CORRIGENDUM

In Berkshire Genealogist, Volume 28, Number 2, Page 49, we published data entitled Vital Records of the Town of Lee - 1900. These were taken from Annual Report of The Town Officers of The Town of Lee, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, for The Year Ending March 3rd, 1900, therefore the records we reported as occurring in 1900 should have been reported as occurring in the previous year - 1899.

You may wish to correct your copy for future reference. Berkshire Genealogist regrets the error. ■

THE CURTIS FAMILY OF DALTON

From The Berkshire Hills, December 1, 1901.

On the North mountain in Dalton was the pioneer home of the well-known Curtis family of that town. Mrs. C. S. Haley, nee Phidelia Curtis, and the writer, lately had the pleasure of visiting this old residence and farm of their grandparents. North mountain is about two and a half miles from the center of the town. The three Curtis brothers emigrated from England to Massachusetts and all served their country in the war of 1812. Elijah Curtis, their grandfather, came to Dalton from Worcester County in 1794 and took up his location as above, his brother John also making settlement near him. The journey was a long one for those days and was made with ox-team and on horseback. Grandfather Elijah had a horse named "Button," to whose back a feather bed and a flax wheel were strapped, and upon which grandmother Curtis was mounted with Abner, then an infant, (and well remembered in his life by older citizens,) in her arms. At the time of the settlement of the North mountain there was no house nearer them than the center of the town, which was then called the "Hollow," and where a few families had cleared up the land and built houses.

Grandmother Curtis' maiden name was Anna Stockwell, and being an experienced nurse she soon became familiarly known to the settlers as "Aunt Anna," who used to send for her when stricken down with illness. She would often relate some experiences in riding old "Button" down through the woods to the "Hollow" at night with a pine torch in her hand to frighten off the wild animals, who were afraid of fire, and this being the sure defense against them in the darkness. Some of the few stories of the many which she related to her grandchildren, and are yet remembered, seem almost incredible.

Near their home was a cornfield and they were troubled to save the crop from bears, who made frequent inroads upon this field. One day when grandfather went out to hunt these animals from this locality, he suddenly came upon a big bear with two cubs. Firing at the bear, he wounded, but did not kill her, and the cubs swiftly clambered up into a tree. Having no more ammunition with him he summoned grandmother from the house to hasten with a club and beat upon the trunk of the tree to keep the cubs from coming down, while he rushed to the same for powder and ball. This she did, bravely sticking to her position, while the snarling wounded bear tried to approach her, when her husband returned and killed the animals, whose meat made their household many delicious meals.

It was this brave lady who returning home late one night discovered that there was no water in the house. Despite her husband's entreaties not to risk herself, she lighted a pine torch and taking a pail started for the spring, which was a short distance from her dwelling. What was her surprise on reaching this spot to find a huge bear crouching on his haunches beside the spring, as though he was standing sentry thereat. Boldly advancing and shaking her flaming torch at his bearship, she yelled, "don't you let me catch you down in our field tonight stealing our corn." Whereupon the bear, as if understanding her words, but probably in fear of the nearing flame of her torch, slowly ambled off into the dense woods.

Her husband deceased many years before this pioneer grandmother, who afterwards removed from the mountain farm to the Carson flats, occupying a house which once stood on the site of the present Irving House. She deceased at the ripe old age of 85 years, having outlived all but three of her ten children. In this rapid age of intelligence and invention, and enjoying all the comforts and advantages of these modern days, it is hard to realize that our ancestry lived in Dalton when it was put a partially unbroken forest in which wild animals roamed at large, and full of hardships, privations and dangers to these pioneer settlers.

THE TYLERS, A BERKSHIRE REVOLUTIONARY FAMILY REPRESENTED IN THE BATTLES OF BUNKER HILL AND BENNINGTON

From The Berkshire Hills, September 1, 1900.

