BERKSHIRE MEN OF WORTH

From the Berkshire Eagle columns by Joseph Ward Lewis, 1933-1935

The fact that Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette College, is to address the Wednesday Morning Club this week recalls interesting Pittsfield and Berkshire connections with Lafayette College.

The second president of Lafayette College was John William Yeomans, Berkshire born and bred, Berkshire educated. Dr. Yeomans was born in Hinsdale Jan. 7, 1800; was graduated from Williams College in 1824, tutored at Williams; then studied theology at Andover Seminary. His first pastorate was at North Adams (at that time a village in the north part of the town of Adams), and extended from November, 1828, to the spring of 1832 when he became pastor of the First Congregational Church in Pittsfield.

In 1834 he was called to the First Congregational Church at Trenton, N.J., as successor to the Rev. Dr. James Alexander. In 1841 he became president of Lafayette College. He resigned that position in 1844. The resignation took effect early in 1845 when he became pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Danville, Pa. He died at Danville June 22, 1863.

Dr. Yeomans was moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in 1860. He held degrees in divinity from Williams College, the College of New Jersey and Miami University, all conferred in 1841 when he became president of Lafayette. He was a scholarly, vigorous, voluminous writer and was reputed to be the ablest metaphysician in his denomination. He wrote the sketch of Adams in the David Dudley Field History of Berkshire County.

Addison Ballard, a former resident of Pittsfield, was for nineteen years (1874-1893) a professor at Lafayette. Dr. Ballard was of the Williams class of 1842, was Professor of Rhetoric at Williams (1854-1855), pastor of the Williamstown Congregational Church (1857-1865). Dr. Ballard spent the last decade of a long, useful life with his son, Harlan Hoge Ballard of the Berkshire Athenaeum. He died in Pittsfield Dec. 2, 1914, at the age of 92.

Miller D. Steever, who has been a member of the faculty, teaching civics and government, at Lafayette for the past dozen years, was a resident of Pittsfield for seven years. He practiced law here and was City Clerk for three years beginning in 1917.

Other Berkshire born men have become presidents of leading colleges, and the list is impressive. In front of the Park Building on East Street is a stone monument marking the site of the parsonage occupied by Parson Allen of Bennington battle fame. In that parsonage was born a son of the parson, William Allen who afterward became president of Dartmouth University. It will be recalled that the Legislature of New Hampshire undertook to bring about the transfer of the franchise and property of Dartmouth College, established under the laws of England before the Revolution, to Dartmouth University incorporated under the laws of New Hampshire. This effort on the part of the State culminated in the famous Dartmouth College decision in the Supreme Court of the United States in which the college was victorious over the university. But for a time Dartmouth University had a president and a faculty and so from 1817 to 1820 this William Allen, son of the parson, was entitled "President of Dartmouth University." But William Allen later became a real college president, of Bowdoin in Maine, then, as now, an important seat of learning.

William Allen was born at the parsonage in Pittsfield, Jan. 2, 1784; in 1810 he succeeded Parson Allen as pastor of the First Congregational Church; removed in 1817 to Hanover, the seat of Dartmouth; and in 1820 became president of Bowdoin. During his presidency at Bowdoin many students, later men of distinction, were in his classes, among them, Franklin Pierce the 14th President of the United States; Nathaniel Hawthorne, Henry W. Longfellow and John A. Andrew, the war governor of Massachusetts. Dr. Allen resigned in 1839 and removed to Northampton, Mass. where for the remainder of his life he devoted himself to literary pursuits. He died there July 16, 1868. He married a granddaughter of Eleazer Wheelock, founder of Dartmouth College, a daughter of John Wheelock, second president of the college.

Frederick A. P. Barnard, a son of Sheffield, for 24 years, was president of Columbia University. Barnard College, affiliated with Columbia, took its name from this Berkshire born president.

Barnas Sears, 1802-1880, went from his birth place in Sandisfield, to become a successor of Horace Mann, as secretary of the Massachusetts State Board of Education, and later, president of Brown University at Providence from 1855 to 1867.

William Edward Merriman, was a native of Hinsdale, born Oct. 20, 1825. He graduated at Williams in 1850. From 1863 to 1876 he was president of Ripon College in Wisconsin. He died in Boston Aug. 1, 1892.

