunswick Museum, Saint John. In the 1980's, it was among the records transferred from the Museum to the Saint John Public Library where it was bound in hard cover and placed in the special book collection of genealogies.

From M.D. Raymond's work, we learn that Henry DeMill was the son of a Loyalist, John DeMill, born 26 Aug. 1757 at Stamford, Conn. John was only 2 when his mother, Mary (King) died of small pox. His father, Abraham DeMill, was a sea-faring man. Consequently, John was raised by his grandparents, Peter and Abigail (Banks) DeMill. At the age of 14, he was apprenticed to a carpenter in New York.

When the Revolutionary War broke out, he enlisted in the New York Volunteers and was said to be with the army at Virginia. On 16 May 1780, he took a licence to marry Elizabeth Smith, the daughter of Dr. Nathan Smith. Their first child was Abraham DeMill born 23 May 1792. From D.G. Bell's, table of loyalist passenger and victualling lists in Early Loyalist Saint John we find John DeMill as a loyalist refugee of the Spring Fleet, accompanied by an adult female and one child.

M.D. Raymond identifies the children of John and Elizabeth (Smith): Abraham, John, Mary (Polly), Abraham, Fanny, Henry, William, John Thomas Smith, Rufus Smith and Nathan Smith DeMill. John moved his family to Hampton about 1796. They built a log house on the slope about 150 feet from Darling Lake. John DeMill, Loyalist, died 13 January 1825 and was buried in St. Paul's Churchyard beside his wife who had predeceased him 26 May 1819.

Henry DeMill, son of John, married March 10, 1814, Charity Smith, a daughter of Isaiah Smith and they settled at Upham. Their children were Elizabeth who married John Ford Sherwood, Upham. She died 28 Nov. 1839; Frances Charity and Sarah Ann were twins. Frances Charity married Joseph Smith and resided at Smithtown; Sarah Ann married Edward Titus and lived at Titusville; John was killed by a fall from his horse in his 21st year; Mary married Edward Smith of Titusville; Henry married Freelove Sherwood; Charles Ebenezer married Sarah Isabella Upham of Upham. Henry DeMill, Sr. died 28 May 1866 and was buried beside his wife at St. Peter's Churchyard, Upham.

On an adjacent page in the old family bible, we find additional births:

Margaret Ann Smith	10 th April 1852
Charles Henry Smith	22 nd June 1853
Edward Elias Smith	27 th August 1854
Christy Emily Smith	7 th October 1855
Mary Elizabeth Smith	20 th Mar. 1857
Caroline Eliza Smith	19 th March 1859
Julia J. Smith	10 th Nov. 1861

This cemetery is located across the road from the present York Manor Nursing Home at 100 Sunset Drive in Nashwaaksis (Fredericton, NB). It can be found on Ferris Street, to the right of the entrance to a strawberry field and near the original railway tracks. It is surrounded by a chain link fence. There is no sign to identify it and you will not see the tombstones because they are all flush with the ground, similar to footmarkers.

* This tombstone has 1842 as the death date, however, the birth date is 1866, and it is located in a row beside two others who died in 1942. Therefore I think it should be 1942.)

† missing number looks like a backwards 3, does not appear to be part of an 8 because the stone is not worn away, but it is possible that it is an 8 that was not completed.

NOTE: There are three names that appear to be duplicated in the above list. There are two tombstones for each of the three names, and they are located in different areas of the cemetery, as is indicated by the numbers.) □

She Ain't What She Used To Be!

The old rocking chair is empty today,
My grandma is no longer in it.
She's off in her car to her office or shop,
And buzzing around every minute.

No one shoves her back on the shelf
She's versatile, forceful, dynamic.
That isn't an apple pie in the oven my dear,
Grandma's baking ceramics.

You won't see her trudging early to bed,
From her place by the warm chimney nook.
Instead her computer is humming along,
You see grandma is writing a book.

She never takes one backward look,
To slow down her steady advancing.
She won't baby-sit my kids any more,
Because grandma has taken up dancing.

She isn't content with the crumbs of old thoughts,
With meager and second hand knowledge.
Don't bring your mending to grandma to do,
You see she's going back to college.

What's Worth Writing About, Uncle George Raymond

By George H. Hayward

George Beecher Raymond was a tall, broad-shouldered, angular, good-natured man, with large, gnarled hands that told of a lifetime labouring in the fields and the lumber woods.

He was born in Middle Simons, Carleton County, New Brunswick, April 7th, 1863, and lived all his eighty years there. He died quietly in his sleep at his home November 2nd, 1943, and lies buried in the Simons cemetery.

His father was Rev. G. Hiram Raymond, also a life-long resident of Simons, and for many years pastor of the Advent Christian Church there. His mother was Charlotte, daughter of Elisha and Mary Ann (Phillips) Shaw. She was Rev. Hiram's second wife. His first wife was Caroline Shaw, Charlotte's sister.

His paternal grandparents were Newman and Mary "Polly" (Shaw) Raymond. Newman was born at Hampstead, Queens Co., N.B., in 1789, son of Samuel Rice Raymond, a Loyalist from Connecticut, and his wife, Mary Newman, which explains how Newman got an unusual given name. Newman and Polly removed from Queens County, first to the Parish of Northampton, where he received a grant of land in 1813, and later to the Parish of Simons.