AN ANCIENT DEED

An ancient deed of conveyance of unappropriated lands in Berkshire County by Ebenezer Pierce and Israel Jones, Esquires, and G. Daniel Brown, gentleman, who under the Resolves of the Great and General Court of Massachusetts in 1785-6-9 were thus empowered to act, is before us. In this document Ebenezer Pierce and Daniel Brown, with James Barker and James Mason as witnesses, on April 15, 1790, convey to Samuel Tyler of New Ashford forty-eight and three-fourths acres of land already settled upon by him, Samuel Tyler, for eight pounds and three shillings, at the same time allowing him twenty acres of land connected with these in compensation for his services to the Commonwealth in settling upon its uncultivated lands, repairing roads, etc. The instrument is attested by James Barker, Justice of the Peace.

SAMUEL PAGE TYLER

In 1769 Samuel Tyler emigrated to New Ashford from Sharon, Conn., with his wife and sixteen year old son, Samuel Page Tyler, who had married Esther Hamilton just previously. The latter's family consisted of an only son, Dr. William H. Tyler, formerly of Lanesborough and North Adams, and five daughters, none of whom are now living. The old homestead, a short distance from the northern foot of quarry hill on the Lanesborough and New Ashford highway, is still standing. Samuel Page Tyler died here in 1839 aged 86, and his wife in 1848, aged 89. The graves of both are marked by plain marble slabs in the old New Ashford Cemetery. The immediate living descendants of Samuel Page Tyler are but fourteen in number, the most of whom still reside in the county.

EFFECTS OF A BRITISH CANNON BALL

The late Dr. William H. Tyler left the following facts relative to the part which his father took in the War of the Revolution:

"Samuel Page Tyler, my father, soon after the battle of Lexington enlisted as orderly sergeant for eight months under Capt. Samuel Sloane, the latter afterwards being made a Major General. A few days after the battle of Bunker Hill, in a short engagement between the American and British troops at Larchmore's Point, near Cambridge, my father received a slight wound. The British soon retreated and embarked on their war ships, but continued firing upon the shores with their cannon. Thinking all danger past my father started out to look up the horse he had ridden from Berkshire to Boston, when a cannon ball ploughed into the earth so near to him that the concussion felled him to the ground upon his face, senseless, carrying his hat several rods ahead of him. Capt. Sloane saw him fall and supposed he was dead. Though he partially recovered in a few days, his hearing as a result of this concussion was very much impaired, which increased to such an extent in his later years that it was very difficult for him to understand loud voicings into a long tin ear trumpet. During his life he drew a pension for the above causes.

IN THE BENNINGTON BATTLE

"The next year, August 16, 1777, my father fought at the Battle of Bennington. His father, my grandfather, was also in the battle with three other sons, but none of them but my father proved to be in any place of danger. This battle took place some two and a half years before I was born, but when I began to come to youthful understanding, these events having so recently transpired, were very often introduced into conversation between my father and mother and others who were interested in the American Revolution, and therefore every fact and incident became most interesting to me.

TAKING OF THE TORY BREASTWORKS

"An uncle often related to me how well he remembered my father's patriotic exertions for several days and nights before this battle. How he raced from house to house in Williamstown and New Ashford to get the militia out and ready for the swift march to Bennington. He and his men were early on the battle-ground on the morning of August 16th, and his brother-in-law, Dr. Silas Hamilton, afterwards a prominent physician at Silver Lake, N. Y., stood shoulder to shoulder with him in the fight. They were in front of the famous Tory breastworks which the Tories and hired Hessians fought most desperately to hold, and during the charge thereon a Lanesborough militiaman, who was directly behind my father, was instantly killed by a musket ball. There were two brass field pieces mounted upon the Tory breastworks, which though hotly served, did but little execution, being elevated so high that the balls went over the heads of our militia and ploughing up the ground in their rear. I have often heard my father and uncle in speaking of this fight refer to the courage and intrepidity of two boys who took up a position by themselves in a small patch of rye and who did such deadly execution on the enemy with their rifles that they attracted the attention of many officers and soldiers. Though thoroughly exposed to the enemy's fire throughout the action, for a wonder they escaped unharmed, and all attempts after the battle to learn the names of these brave young patriots proved entirely fruitless.