Stephen William Taylor, LL.D. was born at Adams, October 28, 1791, graduated at Hamilton College as valedictorian in 1817; taught in secondary schools for many years and in 1851 he became second president of Madison University at Hamilton, New York. He died at Hamilton Jan. 6, 1856. His publications included a history of Madison University and a series of essays on the Theory of Education. This Institution was renamed Colgate University in 1890 in honor of the Colgate family.

Clark W. Bryan's Book of Berkshire is authority for the statement that President Rowley of De Pauw university in Indiana was born in Richmond. I have this far been unable to learn anything about this Rowley. His name does not appear in the list of presidents of De Pauw from 1839 to 1903. The university was established in 1837 and it may be that this Rowley had to do with its founding but was not its president.

Mark Hopkins, the great teacher of teachers, was born in Stockbridge in 1802, the same year Barnas Sears was born over in Sandisfield. This great educator was president of our own Williams College from 1836 to 1872. Henry Hopkins, a son of Mark Hopkins was born in Williamstown, Nov. 30, 1837, graduated from Williams in 1858, and was president of his alma mater from 1902 to 1908, when he died. He was the immediate predecessor of ex-President Harry A. Garfield.

The men were scholars of high repute; they were all writers, successful educators in important institutions, and all reflected credit upon the county of their birth.

At the sitting of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, June term, 1815, at Wiscasset, in the county of Lincoln, Isaac Parker, chief justice, addressed to the grand jury a sketch of the life and character of Daniel Dewey, a deceased associate justice of the court. (It will be remembered that Maine was still a part of Massachusetts and that in those days the full court conducted the trial of criminal cases.)

At the sitting of the same court, September term, 1866, at Lenox, in the county of Berkshire, resolutions of the Berkshire bar were presented on the death of Charles Augustus Dewey, an associated justice of the court.

These two men whose memory was thus honored, were father and son, both natives of Berkshire County.

Judge Daniel Dewey was born in Sheffield in 1765. His son was born in Williamstown in March 13, 1793. Both were college men, the father, a graduate of Yale; the son, of Williams. Daniel Dewey studied law with Judge Theodore Sedgwick of Stockbridge; the son had his training in law from the father; both men had long and successful years of practice at the bar before their appointment to the bench; and both were lawyers of great ability and profound legal attainments.

Judge Daniel Dewey's service on the bench was for only a few months over a year, death cutting short his term, one of the shortest on record. Judge Charles A. Dewey performed his judicial duties for a longer period of time than any associate justice of the court, either under the Colonial government or since the adoption of the Constitution, with the single exception of Mr. Justice Wilde whose tenure was from 1815 to 1850. Chief Justice Shaw served 30 years but he was never an associate justice. Reckoning from the time our present chief justice, Arthur P. Rugg, was appointed an associate justice, in 1906, he is now approaching the record of C. A. Dewey for continuous length of service on the Supreme bench.

Daniel Dewey was a descendant in the fourth generation from the Englishman Thomas Dewey who in 1634 settled in Dorchester. After completing his studies with Judge Sedgwick, he began the practice of law in Williamstown in 1790, three years before the birth of his son Charles. He early achieved an assured position at the bar, characterized by assiduous study of facts and law, skill in the conduct of trials, and high reputation for legal learning. He was a member of the Governor's Council for two years and then was elected to the thirteenth Congress. The Congressmen had been for four or five successive terms of the opposite political faith. For some years the Judge had been a victim of consumption but in the milder climate of Washington, the progress of the disease seemed to have been arrested. When Governor Caleb Strong of Northampton offered the appointment to the bench Mr. Dewey accepted the offer and took his seat in February 1814. But he was fearful that his health would not hold out. The fear was justified and he died at his home in Williamstown May 26, 1815, after a service of about 15 months.

Judge Theodore Sedgwick, who was an associate justice of the Supreme Court from 1802 to 1813, had died the year before Judge Dewey's appointment. He had known the younger man from his student days, and once spoke of Mr. Dewey "as possessing a purity and simplicity of character rarely united with such powers of mind, as void of all ambition but that of doing right, as unassuming and even humble, in his opinion of himself, as exhibiting, in the whole course of his business and engagements with the world, that stern integrity of thought and action, accompanied with that urbanity and kindness of manner, which commanded the respect of all people at all times."