On the 26th of January, 1887, George Raymond married Isadore, daughter of George Washington and Emily (Holmes) Hatfield. Isadore, always known in our family as "Aunt Doe," was born in 1864, in Simons, and was an older sister of my mother's father, Archie A. Hatfield.

Uncle George and Aunt Doe lived in a large, two-storey house near the road overlooking the river, next above the Hatfield store. It was built in 1912, and of the houses I knew in Simons, it was unique in that it had indoor plumbing. There were eaves troughs and down spouts that delivered rain water to a 3,600 gallon cistern in the basement. In the attic above the second floor there was a holding tank that held about one hundred gallons. A pipe, about one-and-a-quarter inches in diameter, ran up near the wall through the kitchen from the cistern to the holding tank, and in the line in the kitchen there was a hand pump. Each evening, Uncle George stood at the pump and pulled the wooden handle back and forth until enough water had been lifted into the holding tank to supply the family for the following day. Sometimes he would let us youngsters do it, which was a big thrill. The water ran down from the holding tank by gravity through pipes to the bathroom on the second floor, and the sink in the kitchen on the main floor. This was ultra modern in Simons in the 1930s.

Uncle George and Aunt Doe had four children of their own, Paul, Helen, Gertrude and Lucy. Gertrude died, unmarried, at age 35, and Lucy too, at age 22. Paul married Winnie Nevers and had two sons, Heber (Bus), and Carleton (Ike), neither of whom married. Helen did not marry either, so there are no descendants.

When his parents died, his father in 1912 and his mother in 1913, my mother's brother, George Hatfield, an orphan at age three, went to live with Uncle George and Aunt Doe in their big house. He remained there until he finished high school and went away to medical school. They were his foster parents; the only parents he knew. He always spoke highly of them.

Rev. Hiram was still living when young George went to the Raymond house to live. He died in 1920, aged 92 years and six months. George told me that he might still be living had he not fallen down the basement stairs, which resulted in his death. George also said Hiram had a good thing going for him. He donated land for a church, organized construction of the building, next door to his house, and preached hell, fire, brimstone and temperance, especially temperance, there for several years. This George found humorous because, in his bedroom, the Rev. kept a bottle of beef iron and wine, for medicinal purposes. That stuff, he said, and he should know because he was a medical doctor, was 87% grain alcohol. The old man always fortified himself with a big slug from the bottle before the service, then went into the pulpit and preached his temperance sermons.

Uncle George Raymond was more a lumberman than a farmer, although he did both. He was engaged in lumbering operations and river driving for many years; in northern New Brunswick, on the Restigouche, the Miramichi, and the headwaters of the Saint John; and in Quebec, on the Cabino, and Lake Témiscouata.

When I was a boy, Uncle Russ Hatfield's store was a gathering place in Simons in the evening. Russ was Uncle George's brother-in-law. The two of them were often there together in the evening. My father, Clem Fanjoy, Humbert Harris, George "Silver" Teed, Fred Caldwell, and several others might be there as well, sitting on the bench on the long veranda if the weather was fine, or inside around the three-tier cylinder wood stove in cold weather.

The men sometimes told stories of an earlier time, before I was born, of the familiar sight of Uncle George's teams going to the woods in the fall and returning in the spring. Old timers, who remembered when the Saint John River ran full of spruce logs through Simons, recalled the familiar figure of Uncle George walking the beaches, or in the boats, directing the work of crews who were breaking log jams, and removing timber from bridge piers, the heads of islands, and the beaches. Late in life, he retired, and was admired and respected in the community where he lived. □

The Associates of the Provincial Archives

A Support Group

Judi Berry Steeves

Early in 1994, the Honorable Laureen Jarrett, then Provincial Minister of Supply and Services, announced the creation of a support group for the Provincial Archives of New Brunswick. This group, the Associates of the Provincial Archives, was formed to work with staff and volunteers to further the aims and objectives of the Archives.

Members of the group are drawn from regions throughout the province and possess a range of heritage interests and concerns. These interests are as researchers, educators, donors, writers, artists, collectors and consultants, and other culture fields.

Provincial Archivist, Marion Beyea, said at that time, "A well-organized effort can attract and coordinate donations of time, specialized services, equipment, facilities, and funding for major projects or the acquisition of significant collections that would otherwise be inaccessible to the Archives. The work of the Associates can help bridge the widening gap between what can be adequately provided through provincial resources, and the steadily increasing demands being placed on the Archives. Growth in the numbers of inquiries from both government and the public, the impact of electronic media, and the care and preservation of the collections are very serious concerns."

Members of the Associates of the Provincial Archives are: Elide Albert, a Moncton architect; Greg Byrne, a Fredericton lawyer; John Corey, curator of the Kings County Museum; Joseph Day, engineer and lawyer in Kings County; Cyril Donahue, principal of Nelson Rural School in Northumberland County; Ernie Forbes, historian and professor at the University of New Brunswick; Robert Kenny, a Fredericton lawyer; Joe Knockwood, a researcher and long time employee of the Union of N.B. Indians; Fernand Lévesque, a civil servant in Fredericton; Mary Biggar Peck, publisher of several books on N.B.

history; Donat Robichaud, a Paquetville priest; and Betty Sewell, a former employee at the Provincial Archives, former Generations queries editor, genealogist for the United Empire Loyalists' Association of Canada, Fredericton Branch, and member of Capital Branch, NBGS.