GUARDING PRISONERS IN THE MEETING HOUSE

"When those behind the Tory breastworks were brought to submission, father, with a file of militia men, took charge of a body of prisoners consisting of British and Hessian soldiers and a few Tories, and marched them to the Meeting House or church on the brow of the long hill at Bennington Center, and placed them under guard. Refreshments were then provided for them and pipes and smoking tobacco liberally supplied. The Hessians, who had been told by the British that the Yankees treated their prisoners very unkindly, to make them fight more determinedly and to prevent them from deserting, on receiving instead such liberal and hospitable usage from their enemies, were very thankful and happy, sang their national songs and smoked and chatted with great cheerfulness.

AN ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE

"During the night a number of the British soldiers, or 'Red Coats' as they were generally called, forced the main door of the church, pushed some of the Hessians out upon the steps and then tried to escape in the confusion they had thus created. The guard promptly fired upon them, killed quite a number, and the rest quickly scrambled back into the church for safety.

A SINGULAR INCIDENT

"One incident after the battle, which my father often spoke of, greatly attracted my curiosity. While with his file of brave militiamen he was collecting together the prisoners to take them to the Bennington church, one of them importuned him for permission to go back behind the Tory breastworks but he promptly refused the request. He explained to the soldier that under the circumstances he was not to be trusted. That should he go back with him behind the fortification, that it would be easy for him to pick up a gun or other weapon, kill him, and then make his escape. The prisoner then begged father to tie his hands behind him and then go behind the breastworks for a few minutes. On obtaining father's reluctant consent the soldier then ran behind the works, and from one dead or wounded soldier to another, gazing intently into their faces. Finally he came to one who was lying on his face, but yet alive. Turning him over roughly he said to him 'is that you,' and then he signified to father that he was ready to go with him, but without giving any explanation for his singular conduct.

RETREAT TO STILLWATER

"After the taking of the Tory breastworks, behind which during the battle was by my father's eldest brother, Jared, who deserted to the British the night before the engagement, and whom very fortunately my incensed father did not meet until fourteen years had elapsed, when he made his only and final visit to New Ashford, the British and Hessian forces on the north side of Wallomsac Creek retreated westward and were pursued by the Americans for two or three miles. At this point the British met with a reinforcement from their main army at Stillwater, and turned again and gave battle just at nightfall. There was hard fighting for a while, when Capt. Warner came up with a fresh regiment of continental troops and the British then continued their retreat to Stillwater."

THE JENKS FAMILY OF ADAMS

From The Berkshire Hills, March 1, 1904.

INVENTORS OF THE FIRE ENGINE, THE HAND SCYTHE AND THE IRON KETTLE

DANIEL, WILLIAM AND EDWIN F. JENKS,
THE PAPER MAKERS

JOSEPH JENKS, THE ANCESTOR

The history of the Jenks family of America, with its notable past and present representatives in Berkshire County, is full of historic interest and incident. The lineage of this family dates back from Joseph Jenks, who was born in Hammersmith, England, in 1602. His son, as substantiated by preserved records, was known as "Governor Joseph," who was born in England in 1632 and emigrated to Massachusetts at the age of eighteen years. He first settled in Saugus, now known as the city of Lynn, and which township also was the present site of five surrounding towns. In 1642, at the head of navigation on the Saugus river, a tract of 3,000 acres of land was purchased of one Thomas Hudson by a company on which to erect the first successful iron works in America, one of the considerations being that said Hudson was to be given the first article made at these works, which was an iron kettle weighing two and a half pounds and holding a quart, and which was the first iron casting made in this country. This casting was made by Joseph Jenks in 1642, who was the foreman of these works, which were owned by European and American men of wealth, among which latter was a son of Governor John Winthrop. This kettle was kept by Hudson and his descendants for fully a century, and finally presented to the citizens of Lynn, and then to the Lynn Historical Society, where it is preserved in a glass case, hanging from an iron crane and backed by an iron tablet giving its history.