Chief Justice Parker said of his associate: "In such times of political division as we have unfortunately lived in, to be believed honest, able, uncorrupt and a friend of one's country, by the party opposed to us, is perhaps the most conclusive evidence of our title to such a character; for it is the testimony of those who may, in a certain sense, be considered as enemies. This evidence exists with reference to our departed friend."

Now for the clergyman whose name attracted my notice in connection with St. Paul's, Rector Pyncheon, who was later president of Trinity College at Hartford. He was a preacher, a versatile and solid student of the natural sciences, a teacher of rare acceptance, a business man of sound judgment and discretion, and altogether a very likable man.

Thomas Ruggles Pyncheon was of the eighth generation from that William Pyncheon who was born in England about 1590 and was one of the original patentees of the Massachusetts Bay Company. William settled at Roxbury but in 1636 founded Springfield on the Connecticut River, named after his residence in Springfield, Essex County, England.

Rector Pyncheon was born at New Haven Jan. 19, 1823; studied in the Boston Latin School and at Trinity College, Hartford, where he graduated in 1841; tutored in the classics and lectured in chemistry at Trinity from 1843 to 1847; was ordained deacon at New Haven and priest at Boston the next year, 1849; was rector at Stockbridge and Lenox from 1849 to 1855; was called to the chair of chemistry and the natural sciences in Trinity and in preparation for that work studied in Paris in 1855-56.

He received the degree of D.D. from St. Stephen's College, New York, in 1855 and of LL.D. from Columbia in 1877; from the latter year to the end of his active life he was professor of moral philosophy at Trinity. On Nov. 7, 1874, Dr. Pyncheon became president of Trinity and continued in that position to 1833, meanwhile continuing his work as a professor. The period during which Dr. Pyncheon was president of the college was one that called for diplomacy and executive ability. The State purchased the college site for its new capitol building. The State capitol, by the way, was constructed within the appropriation, and the commission having charge of it, turned back money into the treasury, a most unusual, if not altogether unprecedented proceeding.

President Pyncheon thus had charge of selecting and acquiring a new site for the college, that now occupied by Trinity, designing and erecting buildings, and the transfer of the library of the college and its other personal property to the new buildings. According to all accounts he was a successful administrator.

Dr. Pyncheon was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of science, of the Geological Society of France, and of many other learned bodies. He was the author of scientific treatises and of other publications. He died in 1904.

Simeon Parmalee, a Congregational clergyman, a centenarian, was born at West Stockbridge Jan. 16, 1782; studied at Middlebury and at West Rutland in Vermont; was ordained pastor at Westford Aug. 31, 1808 and continued there until 1837. From 1837 to October 15, 1869 he was in home missionary work and acting pastor in Vermont churches, his active ministry extending through a period of 61 years.

Mr. Parmalee held many positions of honor and trust in his adopted State and for years was one of the corporation of University of Vermont. That institution gave him the degree of D.D. He died at Oswego, N.Y., Feb. 10, 1882, at the age of 100 years and 25 days.

Berkshire County has furnished seven of the fifty-one Lieutenant-Governors of the Commonwealth as follows: George Hull, 1836-43, of Sandisfield, born at Farmington, Conn., Jan. 8, 1788; Henry Halsey Childs, 1843-44, of Pittsfield, born Pittsfield, June 7, 1783; William C. Plunkett, 1854-55, of Adams, born Lenox, 1799; John Z. Goodrich, 1861-Mar. 1861, of Stockbridge, born Sheffield; Joseph Tucker, 1869-73, of Pittsfield, born Lenox, Aug. 21, 1832; Byron Weston, 1880-83, of Dalton, born Dalton, 1832, and W. Murray Crane, 1897-1900 of Dalton, born Dalton, April 23, 1853.

John Fellows was born in Pomfret, Conn., in 1733; was an officer in the Colonial wars against the French and Indians; and a Sheffield delegate the Massachusetts Provincial Congress in 1775. He recruited a regiment of Minute Men in Western Massachusetts and soon after the Battle of Lexington joined the Continental Army at Cambridge in 1776, as colonel of the regiment. June 25, 1775, he was commissioned a brigadier-general and led his brigade at the battles of Long Island, White Plains, Bemis Heights and Saratoga and was among the prominent generals of the American Army at the surrender of Burgoyne, commanding that portion of the militia stationed on the east bank of the Hudson. The prisoners were sent to Boston under charge of General Fellows; their line of march was through Berkshire County, 2500 of them passing through Pittsfield.