Both the New Brunswick Genealogical Society, the provincial organization, and Capital Branch located in Fredericton, support the aims and objectives of the Associates of the Provincial Archives. At the regular Capital Branch meeting in Fredericton on Tuesday evening, December 5, 1995, Judy Berry Steeves, President of N.B.G.S., presented a cheque for $1,000, and Lionel Badeau, President of Capital Branch, presented a cheque for $500, to the Associates for the purpose of financing new equipment, specifically a microfilm reader for the Archives. Both cheques were accepted by Greg Byrne on behalf of the Associates of the Provincial Archives. □

How to research N.B. records at home

Write to The Provincial Archives of N.B., P.O. Box 6000, Fredericton, N.B., E3B 5H1, and ask for a County Genealogical Guide for the county in N.B. where your ancestors lived. The Guides list the material that is available on microfilm, such as marriage, church, probate court, land and other records, with reel numbers for most items. Once you know the reel number, go to a library near you that has a microfilm reader and ask it to borrow for you from PANB up to 3 reels at a time, which the library may hold for up to 21 days while you review them. Census records for the years 1851/61/ 71/81/91 and 1901 are available on inter-library loan from The National Archives of Canada, 395 Wellington Street, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0N3. You will need to specify the County, the Parish and the year, or the microfilm reel No.

Answers:

Q3288. Beryl (Beatteay) Biefer, 85 Beaver Ridge, Nepean, Ontario, K2E 6E5, sent us a copy of her response to D. Bell's query in the Fall 1995 issue of Generations about Mary Bond.

Both George Bond and his wife, Mary Bond, came to the Saint John, N.B. area from England in 1819, in Mary's case specifically from Devonshire, and settled in Carleton, the early name for West Saint John. Mary Coram Bond, the daughter of Mary Bond and step-daughter of George Bond, probably accompanied them. The 1881 Census for Brooks Ward, Saint John (National Archives of Canada microfilm C-13178, p.12) listed her birthplace as England.

Much of the information on the Bonds was found in their wills and obituaries: Will of George Bond see Saint John Co. Probate Record Book H-321; Will of Mary Bond see Record Book H-560, both in the Provincial Archives of N.B. microfilm F-1341. The obituaries were found listed in Daniel F. Johnson's Vital Statistics from New Brunswick Newspapers which quoted the New Brunswick Courier, January 10, 1852 for George Bond and the Weekly Chronicle July 28, 1854 for Mary Bond.

George Bond served as superintendent of the Hon. William Black's mills in Carleton for eighteen years. In 1825 he was elected Alderman for Guy's Ward in Carleton and continued in the position for twenty-four years.

In his will, dated January 3, 1852, he appointed his wife, Mary, and his friends Joseph Beatteay and George Bond Beatteay as executors. One item in that will stated "it is my positive order that the business of the Carleton Mills shall be carried on as it is now progressing viz. by the up and down saws(?), the lath machine, the shingle mill, the grist mills and all the other parts of the machinery." (To just what extent his executors were able to carry out his wishes for the mills is not yet clear. Joseph Beatteay's obituary mentioned that he was connected with the mills at one time but not in what capacity.) George Bond's will also provided that, after the death of his wife, the Meeting House at Sand Point, the leasehold on which it stood, the organ and furniture, should become the property of his step-daughter, Mary, the wife of Joseph Beatteay. Also bequeathed to Mary Beatteay was his "library including all my collection of books." Probate was granted January 14, 1852.

When Mary Bond died in 1854, she left her estate equally to her daughter, Mary Beatteay, and her grandson, George Bond Beatteay; the latter was to survive her by only three years.

Mary Bond had been instrumental in building the Sand Point Meeting House. Sand Point projected into the harbour on the Carleton side. The Meeting House was first called a bethel or seaman's mission where, according to an obituary for her grandson, John Coram Beatteay, she herself preached to the sailors. (Saint John Globe, January 16, 1911). It was also the site of her funeral.

The Saint John Business Directory and Almanac for 1857* included in its list of churches: Bond's Bethel (Baptist), Protection St. (Sand Point), Rev. J. McGinnis (?) missionary.

After the passing of the Common Schools Act in 1871, the building known as the Bond Meeting House or the Beatteay Building was used for Primary School No. 4, housing 111 pupils and 2 teachers. Q3314. GILLIS. Hallie Sandwith, 56 Tremont Drive, Halifax, N.S., B3M 1X9, sent us a copy of her response of 5 Nov 1995 to Alan W. Ulrich's query about Alexander and Ellen (Bremner) Gillis.

In addition to several references where information relating to the Gillis family on the Miramichi might be found, she included a transcript of a letter, written 29 Jul 1791 by Alexander Gillish (sic) of Miramichi to Edward Winslow in Fredericton, N.B., which is interesting, both for what it reveals about life in New Brunswick in the 1790s and for the quaint language and spelling in the letter.