HIS FIRE ENGINE AND COINAGE INVENTIONS

These Saugus Iron Works also included a machine shop, in which the first fire engines in America were built by Joseph Jenks for the city of Boston, in obedience to a vote passed in a town meeting, held March 1, 1654, reading "The Selectmen have power and liberty to agree with Joseph Jenks, for Ingins to convey water in case of fire, if they see cause to do so." When Governor John Endicott began the oak tree and pine tree coinage, the latter known as the pine tree shilling, these dies were made by "Joseph Jynks" at the Saugus Works, while they were designed by his wife Elizabeth. This coinage, bearing the stamp of Massachusetts state, without any reference to the British throne, was without doubt the first act of independence towards the mother country. There is no record of the Saugus Iron Works being in existence after 1688, but the site is marked by an inscribed iron tablet, erected by the Lynn Historical Society near a ridge of furnace ashes and slag which has withstood the storms and winds of nearly three centuries. This tablet has this inscription, "The First Iron Works. The first successful iron works in the country established here. Foundry erected in 1643. Joseph Jenks built a forge here in 1647 and in 1652 made the dies for the first silver money coined in New England. In 1654 he made the first fire engine in America."

THE INVENTION OF THE SCYTHE

It is farther of great historical interest that to this Joseph Jenks the first patent ever issued in the United States was granted. This invention was the common hand scythe for, as an early chronicler described, "the more speedie cutting of grass," and curiously enough the mowing implement invented by him over 250 years ago was the only one used for cutting grass in this country until the introduction of mowing machines drawn by horses, and the almost omnipresent lawn mower in still later years, and is still a necessary possession to every farmer from ocean to ocean and will be probably for all time to come.

MADE ALL KINDS OF "AFFAIRES"

In a diary of August 4, 1651, a pioneer Saugus citizen writes, "All these iron works they do make all kinds of affaires, such as the first saw mill and water wheel, chains, plow irons, scythes, boltes, and ye like. And their axes and trammels be strong and well shaped. Some of ye workmen be exceedingly skillful and ye fame of ye workes be verie great. Ye workes be mostlie owned by certain rich men in Old England, but some of ye richest and wisest men have something to do with these workes, which showeth that they think them worth."

THE RHODE ISLAND FAMILY

From Saugus, Joseph Jenks, the wonderfully skilled mechanic and the earliest inventor in the country, finally removed to Rhode Island, where his son William was born in 1674. Dr. John, a son of this William, was a man of great wealth, and at the time of his death was the owner of the larger part of Smithfield, R.I., the same territory which today comprises the greater portion of three townships, one of which, Woonsocket, was a part of his possessions. His son, Edmund, was the pioneer of the Jenks family in Northern Berkshire, coming thither in 1768 and purchasing a large amount of land extending from what is known as Stafford's Hill down to the present village of Adams. On July 26, 1769, Edmund, with his wife and eldest daughter, arrived in Berkshire from Rhode Island on horseback, the remainder of the family and household goods having been conveyed hither in carts drawn by oxen.

SAMUEL SETTLES IN ADAMS

The family of Edmund, son of Dr. John Jenks, and the Berkshire pioneer, was a large one, consisting of six sons, Dr. William, George, Charles, Samuel, Thomas and Edmund, and two daughters, Ruth and Annie. These sons all lived to a good age, George to 63, Dr. William 67, Charles 81, Samuel 87, Thomas and Edmund 83. Samuel the fourth son of Edmund, was a manufacturer and farmer. His old saw and grist mill on the site now occupied by a portion of the L.L. Brown Paper Company, as also his carding mill, will possibly still be remembered by a few of the older inhabitants. At one time Samuel and his two sons William and Daniel were interested in the manufacture of cotton cloth, but this industry was discontinued somewhere about 1837.

WILLIAM AND DANIEL JENKS

Of these two sons, William never married, but lived with his brother, Daniel, at the old Jenks homestead on the corner of Center and Commercial streets, now occupied by W.