General Fellows served his town in various capacities and was sheriff of Berkshire County for some years prior to 1781. He married Mary Ashley who died in 1797.

He died in Sheffield, August 1, 1808, and was buried in what is now known as the Ward family cemetery on the Ward farm (now Greenwood Farm) in Sheffield, just around the corner from Walter Prichard Eaton's Twin Fires. The Ward farm is the scene of Elizabeth Stancy Payne's novel, "The Changing Years," published in 1931.

The obituary notice, which was published in the American Register in 1809, says of him: "He was an honest and useful citizen; a real friend to his country; affectionate as a father and sincere in friendship."

Kenneth Roberts, in his "Rabble in Arms," a story of the second invasion of Canada in the Revolution, makes many unpleasant references to our Pittsfield patriot soldiers, John Brown and James Easton, and generally disparages the New England soldiers and their commanders. It is gratifying therefore, to find him speaking in most complimentary terms of General Fellows. With "eighty Berkshire boys" General Fellows went under orders from General Schuyler to take measures to delay Burgoyne's movements in his march toward Albany. The novelist makes one of his characters say: "He was one of those rare militia officers who would go anywhere, do anything, and sit up all night and every night, if necessary, to carry out his orders. Unlike most of our officers, he was grateful for suggestions, and seemed to be more interested in stopping the British than in his own importance, which was a pleasant surprise." He had "a sour, reluctant Berkshire grin," he was a good judge of human nature and he was good-natured and kind-hearted.

I do not wish by silence to appear to admit that Roberts is justified in his characterizations of Brown and Easton. Their controversies with Benedict Arnold are matters of public record. For the present I am inclined to adopt the remark of Capt. Peter Merrill in the story: "If I've learned anything in my life, I've learned that arguments over war are as useless as those over politics and love."

General Fellows had a son, John, born in Sheffield in 1760 and died in New York January 3, 1844. As a mere boy he was a soldier in Captain William Bacon's company, a unit of the regiment with which General Fellows hurried to Boston on the news of the engagement at Lexington. John Jr., graduated at Yale in 1783. He seems to have devoted his life to study and writing. Among his publications were: "The Mysteries of Freemasonry, or An Exposition of the Religious Dogmas of the Ancient Egyptians, Showing Their Identity With the Order of Modern Masonry," "The Veil Removed; Reflections on Humphrey's Essay on the Life of Israel Putnam" and a work on the authorship of the "Junius Letters."

I gave some account recently of two sons of Berkshire who became justices of our Supreme Court, the Deweys, father and son, and here are two more Berkshire natives George Morell of Lenox and Matthew Birchard of Becket, the former of whom became Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Michigan and the latter Chief Justice of Ohio's Court of Last Resort.

Morell left the county when he had reached his majority; it may be assumed that he made the decision for himself. Birchard's parents took their eight years old boy with them when they went to the Western Reserve, to what is now Trumbull County in the northeastern part of Ohio, one county south of Lake Erie and adjoining New York State on the east.

George Morell was born in Lenox, March 22, 1786; graduated at Williams College in 1807 and received the Master's degree there in 1810; studied law in a Troy law office and was called to the bar Feb. 14, 1811; and then moved to Cooperstown, N.Y. There he practiced law, engaged very actively in politics, was elected to many local and county offices and in 1829 to the State Assembly; and served in the State militia from 1811 to 1832, holding successively all the military titles from sergeant up to major general. He was the first judge of the Otsego County Court, a position he held from 1827 until he went to Albany as Assemblyman. After that year at the capitol, he was again elected to the county judgeship.

On Feb. 26, 1832, he took his place as United States District Judge in the territory of Michigan by appointment of President Andrew Jackson. He remained on the district bench until 1836. On the admission of Michigan as a State in 1837 he became a judge of the Supreme Court and on July 18, 1843, chief justice and served until his death occurred at Detroit on March 8, 1845.

From 1832 to 1845, the period of Judge Morell's residence in Michigan, Solomon Sibley, born in Sutton in this State Oct. 7, 1769, was a judge of the Supreme Court of Michigan territory from 1824 to 1836 and thereafter a resident of Detroit where he died April 4, 1846, the year following Morell's death. It may fairly be assumed that the two judges were friends and on occasion referred to their birth and bringing up in the Old Bay State.