Letter to Edward Winslow:

Miremoshi, July 29, 1791 – Honored Sir, I hope your goodness will exkuse me for the Liberty I have taken in writting. This is the second time I wrote your Honer by Reverant James Frazer, our Minister, who told me at his return that he sent you the letter and that he likeways sid you after in Frederectown and that you told him you was to send me ancewer by the first opertunity concerning that lot which I have been scandles yoused about I cant complean on government, but the inhabetanc that swears that I shall not have it if his Excellancy was on the spot himself to put me in pusheson of it - if it Pleas your Honer that they have pronounced thes words which, I think, is out of all character and werrey discouragen to it, if I was not in the destout situation that I am in I would sertantly leve the place, but I am so destout that it is out of my pour to remov may famely at present for everything I head in the world, only what was on my back, was consumed by fire the elevent of May last, with Bed and cloths and all my Furneter and everything I hade in the world was consumed that day - only my Cow and Calf they was saved, and nothing else in the world belongen to me; Seed purtates and seed graen and netts and all may fishing craft, so I was rendred uncapabel of doing anyething for the benefit of may famely. I leve this letter with may wife to give your Honer if you come hear to this River, or to send it by the first opertunity that she geats gon to Frederictown, as I this day sail to Halifax to geat som suport for may famely, and if god spear me to return I desire to build a house on lot No. 22 south sid of Miremoshi which is a wakent lot. It is the one I memorialoed for a young lad that lived with me which his memorial is in the Secrates offec as yet and his name is Philip Bremner - therfor if government dont not think it proper to give this lot to Philip Bremner (which has lived with me this several years of apprentes and is now sixteen years of age) if it does not pleas government to give it to him at this age that they will give it to me. If I am out of the other I will build on it other for myself or for the boy. Benjamin Ingraham, a Loyalist, who came to New Brunswick with his brother Abijah and settled initially at Fredericton. To John's knowledge, Benjamin and Abijah were the only founders of the Ingraham family in the Fredericton/Woodstock area. John also mentioned that Over The Portage; Early History of the Upper Miramichi, by W.R. MacKinnon, Jr. (Fredericton, N.B.: New Ireland Press, 1984), mentions the Donald, Moore amd Mooers families.

Herbal and Olde Tyme Remedies

Ruth Cleghorn and Marilyn Evans

Ginger:

We use it in baking but it also comes in handy when we have gas or colic, when we are taking a cold, have a sore throat, for menstrual cramps and mild diarrhoea.

A tea is made by using ½ tsp. ginger, 1 c. boiling water, add honey to taste (one or more tsp.).

Poultices and salves may be made using ginger and other ingredients for chest problems such as colds, coughs etc. A poultice can be made using 1 tsp. ginger, 1 tsp. cinnamon, 1 tsp. cloves, 1 tsp. red pepper,

1 tsp. dry mustard, ¼ tsp. powdered camphor, 1 oz. turpentine, ½ c. lard. Simmer the spices in the turpentine for a while then add to the melted lard, stir as it cools and thickens.

A poultice can also be made using the same ingredients as above but instead of using camphor and turpentine just mix the spices with alcohol, let set a bit then add honey, enough to make it spreadable on a cloth and apply to chest. To make a hotter plaster add twice as much ginger and red pepper.

Hession Research

This letter, dated January 18, 1996, was received from John H. Merz, 304 - 52 Hayden St., Hamilton, Ontario, L9A 2X2.

I noticed on page 51 of the Winter 1995 issue Dr. A.E. Edward's offer of assistance to researchers with Quebec roots.

I have been doing the same thing for many years, helping others find their ancestors, free of charge with no SASE necessary. But my hobby is different. I find Hessian ancestors, soldiers that served under King George III during the American Revolution, and after the war decided to make Canada their new home. Approximately 2,500 remained here, settling mostly in Quebec, Ontario and Nova Scotia.

I do ask for one thing in return for my help. I would also like to learn more about the Hessian ancestor – where he settled and lived, and perhaps a straight line from him to the enquirer. I have published several books on the subject, which are available on inter-library loan. But it is not a requirement for my help.

Sincerely yours. John H. Merz.

Kelly Clan

Ireland's official Kelly Clan gathering in May 1995 was a resounding success with over 100 O'Kellys and Kellys from around the world meeting in County Roscommon. The warmth and enthusiasm of everyone quickly spread throughout Roscommon town. I shall never forget those three days of smiles, laughter, conversation and the making of new family ties. During its first general assembly the Clan Council was appointed (the Constitution has subsequently been passed). Exciting future plans were discussed including the 2nd gathering in May 1997. Come join your family. Annual membership dues are 20 Irish Punts (an international money order in Punts is kindly requested). The Clan newsletter will be mailed three to four times a year, and the September 1995 back issue will be sent to you directly. Clan Secretary is Sean O Ceallaigh, Kelly Clan Association, 'Ros na Ri', Castleknock, Dublin 15, Ireland. Phone #01 8300565. The Tingley-United Association

From the T-U News, Fall 1994, contributed to Generations by Dr. David Snowdon, 17 Orchard Rd., Shrewsbury, MA, 01545.