S. Jenks of a later generation. Of the two, William was of a quiet and retiring disposition, a good listener rather than conversationalist, though thoroughly enjoying the business life and sociability of the period. Daniel, the father of Edwin F., was born in the old Jenks homestead in '79. He is remembered as a man of imposing and commanding presence, of large build and of striking muscular development. He was kind, sympathetic and large-hearted, of a pleasing and smiling countenance, and so thoroughly affable and courteous in his manners and conversation, that he drew to himself a host of warm friendships in this town and county. He was a good business man and thoroughly devoted to the building up and prosperity of both his village and the town. Devoted to his business and landed interests, he sought no political office, though his sterling worth and character and eminent popularity and sound common sense led his often to be sought for such by the Democratic party, of which he was a most exemplary representative of the old school. He was however once nominated by that party for State Senator without consultation and in a time of much political excitement, and in which struggle the late Hon. Byron Weston of Dalton was elected by the Republicans, afterwards resulting in his selection by his party for lieutenant-governor on the ticket with Governor John D. Long.

FOUNDING OF THE BROWN PAPER MILL

It was William and Daniel Jenks, together with their nephew, the late and lamented Levi L. Brown, who started the manufacture of fine paper in Adams in 1849 under the form name of L. L. Brown & Co. The style of this firm, whose reputation and product has since gained the establishment world-wide fame, remained the same until the L. L. Brown Corporation was formed in 1873, by taking over the business of the old company. This plant, founded in 1849, or rising of half a century ago, was the small beginning of the now extensive works and business of the L. L. Brown Paper Company, and though its founders have long been gathered to their fathers, is carried on for the most part by their lineal descendants.

INVESTMENTS IN OIL LANDS

Daniel Jenks died in Adams in February, 1879, at the age of nearly 80 years. Edwin

F. Jenks, who succeeded his father, Daniel, was born in Adams in 1821 and died in 1868 when but a trifle over 46 years of age. Quite early in life Edwin became connected with the firm of L. L. Brown & Co., and was an active representative in looking after the outside interests of the firm, which were varied and extensive, and of these may be mentioned its petroleum holdings. During the great excitement of the times caused by the discovery of the Pennsylvania oil-fields, he was promptly on the grounds and made several purchases of farms which proved to be very profitable investments for the firm.

THE WHITING MILL AT HOLYOKE

In 1865 E. F. Jenks, L. L. Brown and William Whiting organized the Whiting Paper Company at Holyoke, of which Mr. Jenks was made treasurer, retaining the office until his death. From boyhood up to manhood he was very popular with his townsmen and was greatly respected by his large acquaintance in Northern Berkshire, in the municipal northern cities and elsewhere. He was a trusted friend and advisor of many citizens of Adams and by many of such his faithful services are distinctly remembered. His advice and friendship to minors and widows in the settlement of their affairs as trustee and guardian are still recalled with deep gratitude.

EDWIN F. JENKS OFFICIAL SERVICE

In the prime of his promising manhood Edwin F. Jenks was a very popular figure in northern county politics, commencing his career with two terms in the House of Representatives in 1854-5, then serving on the council of Governor Gardner of Know Nothing fame in 1857-8, and being elected a Republican State Senator from Northern Berkshire in 1862-3. Later, and at the time of his death, he was a valued member of the Board of Trustees of the Worcester Insane Asylum.

HIS CHARACTER AND SERVICES

He was of fine figure and of prominent appearance. He was of a peculiarly cheerful and attractive disposition and temperament and was in every sense possessed of those characteristics only to be found in a thorough gentleman. He was fond of athletic sports and of amusements, and was ever bright, witty and inclined to humor when not absorbed in political and business matters. While at the State House he was an able and acknowledged leader, though his power was potent in personal argument, individual and committee work and a popular following, rather than in oratorical display, though he had the rare ability of putting his thoughts into electric and incisive words in the shortest possible compass and on the shortest notice.