Matthew Birchard was born in Becket, Jan. 19, 1804. His parents removed to the Western Reserve in 1812 and there the boy received an academic education and studied law with an attorney in Warren, Trumbull County. He supported himself by teaching school until his admission to the bar at the age of 24. After that he formed a partnership with David Tod, later Governor of the State. In 1832 he was appointed to the court of common pleas.

In 1836, in Jackson's Administration, Judge Birchard became solicitor for the general land office of the United States in Washington where he remained five years. Returning to Ohio in 1841 he was elected judge of the Supreme Court and was chief justice from 1847 to 1849. Judge Birchard's opinions were said to be "the result of careful consideration and diligent research, supported by copious citations from standard authorities and logical reasoning."

In 1867 Birchard bought the Warren Constitution which he published in connection with his son, until his death at Warren, June 16 in the centennial year.

I may hazard the guess that Morell was a Democrat and that at least until the days of the discovery of gold in California, Birchard also was a follower of Jackson. I have no information as to what became of him politically after he left the bench and before the Civil War and later in his newspaper venture.

This was the original detachment. There were some substitutes before, and some afterward, and I think some exchanges from one company to another.

Amos Harman took the place of Richard Spalding, David Morse of Moses Spalding, 2nd, Simeon Mills of Alson Mills; Henry E. May became Sergeant Major, and Michael Paul and William Hale of Pittsfield, joined the company.

Orderly Sergeant Geer and the last 21 privates hailed from Pittsfield, and William Hale, son of Ashbel, was another - probably the 13 next preceding them from Great Barrington. One of

BERKSHIRE SHERIFFS

From the Pittsfield Sun, October 29, 1885

The appointments by Sheriff Wellington of Berkshire deputies have been very few, the majority being continued appointments begun by Sheriff Root. William Hodskin claims to be the veteran of the force, having served continuously since 1847. Harvey Holmes, of Great Barrington comes next with service since 1848, and others were appointed as follows:

George H. Cobb, West Stockbridge, 1855	R. M. Savery, Becket, 1873
E. L. Day, Stockbridge, 1863	W. W. Norton, Great Barrington, 1876
C. H. Cutting, Lee, 1865	Edgar Pierce, Windsor, 1877
H. S. Streeter, Adams, 1868	H. S. Manley, Sandisfield, 1877
W. W. Langdon, Great Barrington, 1868	T. M. Quinn, Williamstown, 1877
M. C. Langdon, Monterey, 1869	C. W. Goodrich, Hinsdale, 1878
Lewis W. Taylor, Pittsfield, 1871	E. D. Humphrey, Great Barrington, 1878
L. Scott, Pittsfield, 1872	George W. Roraback, Lee, 1879
J. C. Smith, Sheffield, 1873

Sheriff Wellington was appointed deputy in 1861 and served until his election to his present office five years ago. His appointments additional to the re-appointments of Mr. Root's deputies are Hale of Tyringham, Shepardson and Nash of Pittsfield, Bixby of North Adams, A. E. Chamberlin of Dalton and Albert Gardner of New Marlboro, the latter appointed this year in place of Henry N. Adams, deceased, who had served since 1858. Crier Wells is the successor of Zepheniah Davis of Lenox, who at nearly 100 did the "crying" at the terms and long after his voice was a mere thread. In those days the crier was a court appointment. The law afterward made the sheriff or one of his deputies the crier and Mr. Wells has occupied the place since, some 35 years. Sheriff Wellington's term expires next year.

them, Alanson Slater, belonged in Tyringham, and now lives in Ashtabula County, Ohio. Sergeant Baldwin with quite a detachment were from Egremont, and West Stockbridge. I should think must have furnished a quota. Others would recollect more.