The Tingleys-United Association is an international family organization, with members residing in both Canada and the United States. Its present active membership is well over one thousand Tingley family households. The society meets biennially at various locations in both countries.

Members of this association are descendants of Palmer Tingley, who sailed from England in 1635 on the ship Planter. He landed in Charlestown, Massachusetts Bay Colony, and later located in Ipswich. His son Samuel and grandsons Samuel and Thomas Tingley were residents of Malden in the Bay colony, and later these grandsons settled in Attleboro. Thereafter, succeeding generations with their families moved northward into the Canadian provinces and southward, spreading throughout the thirteen original American colonies. Today, Tingleys can be found in all the provinces and in all the states of both countries.

Anyone who is a descendant of this early American settler is eligible and is welcome to become a member of the family organization. For further information, contact the Editor of T-U News (the Association Newsletter), Karen Penn, 403 Stalcup, Columbia, MO, 65203.

Volume 8 of The Tingley Family Revised was expected to be ready for shipment by the end of 1995. For information about it, contact Harold Frye, 3757 NW 53rd Road, Gainesville, FL, 32653.

Généalogie – Genealogy Consultation, Recherche/Research, Tableau/Family Charts, French or English

Let me find your ancestor's marriage and their parents in New Brunswick or Quebec. I have more than 350 books of marriage records and on top of that I have the Loiselle Microfiche Collection containing over a million French Canadian records by itself.

For Ontario and Nova Scotia I have a few record books which can be helpful. Besides that, I have about twelve record books for the State of Maine.

For the parishes of the Bathurst diocese, which means the parishes in between Bathurst and Campbellton and also of the Acadian Peninsula (Caraquet, Tracadie and surrounding area), I can also find baptism or death records.

My personal data file concerning the families of my region (Bathurst, Petit-Rocher, Belledune) contains about 22,000 alphabetically indexed cards.

To complete this, I have on hand all the published census records for the province of New Brunswick between 1851 and 1891. I just added to this the recently released 1901 census hand copied from the microfilm.

Then, I just bought a collection from the NB Archives which is the Civil Register of Births for the province from 1800 to 1899.

Bed & Breakfast in England

This is a letter, dated July 22, 1995, from Penny Denby, who lives in a London, England, suburb, to Ruby Cusack, in Saint John, N.B. Anyone who is interested in the services she offers should write directly to her at the address given at the end of the letter. Penny is a family history researcher. Her mother was born in Saint John.

Dear Mrs. Cusack,

I wonder if I can be of any help to you or your friends. I have been teaching for the past ten years and have decided to do something different. From September this year I intend to open my house for bed and breakfast type accommodation. The cost per person for bed, breakfast and an evening meal 'en famille' will be £150 per week. We have two double bedrooms available, which share a bathroom.

Our home is a five bedroom house in a private estate designed and built in the 1920s by a local architect in the style of estates he had seen in Hollywood, California. We have access to a private woodland with two lakes where it is very peaceful to walk after the bustle of a day in London.

Keston is in the London Borough of Bromley. It can take as little as fifteen minutes by train in to London from Bromley, and there is a regular and frequent service. We are situated on the north west edge of Kent, which is known as the Garden of England. Travel to Paris, France, from Waterloo, London, via the Eurotunnel takes only three hours by train, and can cost only £84 return per person. We have excellent access by cross channel ferries to the whole of Europe.

There are many places of interest to visit locally. Chartwell, home of Sir Winston Churchill; Hever Castle, where Ann Boleyn stayed before travelling to the Tower of London to be beheaded; Quebec House, in Westerham, home of General Wolfe; Turnbridge Wells, a Tudor spa town; Brighton, famous for its Royal Pavilion; and The Lanes shopping area, are but a few to mention.

I would also be available, by arrangement and at a reasonable cost, to plan and organize tailor made outings to other parts of the UK and Europe - theatre trips, etc.

Another old gentleman whose farm was expropriated in Sunbury County for Canadian Forces Base Gagetown in the 1950s was taken all around the province time and again while he looked for a new location.

“Did you find a farm?” asked a sympathizer.

“Heck no!” the old gentleman replied. “I’d bought one already in Kings County. I was enjoying the free trips.”

Editor's note: Donald Lines Jacobus was a professional genealogist, distinguished beyond most of his peers. He was author of several genealogical books and articles, some of them of the "how to" variety. This is one of them, reprinted with permission of the Genealogical Publishing Co. While it is a bit dated in terms of technology, it still contains good advice for those planning to compile a family history.

If it is desired to trace the origin of the family in England, a specialist in English research should be retained. One without experience can but rarely achieve the best results by attempting to handle this part of the work personally; though if American records contain strong clues as to the English place of origin, a novice can sometimes make a good beginning by writing to rectors for entries in parish registers and by having wills abstracted. If the American progenitor is traced in England, a full copy of the English records obtained should be printed, not merely the compiler's conclusions based on them. A coat-of-arms should not be used as an illustration unless proof of descent from the armigerous family is offered.

