NEW CEMETERY, AND OLD BURYING GROUND

The Corbin notes state, "The following graves and stones were moved, circa 1890, from the old cemetery on North Street, on the spot where the Catholic Church (St. Joseph's) now is. There are three rows of these stones set about 6 inches apart. Only the bare facts were copied."

Correction: Mr. Corbin's facts on this subject are mistaken. The stones were moved, either from the "New Town Cemetery" which was in First Street in the area known as "The Common" (used 1830-1849), or from the "Old Burial Ground" which was located behind the Old Town Hall on Park Square (now a branch office of Berkshire Bank). After the opening of the Wahconah Street Cemetery in 1850, all stones from the "New Cemetery" on First Street and the stones still remaining in the "Old Burial Ground" were removed to the Wahconah Street Cemetery. There was never a cemetery located where St. Joseph's Church stands today.

THE BOOKSTALL

Reviews by J. Bradley Cooper

The Ancestry of Dr. Franklin B. McClung, by Joan S. Guilford, PhD, hardbound, 9½ x 6½, 738pp, illus, pedigree charts, index, table of contents, bibliography. Price $49.50 by check payable to Joan S. Guilford. Order from Genealogy Publishing Service, 573 Beasley Mine Road, Franklin, NC 28734-4144.

The Table of Contents lists 70 surnames to be covered by the text. Since many of the immigrants were Quakers, an introductory section presents material on the Society of Friends. Many came from Holland so there is a description of the Dutch naming system together with a list of the English equivalent of some Dutch names.

The main text presents seventy genealogies of varying lengths with citation of sources, while frequent excerpts from wills point up some of the family relationships. Where there is some disagreement as to specific relationship there is usually an analysis of the situation and the reasoning underlying the decision. Each genealogy is followed by a tabular display of the generational chain linking the early ancestor with Franklin B. McClung and Joan S. Guilford.

Families covered in the text are: Amsden, Forshee, McGillan, Pearson, Anderson, Galloway, McKay, Salmon, Burgess, Graham, Meigs, Sebring, Cadwallader, Galloway, Morris, Stockton, Cartnell, Graham, Noble, VanBuskirk, Chester, Gregg, Orton, VanRipen, Clover, Hadley, Palmer, Vernon, Coerten, Hair, Perlier, Vigne, Collins, Halenbeck, Peterson, Volkertszen, Cooke, Hand, Plympton, Wariner, Cowles, Hawes, Pocock, Whitacre, Cramer, Hoffmeyer, Polhemus, Wright, Creamer, Horton, Pratt, Zug/Zook, Crawford, Hulme, Ridgway, Curle, Ilsey, Riston, Curtis, Ireland, Royston, Daniel, Jobe(e), Roberts, Dewey, Lemaire, Ross, Doud/Dowd, Lesourd, Rutter, Wright, Malin, Ross, Enoch(son), McClung, Rutter

Before using data from the pedigree charts it is well to have read the corresponding text because some of the entries are based on an analysis of conflicting or uncertain data which should be understood before accepting the specific conclusion of the chart.

An outline of the history of the town includes extensive treatment of Shays' Rebellion. The origin of the rebellion, its early progress and the players involved is very thoroughly presented. Shays was apparently a late comer and the insurrection was well underway under other leadership before he appeared on the scene.

A listing of all of the town officials from 1790 to 1859 and some tax records are followed by a narration of the various activities considered of importance.

The above is a Pittsfield record in the collection of the Berkshire Athenaeum. The original document also has a tax column headed "Highway"; it was not included here to save space and because it contained no entries. Note the taxes in mills. Yes, we noticed that the arithmetic is a bit off; please don't ask us to justify the calculations of those long dead. Ed.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS ?

Luther Taylor (1810-1888) came to Pittsfield in the 1840's as an engineer on the Western Railroad. In the fall of 1842 he had entered the employ of the pioneer engine builders Hinckley & Drury and worked for them on the Fresh Pond Railroad, later the Fitchburg Railroad. Here he met with an accident at Charlestown; when crossing a bridge his locomotive left the rails and he went twenty feet over into the water, but fortunately the tide was out and he escaped serious injury. When the company called on him to settle he was asked how far he fell, and he said "twenty feet" and that he would take three dollars a foot. It is reported that the company was glad to settle for $60.00.