I obtained the list from the family of the late Capt. Jones, by means of a search for the name of Job Coe, which could not be found. His widow lived in Peterborough, New York, Gerrit Smith's neighborhood. Hoping that this list may be of some service to somebody, I subscribe myself. Affectionately, Edwin Brewer ■

OLD DRURY ACADEMY

From The Berkshire Hills, November 1, 1902

In 1840 the want of better home education facilities began to be felt for the first time in North Adams by its then leading citizenship and the construction of old Drury Academy proved to be the quick result. The village hardly felt able to bear the expense of the construction of its first academy and these citizens began to cast about to find some man of wealth, without issue of kindred, who would have the pride to contribute pecuniary substance to erect such an institute. A Mr. Gore, a farmer of Monroe, who was childless and thought to be worth $50,000 was first approached on this subject by Dr. E. S. Hawkes. Mr. Gore finally offered to donate $3,000 for the building of a school edifice, with the condition that at all times he should be allowed to dictate the character of the teachers employed in such an academy. This was not thought to be a safe agreement for the prosperity and perpetuity of an educational institution and consequently his offer was not accepted.

Just about this time Nathan Drury of Florida, a wealthy and childless farmer, was taken ill and was attended by Dr. Isaac Hodges and Dr. E. S. Hawkes of North Adams. When he became convalescent these two prominent physicians suggested to him the question of making a donation wherewith to build the much desired academy, he was at once taken with the idea and the necessary writings were at once made out and executed without delay. Dr. Hodges was appointed receiver and dispenser of the donation, and soon after Mr. Drury and his wife vested all power over the same in him without restriction or limitation as to the cost of the site and edifice. Dr. Hawkes procured and prepared the grounds for the reception of the building and Dr. Hodges superintended the construction of the same. At first there was some discussion as to whether the proper location for the academy would not be on Main Street, but good judgment prevailed, and the present eminence was selected on account of its commanding location and its retirement from the noise of the then very bust and thriving village.

The hill selected overlooking the village at all points of the compass as well as the valleys to the south, east and west, and commanding a fine view of the mountains roundabout, is thought to have been purchased from the estate of John Holden. The hill proper sloped off southward to a fine playground which bordered on East Church Street, the entire eminence from its abrupt descent down towards Eagle and Willow Streets and Willow Dell, being very steep and covered with a second growth of trees and bushes, excepting upon its west side, on which was a fine grove of oak trees, and which bordered upon the old village cemetery. This hill-top was first graded down some seventeen feet to obtain a level surface of 120 feet, on the west front of which the building was constructed. A graded road was built from East Church Street up to the plateau upon which the edifice stood, as also to connect with a boulevard which fronted the structure just below a finely sodded terrace, and which connected with a very steep road dug out of the hillside on the north and coming out near the present Millard shoe-factory on Union Street.

The first grading of the hill occupied six weeks and cost $400, the road approaches being finished sometime afterwards. Thirteen feet below the surface of the hill summit the trunk of a hardwood tree was unearthed from a bed of gravel, and other material, which went to prove the eminence was originally piled up by a mighty rush of waters from the north and northeast, and more tremendous than repeated by the north branch of the Hoosac river in later years. The first academy had a high basement in which was located wood-burning furnaces and a huge water tank or cistern. The first floor main hall was reached by a high flight of steps from the front, and a smaller flight from the rear. This floor contained a school and a piano room. The second story was reached by a decked flight of stairs rising out of the hall at the northeast end of the building. The large school room in the second story was fronted by a hall extending along the entire north side of the structure. From off a broad platform on the south side of the building two doors opened on a male and female recitation room. This large school room was always used for public examinations and exhibitions, for the academy lyceum meetings, and sometimes for teachers institutes, lectures, etc.

The academy was completed in 1843 and the first term was opened by Lyman Thompson, principal, November first of that year. The first board of trustees were Isaac Hodges, Josiah Q. Robinson, Thomas Tower, Amasa Bixby, E. S. Hawkes, Thomas Robinson, William E. Brayton, Alpheus Smith, Edward B. Penniman, Sanford Blackinton, Harvey Arnold, Stephen B. Brown and Benjamin Hathaway. Dr. Isaac Hodges was the first president of the board. To this board Nathan Drury gave $3500 in trust to erect the academy to bear his name, to be used for educational purposes, and when ceasing to be thus occupied, to revert to his heirs. Of course the past and present occupancy of Drury for a high school keeps it in possession of the city.