Records in and near the town where the family made its first permanent American home should be thoroughly searched. If the compiler has never worked in contemporary record sources of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries, it will take him a long time to familiarize himself with the script of the period, the classes of records which are available, and the correct interpretation of the records pertaining to his family. It is sometimes said of a man who insists on acting as his own lawyer that he has a fool for a client; and too often the same observation is appropriate for a man who insists on being his own genealogist. But while an overwhelming majority of family histories written by amateurs are inferior productions, there are notable exceptions, and some of the best family histories to be found on library shelves were compiled by amateurs. It is to be noted, however, that these exceptions were compiled by persons who in addition to the required type of mentality had enjoyed the advantages of superior education, and who either possessed independent means or had the support of a family association, enabling them to devote their whole time for several years to the work.

For the writing of a family history, if it is to be accurate and anywhere near complete, is no light undertaking. It should if possible be compiled entirely by one person, whether that person be the financial backer of the work or the professional genealogist employed by him, for it is very difficult for a second worker to take over a half-completed compilation, with its infinite mass of detail, and complete it. This of course does not apply to employing other searchers from time to time to cover specific records in places which the compiler is unable to visit personally.

The individual members of the family should not be assigned reference numbers until the last minute before publication. If they are assigned earlier, they will certainly have to be changed, for up to the last minute new material will be found affecting the numbering system. There is one system which can be employed from the start, but aside from this advantage it is inferior to the systems in more general use and is not to be recommended. Of course, temporary numbering can be adopted, but is likely to cause confusion. A better plan is to index the individuals as the work progresses. A card index is the most satisfactory, and each card should contain the name of the individual, his year date of birth, and perhaps his chief place of residence when that is known, together of course with the reference to the page of the manuscript where information about him will be found.

Another good plan is to chart the early generations for quick reference, so as to be able to see at a glance the place occupied by each individual in the family. But even with these aids, a good memory is an almost indispensable asset in handling and arranging the material expeditiously.

When the book is in type, an index must be compiled as rapidly as possible. It used to be the fashion to have several indices, one for male descendants bearing the family name, one for female descendants born with the family name, one for husbands of daughters, one for wives of sons, and so on. It is much simpler and better for those who use the book to get everything into a single index. It is useful if the year date of birth is added to every individual who was born with the family name, or something equally distinguishing added, for it is appalling to have to look up a hundred page references if such names as John or Mary are sought.

Some histories, excellent ones among them, split a family into branches, taking up the descendants of each son or grandson of the first settler in order. This is very annoying to anyone who is interested in the early generations of the family and who has to consult each separate section of the book to locate all the great-grandchildren of the settler. Start with the settler, then come to the second generation and carry down each of his children or sons at least, then give the entire third generation, and follow this system down to the present.

Never attempt to trace descendants in female lines beyond the children of daughters. It is impossible to do so completely, as will be explained in the chapter entitled "Growth of an American Family." A large percentage of errors in the better family histories are in the female line, where the compiler's knowledge was less encyclopedic. Theoretically each family name should have its own history, and sooner or later, if the present interest continues, each of them will have. Most of the female lines found in the histories that pretend to give descendants on all lines, male or female, are "lifted" from other family histories, while those not found already in print are usually omitted. It adds nothing to the sum of genealogical knowledge to keep reprinting matter that has already been published in adequate form, and if inaccurate, the new compiler is compounding the errors of his predecessors.

When the genealogist has made a good beginning towards the arrangement of the first six generations – of course on some branches he will have acquired considerable later data – he should pick out all services in colonial wars and in the Revolution from printed muster rolls, and should have abstracts made of all Revolutionary pension files at Washington, pertaining to the family name. The difficulties are great if there were several early families of the same surname, when the compiler is interested in but one of these families. Sooner or later, he will have to write a partial history of the other families as well, to avoid confusion and to make sure of keeping them distinct from the family he is compiling.

Land records of the localities where the early generations lived are helpful in tracing individuals who removed to new localities, as their new homes are specified in their conveyances if they sold property subsequent to removal. The great dispersion took place in the decades following the Revolutionary War, and families moved from one pioneer settlement to another until they scattered throughout the entire country. The census records in Washington are a great aid in tracing migratory branches during the period when the eastern reservoirs of human stock were sending wave after wave of pioneer families to all the western lands.

It would be a hopeless task to attempt to search the public records of every locality where members of your family ever resided. After you have brought most of the branches down to about 1800, begin soliciting information from descendants. Do not begin to do this earlier, because interested descendants who send records for inclusion will write to you periodically to inquire when the book will be published, or to find out why it has not been published yet, and you do not want this annoyance to start sooner than need be.

You can secure addresses from city directories and telephone directories, and if these are not accessible to you for the whole country, advertising agencies for a fee will prepare lists of addresses. The city cousin, when he replies, can give you the address of the country cousin.

Various printed forms have been devised for the use of compilers in obtaining data from descendants. All of the forms have some good features, but no one type is perfect. In fact, I dare assert that a perfect form is impossible to devise. If too simple, incomplete information will be received; whereas, if the form provides for every contingency, it becomes so complicated and appears so formidable to the recipient that the compiler may consider himself lucky if it comes back filled out at all.