POWERFUL FRIEND OF THE HOOSAC TUNNEL

He is remembered in his legislative service as a powerful friend and advocate for securing loans from the state for the building and completion of the Hoosac Tunnel. On a trip of Governor Banks and Council, a number of the heads of state departments and a joint committee of the Senate and House over the Hoosac mountain and by railway from North Adams to Troy, in the sixties, it being the first visit of Massachusetts state officials over the survey and rails which were to connect Boston, the Empire State and the great West by this magnificent, but expensive route, he is remembered as the bright, particular star of this notable embassy, whom he kept, by his rare powers of entertainment in high spirits from the beginning to the end of their journey.

OFFICIAL TRIP TO TROY

A large number of prominent citizens of North and South Adams and the Pownals accompanied this party to Troy, and it was a single citizen of North Adams who is now living who introduced Governor Banks and his party, who were all strangers, to the railroad magnates Vail and Robinson, to Mayor Thorn and the city government and to the business citizenship, largely assembled in the Union depot to welcome them, the occasion terminating with a great banquet at the Troy House, at which at a very crucial period in the history of this great undertaking, its completion at whatever cost was pledged by the citizens of both states in an after-dinner talk of most eloquent and forceful importance.

HIS WELL KNOWN DESCENDANTS

In 1842, Edwin F. Jenks married Nancy S., daughter of Daniel Fisk, who died in 1881 at the age of 63 years. There were four children. Edmund D., who died in 1889, left two sons, Edwin F. and Ernest C., and two daughters, Grace M. and Mary N. Jenks; Charles C., now living in Holyoke with a son Daniel A. Jenks; Lucy B. Jenks, (Mrs. E. J. Noble of Adams,) with one son, Robert Noble; William S., who occupies the old Jenks homestead in Adams, who has two daughters, Mildred Dean and Jessica Estelle Jenks.

The articles are grouped by topic, such as Census Records, Military Records, Immigration, etc., and can be accessed by simply clicking on the page number shown in the Table of Contents. Some of the articles are personal research experiences. The inclusion of these stories is a nice addition to the more "informative" offerings.

The CD operates using Adobe Reader 7.0. Later versions of Adobe should work, too.

This CD should be of value to anyone, whether you can personally patronize the contributing research facilities or not. It sells for $24.95, plus $5.00 shipping and handling, and can be ordered through the Friends at the address given above.

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR WRITING QUERIES

1. Give the full name, including middle name or initial, of the person subject to enquiry.
2. Establish identity of the person by giving place and date of birth, place and date of death, parentage, place and date of marriage and identity of spouse to the extent these data are known, as:
John DOE b Hartford, CT 12 Jan 1900; d Fairfield, CT 19 Mar 1967 s/o Richard & Abigail (WESTON) DOE m Hartford 11 June 1923.
3. If unable to give a complete description of the person under enquiry, start with a son or daughter for whom more information might be available and ask for that person's ancestry.
4. Identify spouse in manner described in (2) above.
5. State what information is desired, as:
Need ancestors of John and Abigail.
6. Place the question at the end of the query.
7. Do not abbreviate the names of persons or towns.
8. For any locale outside Massachusetts, be sure to identify the state.
9. Dates should be written: day, month, year as: 13 Oct 1743.
10. Use multiple queries rather than several parts to the same query.
11. Queries should not exceed four or five lines and should be submitted as an ASCII file on a diskette or E-mailed to bfha@berkshire.net marked as a query on the subject line. Printed or typed queries will also continue to be accepted.
12. Well-known abbreviations may be used but elaborate use of them is not required.
13. Address for reply should be stated on each card so that the Editor is not obliged to keep their envelope as well in order to have a complete record.
14. Acknowledge receipt of all replies and reimburse respondent for postage and the cost of any material copied. One should not be left out of pocket for having answered a call for help. If the submitted material is of little use, that is the risk assumed in transactions by correspondence.
15. When requesting information, always include a SASE.
16. Help your query editor judge the effectiveness of this section. If you make a contact that provides significant help with your search, won't you let us know?