The principals in the old Drury were Lyman Thompson for eight years. In 1849 the trustees changed it from a private to a high school and established William Pitt Porter as its principal, and he continued in charge until 1854, at which time he entered into a law partnership with Henry L. Dawes, until the latter removed to Pittsfield. Succeeding Mr. Dawes he practiced law in the old stone office once standing on the present site of the Boland block on the corner of Main and Bank Streets until his death. In 1854 Jarvis Rockwell ran the high school for two terms, and retired to practice law and to become a justice of the police court. He was followed by Thomas Gorman, who was principal for two terms. In 1856 the latter was succeeded by Frank Shepard, previously a student at the academy, who after being principal for three years removed to Port Chester, N.Y., where he was was the head of a prosperous private academy for many years. Succeeding principals were two men named Robinson and Williams, Hoxey Hall and Fred P. Brown. The latter was a very popular principal and many pupils are now living who will remember his rare gifts and pleasant ways. He finally retired in 1864 to take up the practice of law and also followed quite considerably his profession as a most skillful civil engineer. In 1865 A. D. Miner took charge of the Drury High School, holding the position by his rare talent for fully 20 years, both in the old and the new Drury structure.

In 1866 the old academy building, so full of hallowed associations, was demolished, and the hill was lowered 21 feet to make room for the present main structure. This new Drury was finished in 1867 and the first school was opened there in the autumn of that year, the cost of the same and furnishing being about $80,000. It contains 13 school rooms, a recitation room and a spacious hall. In 1879 an annex to the main part was built which was occupied in 1880. The annex contains five school rooms and two recitation rooms and it cost with its furnishings about $15,000.

At the opening of the second term of the Drury Academy and Boarding School the Trustees issued the following prospectus: The Trustees have the pleasure to announce to the public that this school has been open for one term under the superintendence of Mr. L. Thompson, and that they feel increased confidence in his talents in imparting knowledge to the youthful mind and in his experience in properly governing and controlling a school. The school rooms are spacious and more comfortably seated than can be found in the country. For beauty of scenery, healthiness of location, good order, efficient discipline, and thorough instruction this academy is, at least, equal to any in the country. The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough English and classical education. Pupils are prepared for any class in college, or for commercial life, in addition to which the French language is taught by an experienced teacher. The female department is under the immediate control of Miss Thompson, who has had three years experience in one of the most popular schools in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. In this institution it will be the constant aim of the principals to improve the moral and intellectual powers of their pupils, with a due regard to their comfort and health. The principal will take a limited number of lads into his family at $125 per annum. Board and washing can be procured in good families in the immediate vicinity of the academy at a moderate price. The year is divided into two terms of twenty-two weeks each, commencing on the first Wednesday of May and November of each year. At the close of each term there will be a public examination of the scholars, which parents and guardians are always desired to attend. Terms of tuition per quarter: Geography, English Grammar and Arithmetic, $3.00; the above together with higher branches of English, $4.00; Algebra and the higher branches of Mathematics, $4.50; Languages, $5; French, extra per quarter, $5.00; Drawing, extra, $3.00; Music on piano, extra, $8.00; no other extra except proportion of fuel. No scholar received for less time than a quarter unless under peculiar circumstances. No deduction made for absence except for sickness. Lyman Thompson, principal. Miss Coralie Thompson, teacher of female department and of French, drawing and music.

AYLESWORTH-CLARK-BARSTOW

Abstracted from the obituary of Mrs. Allan Barstow in The Berkshire Evangel, October, 1901

In the death of Mrs. Sarah Aylesworth Clark Barstow of Canaan Four Corners (N. Y.) the community has lost one who throughout her long life has been identified with its interests. Many valuable historical reminiscences suggested by her departure have been furnished for this sketch by a trusted and beloved member of her family.

Mrs. Barstow was descended on her mother's side from Arthur Aylesworth, who was born in England in 1656, and emigrated to America in 1681. He married Mary Brown, of Providence R.I. His death occurred in 1725.

Her grandfather, William Aylesworth, was born in North Kingston, R.I., Feb. 2, 1753. He married, June 5, 1774, Catherine Havens, who was born in Newport, R.I., Dec. 11, 1758. In December 1775 they removed from their native state, and arrived on the 16th at the town of New Canaan, where they settled and spent their days on what is now the Patrick homestead. Their baby and oldest child was born Nov. 2, 1775, being but little more than a month old while journeying in its mother's arms through the wilderness, and she but seventeen. They reared a family of thirteen children, of whom Mrs. Barstow's mother, Sarah, was one. She was born in Canaan, August 10, 1780, and married the Rev. Azariah Clark Sept. 14, 1807. She died in September 1867, at the home of Mrs. Barstow.