It is well to have a neat circular printed, announcing the preparation of the genealogy, and requesting data of the recipient's branch. It should specify in words of one syllable just what kind of information is desired. If any blank form accompanies the circular, in my judgement a simple form is to be preferred. Well educated people are weary of questionnaires; poorly educated people are afraid of showing ignorance by filling them out incorrectly; and both classes are prone to postpone and neglect what is for them a tedious task. Certainly at times one gets better results by allowing the descendants to write out the information in their own way. If incomplete an exchange of two or three letters should make good the defects of the first reply.

The printed circulars should bring at least one reply for every eight or ten sent out. After a month, a personal letter, signed even if it be a mimeographed form letter, should be mailed to those who have not responded. This may bring more results than the circular brought: the personal touch does count. A third and final appeal should follow after another month has passed, asking for addresses of interested relatives if the recipient himself is positively not interested.

Self-addressed envelopes should always be enclosed, but it is wasteful to stamp them. Those who are interested enough to send data will not be deterred by the lack of postage, while the stamp will have no influence on those who are not interested.

If the descendants who send data ask for information in return, give it to them. Don't tell them to wait and buy a copy of the book. Some of the elderly ones will not live to see the publication. Remember that these people are doing you a favour. They fail to realize what an added burden it places on the overworked compiler when they ask him where the family originated, or their line of descent, or whether an ancestor served in the Revolution. But neither do you realize what a nuisance it is to them to look up their records or write to cousins to obtain more information for you. Perhaps they are as overworked as you are. A generous attitude on the part of the compiler will not affect the sale of the book, and it is only decent to show consideration to these voluntary contributors. Writers of family histories too often waste pages extolling the virtues of their family, or telling what special traits distinguish it. There is no such thing, when dealing with ten generations and thousands of individuals, as a good family or a bad family. The new strains brought in by the wives in each generation must impart a tendency upward or downward to the succeeding generations. Every family has its distinguished members and branches, and its less reputable members and branches.

The branches that achieve distinction are prominent, and the compiler usually has little difficulty in obtaining their records. If a branch sinks too low in the social scale, it drops out of sight, and you fail to secure records from its members. They are not proud of themselves, so they are not proud of their family, and if your circulars reach them, they rarely reply. Hence most genealogies enlarge the achievements of the best part of the family, and neglect the worst part; and most compilers are satisfied with this result, even if they have made an honest effort to have all branches fully represented.

As for the prevalent notion that certain traits characterize a certain American family, it is sheer nonsense. It may well be that a dominant trait shows itself here and there in some lines over the course of several generations. But the law of averages and the laws of heredity preclude the possibility that all, or even a majority, of the several thousand descendants of the first American ancestor will inherit one certain trait. And this is considering only descendants in the male line. Or look at the question from a different angle. Suppose that a living member of your family numbers among his ancestors from five hundred to a thousand immigrant ancestors – and that is a fair computation if he is wholly of early colonial ancestry: what are his chances of inheriting a given trait from a single one of these forbears, even though that one be his ancestor on the male line?

Yet even exceptionally intelligent people show a lack of reflection on this subject. When I was compiling a genealogy, many descendants who had believed that the first settler was a French Huguenot were naturally somewhat incredulous when his parentage was discovered in England. One of them sent me a charming picture of an ancestor on this line, who was in the sixth generation of descent from the first settler, and pointed out his dark, handsome, French-looking features. I had to admit it; he did look French. Yet the subject of this portrait had thirty-two ancestors in the same generation with the first settler on the male line, and since he could have inherited his physical traits from anyone of these ancestors or from any combination of them, the chances were thirty-one to one against close resemblance to the male-line ancestor. In find, this sort of evidence is not competent to decide a question of this sort. To summarize: Be sure to make or procure thorough search of original record sources for the early generations of your family; go through all the printed sources in a large library if possible, for many valuable items will be gleaned in this way, particularly pertaining to the later generations; collect all you can from living descendants; and index your book adequately. The sale of the book may refund actual printing costs unless a deluxe style of paper, printing, binding, and illustrating is desired. The cost of the research and of the compilation, or your own time if you did this work personally, is your contribution to the family history. No genealogy published today, if the work has been properly and thoroughly done, can produce a monetary profit.

In selecting a printer, a firm that specializes in genealogical printing can offer the compiler greater facilities and take more burdens off his shoulders than one that is inexperienced in this field. The compiler should learn the most common printing symbols, such as underling once for italics and twice for small capitals, and employ them for the convenience of the compositors. Untrained compilers add much to printing costs by failing to give detailed instructions at the start, necessitating changes after type has been set. A page on which the matter concerning heads of families is set in ten-point type, that concerning children in eight-point type, and footnotes in six-point, makes an attractive appearance.

When your genealogy is going through the press, you will receive first a galley-proof, which should be read and corrected with the greatest care. If changes or additions have to be made, be sure to attend to them at this stage, because if made after the book is paged, they will prove more costly. The page-proof should require only checking to see that the changes have been made. Always read the whole line in which a change, however slight, was made; for in linotype printing the whole line is removed and a new one set, and in correcting one error a different one may have been made. If an insertion in one line has made necessary the resetting of several subsequent lines, perhaps to the end of the paragraph, do not overlook them, for although they may have been correct in the galley-proof there may be mistakes in them now.