Rev. Azariah Clark was a descendant of Lieutenant William Clark, one of the seven original settlers of the town of Northampton, Mass., and was a native of the adjoining town of Easthampton. He was adopted by an uncle and graduated at Williams College in 1805. He was ordained in Canaan in 1807, and resigned in 1829, removing to Colebrook, Conn. in 1830. There he died in 1832.

Sarah Clark's brother John died in 1874. He was a life-long resident of Canaan. William S. Clark, his son, resides in Amenia, New York. Two daughters, Mrs. Louise Tinsley and Miss Mary Clark, reside in Des Moines, Iowa.

The sister Elizabeth died when Mrs.

Barstow was a child. Her oldest brother, William, died a few years since at the age of 84, in West Liberty, Iowa, leaving a widow and two sons, Robert and Joseph, and two daughters, Mrs. Cornwell and Mrs. Cheeseboro.

Of her brother, Azariah Sylvester Clark, she would talk as though he had died but yesterday. It was the same with her sister Catherine, who was a lady of a very sweet, gentle nature, and who died in 1865. She was the wife of Joseph Cornwell, a merchant in Canaan for many years.

Her brother Sylvester was born in Canaan, Dec. 11, 1812 and died May 12, 1837.

February 5, 1857, Sarah A. Clark was married to Allan Barstow, who died August 2, 1898. His great grandfather Seth Barstow came to Sharon, Conn. from Rochester, Mass. in 1771. He died in 1822, leaving five sons, Allan, Samuel, Seth, Gamaliel and Charles. Allan moved to Canaan. His son Captain Samuel A., married Bessie, daughter of Asa Douglas, whose father, Major Asa bought a six mile tract of land from the Indians, and was the earliest settler in this part of the town. He came in 1760 and lived where Mr. Thompson now resides. The younger Allan made his home with his grandfather Barstow, at whose death he inherited the most of his property.

Mr. & Mrs. Allan Barstow were not blessed with children of their own, and when her brother Samuel Barstow, Jr. died, the two youngest children were cared for by them as they would have cared for their own. The son, Edward Allan Barstow, has never left the old place, and is now in possession of the farm and homestead. He married, October 6, 1898, Isabella Letitia Hetrick, of Albany. They have two children William Samuel and Edward Allan.

The daughter, Kate, married William Spier, Jr., January 5, 1887. Their only child Allan Douglas Spier was born Nov. 26, 1887. Mr. Spier died in December 1891. Mrs. Spier was married to Charles B. Gates, of Phelps, N.Y. in January 1897. Their daughter Bessie was born in October, 1897.

Mrs. Barstow died on Sept. 24, 1891. ■

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR WRITING QUERIES

1. Give the full name, including middle name or initial, of the person subject to enquiry.
2. Establish identity of the person by giving place and date of birth, place and date of death, parentage, place and date of marriage and identity of spouse to the extent these data are known, as:
John DOE b Hartford, CT 12 Jan 1900; d Fairfield, CT 19 Mar 1967 s/o Richard & Abigail (WESTON) DOE m Hartford 11 June 1923.
3. If unable to give a complete description of the person under enquiry, start with a son or daughter for whom more information might be available and ask for that person's ancestry.
4. Identify spouse in manner described in (2) above.
5. State what information is desired, as:
Need ancestors of John and Abigail.
6. Place the question at the end of the query.
7. Do not abbreviate the names of persons or towns.
8. For any locale outside Massachusetts, be sure to identify the state.
9. Dates should be written: day, month, year as: 13 Oct 1743.
10. Use multiple queries rather than several parts to the same query.
11. Queries should not exceed four or five lines and should be submitted as an ASCII file on a diskette or E-mailed to bfha@berkshire.net marked as a query on the subject line. Printed or typed queries will also continue to be accepted.
12. Well-known abbreviations may be used but elaborate use of them is not required.
13. Address for reply should be stated on each card so that the Editor is not obliged to keep their envelope as well in order to have a complete record.
14. Acknowledge receipt of all replies and reimburse respondent for postage and the cost of any material copied. One should not be left out of pocket for having answered a call for help. If the submitted material is of little use, that is the risk assumed in transactions by correspondence.
15. When requesting information, always include a SASE.
16. Help your query editor judge the effectiveness of this section. If you make a contact that provides significant help with your search, won't you let us know?