Many genealogies are issued in parts. This scheme has found general favour because the cost of printing a cloth-bound volume of, let us say, a thousand pages, is so great that the resulting price of a single copy will be prohibitive to many descendants and will reduce sales to a minimum. By issuing the genealogy in from three to six parts, bound in heavy paper, a moderate price can be asked for each part, and for the purchaser the cost of the whole publication will be spread over a long period, say from two to five years. This plan also gives the compiler more time to collect material on the later generations, and to correct any errors that have been discovered in the earlier parts.

Printing by offset is now much employed because it is much cheaper than letterpress. However, the preparation of master copy is a chore, and mistakes are often hard to rectify. The employment of an expert to type the master copy dilutes the saving obtained from offset printing.

Do not make the costly mistake of printing too large an edition. Two hundred copies are enough, and often more than enough, for a pedigree book giving the compiler's ancestry on various lines. For the usual type of family history, an edition of from three to four hundred copies should suffice. The higher the price asked per copy, the fewer are the sales, and the size of the edition should be limited accordingly.

In printing copies of, or quotations from, original records, it is questionable whether much is gained by following the spelling and punctuation of the original. To be sure, there is a scholarly satisfaction in making verbatim copies, exact in every detail, and it should always be done in printing volumes of vital or church records. But in a family history which is to be distributed among descendants who for the most part are not accustomed to the vagaries of the ancient scribes, modern spelling would better convey the meaning of a transcription. Undoubtedly, many readers are bewildered by verbatim copies, smile perhaps at their quaintness, and pass them by unread.

It is very nearly impossible to place in print an exact copy of any old hand-written record. There were abbreviations and symbols not to be found in the fonts of modern printers. The confusion of 'u' and 'v' is not a real difference in spelling since these letters were considered identical: and the same observation applies to the use of the capital 'J' for 'I'. Just why the use of the initial 'ff' in place of 'F', and of the long 's', should be preserved in modern printed copies, while no attempt is made to preserve the old form of the letters 'r' and 'd', the old capital 'C', or the 'e' that was formed like an 'o' looped at the top, is a complete mystery. All of these belong in the same category and were differences in writing the letters, not real differences in spelling. If an exact reproduction is sought, a photostatic copy instead of a printed one should be found more satisfactory. Or perhaps I should have said, more unsatisfactory, since many of the readers would be unable to read the photostatic copy at all, while they can struggle through the so-called verbatim printed copy after a fashion.

It might also be pointed out that two experts would rarely make an identical transcription of an old record. Take a single example. Where a certain letter was shaped the same way, only size indicates whether it was intended as a small or capital letter. The careless scribe sometimes employed an intermediate size, which one expert might read as small, another expert as large. But in printing, an intermediate size would be impractical, so the copyist can only toss a coin to decide whether one of these uncertain letters should be set upper or lower case. My personal opinion is that, for family histories, modernized spelling for everything except personal names should be adopted. Should it not be the function of the expert antiquarian to dress the records of the past in the style that will make them most attractive to the general reading public? If it be pointed out that I have not always backed this opinion by my personal practice, I can only plead the strength of precedent. The genealogical profession, like the legal, has its precedents; and both professions should be less reluctant than they are to abandon precedents which, if ever useful, are so no longer.

Your finished book will be a pride and joy to you forever; and the praise of it, sweet music to your ears. Yet be not surprised if the harmony admits discordant notes. The man who failed to answer your impassioned pleas for information may criticised the book because his branch was omitted. And if an overlooked typographical error records one of the prominent descendants as marrying the mother of his child a month or so after that child's date of birth – well, a few florist bills for your friends to pay is the worst that can befall. □

Captain Gilbert A. Hoar

PANB Microfilm #F11084

Captain Gilbert Alwin Hoar was the son of John Russell Hoar and the great grandson of David Hoar, Sr. who came to Albert County in 1789 from Colchester County, NS. Born on 5 April 1855, Captain Hoar was lost at sea when the schooner Valkyrie sank with all hands in the vicinity of Sable Island on 21 August 1893. This was the date of a violent storm; the ship had sailed the day before for New York.

The 323 ton Valkyrie was built in Saint in 1888 and was owned by F.E. Sayre.

Captain Hoar married Izetta Mary Daniels on 17 August 1882. Born 4 January 1863, she came from an Albert County seafaring family. Both her father, Captain William Daniels, and her brother, Captain Albert Daniels, were lost at sea. She died 21 July 1949. Her sister, Miss Aletha Daniels, who died in 1939, had been a well-known dressmaker in Saint John for many years.

Mrs. Hoar's paternal great grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Daniels, were pre-loyalist settlers, having come from New London, Conn. in 1770. Mr. Daniels was the holder of one of the five original grants in Hopewell Parish after the French left the Shepody area.

Albert Gilbert Hoar was born at Saint John on 9 May 1891, the only son of the late Captain Gilbert Alwin Hoar and Izetta Daniels Hoar. Mr. Hoar died at Saint John on 19 February 1971.

Albert G. Hoar started at the Western Union Telegraph in Saint John as a Morse operator in 1909. About 1917 he was sent to Boston to take a special course on operation of the Markham Aut__? Machine and on his return was made supervisor at Western Union and continued as Morse operator after the firm was taken over by Canadian National Telegraphs in 1929 and later became chief operator. This position he held until his retirement in 1956.
